Kan's Springlike Days Fade Before Blizzard's Breath; California Shivers

Memphis's Severest Weather Kills Untold Thousands; 30,000 Dead Listed

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Reeling suddenly from weather made for robins and bluebirds, to storm seaboard, figuratively speaking, today awoke to find snow-white covering about the streets.

The West, Southwest and upper regions of the Pacific Coast continued to shiver. The Kansas City district reported thirteen deaths directly attributable to the season's cold.

In which the United States compared other countries were by far less sufferers.

In Mongolia and China proper deaths by the thousands were reported. The Suiyuan district of Inner Mongolia estimated its dead at 15,000. Nine provinces of Eastern Asia at 30,000.

Minimum temperatures were reported from the Southwest, and ice formed in the Rio Grande Valley, ground for their crops.

The mercury, downward, returned its path minutes to normal only after a night of vast in which every known man, aided by machinery, fought snowdrifts. Promises of more warmer weather are made by Weather Bureau. Snow already stopped falling.

In New York, after experiencing two days of normal spring weather, was hit by blizzard. This, coupled with heavy winter fog, halted shipping and temporarily stayed flood tide in Upper New York.

Will Rogers Remarks:

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. [To the Editor of The Times:] It seemed like old times to hear Mr. Coolidge quoting statistics over the "rodeo" last night. No man quotes figures like he can. And he always pulls a new one for us. Since the Wall street crash, which the Republicans refer to as "business readjustment," prominent men have done nothing but tell us of the strength of the country. "Steel was strong," "T. and T. was strong," "Radio was strong," "breath was strong." We have been "stronged" to death in speeches and statements, but last night Mr. Coolidge said "the heart of the American people is strong," and here over 500 died of heart failure during the last "Republican readjustment." What he really meant was that "the American public's head is strong but his heart is weak."

Yours for true statistics,
WILL ROGERS.

PROHIBITION ACTION DUE

House Will Get Dry Reports

Hoover to Submit Findings of Law Board and Ideas for Legislation

Transfer of Enforcement Unit Believed Among Recommendations

BY LAURENCE M. BENEDICT
"Times" Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—Action and less noise on prohibition enforcement at last appears to be a possibility. For weeks Congress has been clamoring for reports from the Law Enforcement Commission. They will be sent to the House Monday by President Hoover. They will be accompanied by definite concrete recommendations for legislation. The reports and recommendations will be submitted to the regular standing committees.

The President is content to accept the refusal of the House to accede to the Senate resolution providing for a joint committee on prohibition and hence it is now up to

ODD MALADY TOLL RISES

Parrot Disease Fatal to Seven

One of Deaths in Ohio Town; Eleven Others Stricken in United States

Six Succumb in Germany With Twenty or More Listed as Sick

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—Parrots, many assumably Christmas gifts, are blamed for having brought illness and death to families widely scattered in the United States and Germany. The parrots, physicians say, are afflicted with psittacosis, a disease contracted first by tropical birds.

Six deaths from psittacosis have been reported in Germany and one in Toledo, O. In the United States eleven persons are critically ill—one in Toledo, three in Warren, O., and seven in Baltimore and vicinity. Germany reports at least twenty cases, including one entire family of nine persons in Dresden.

TRACED TO PARROTS

In each case a parrot recently had been brought into the home and soon after its arrival had taken sick and died. Four of the persons ill in Baltimore are employed in a pet shop which recently received a shipment of birds from Brazil.

As the list of illnesses mounted, health officers, both Federal and local, started investigations today, and Surgeon-General Cumming of the United States Public Health Service advised that contact with recently imported parrots be avoided.

The disease, which attacks both parrots and human beings much as a combination of influenza and typhoid fever would, reached epidemic proportions last October in the Argentine, according to a news dispatch at that time from Buenos Aires. Sixty persons were taken ill with psittacosis in Buenos Aires, the dispatch stated, and there had been more than a score of deaths.

PHYSICIANS DIVIDED

Physicians in Buenos Aires, however, were divided in their opinions as to whether psittacosis could be communicated to human beings from parrots. Dictionaries generally describe it as a disease which humans may contract from parrots.

It first appeared in this country in Annapolis, Md., where three persons in one family became critically ill soon after Christmas. Their parrot, purchased from a Baltimore pet shop, died Christmas Day.

Although some doctors say the disease cannot be communicated from one human being to another, the McEntyre family of Warren, O., three of whom are ill, has been placed under quarantine.

EPIDEMIC UNLIKELY

Surgeon-General Cumming said he does not fear an epidemic of the disease, since it generally is believed that it is transmitted only from bird to human being, and not from person to person. He urges, however, that contact with parrots and their cages be avoided.

"I advise the precaution," explained Dr. Cumming, "simply for the safety of individuals who otherwise might be exposed. There is at present no indication of widespread prevalence of the disease, but I would urge that the people avoid contact with possible conveyors, the birds, until we have completed investigations."

It Could be a Lot Worse!

BRITAIN READY TO REDUCE MINIMUM CRUISER TOTAL

Admiralty Chief Announces Plans to Offer Fifty-Ship Proposal, Thanks to Antiwar Pact

SHEFFIELD (Eng.) Jan. 10. (AP)—Great Britain tonight, through its First Lord of the Admiralty, made its first public move in precise figures toward reduction in naval armaments.

A. V. Alexander, speaking in his own constituency, announced that the empire at the coming five-power conference intends to propose reducing her requirement in cruiser strength from seventy to fifty. He said the Kellogg Briand peace pact has so altered the situation that the Admiralty feels warranted in setting its irreducible minimum of cruisers at fifty instead of the seventy considered necessary at the time of the Washington conference.

This is the first time the British people at large have been authoritatively informed of the exact position of their government on the cruiser question. Assertedly inspired statements following the lines of the speech by Mr. Alexander have been circulated, however, in England during the last few months. These reports were that the total of fifty would be made up of fifteen eight-inch gun vessels of 10,000 tons and thirty-five vessels of a smaller type to carry six-inch guns.

POINT EMPHASIZED

Mr. Alexander emphasized that these figures would be operative pending a further naval conference in 1936, which he hopes will confirm and extend the present agreement.

The First Lord of the Admiralty made another important announcement in reference to capital ships. He declared that his government would like to see, "if replacements are to take place as they must, a capital ship which would be less expensive both to build and to maintain than the ship which is involved in the maximum-tonnage rule laid down in the Washington treaty."

Mr. Alexander also expressed the British hope for reduction in destroyers and ultimate complete abolition of the submarine.

"The first, he said, is predicated on partial accomplishment of the second and the latter upon winning the consent of other powers.

"I want to acknowledge that up to the present the press in this country has maintained an attitude of great friendliness and helpfulness with regard to the forthcoming five-power conference," Mr. Alexander said, "but with the emergence of some of the main problems to be considered, and particularly the problem of cruiser strength, I have observed a tendency for the press to ask, 'What is the attitude of the Admiralty with regard to fixing the minimum requirements of cruiser strength for the British Empire at fifty ships instead of the seventy ships asked for in 1927?'

"Let me say at the outset that to decision of policy on matters of this kind it is the government which is responsible and which must answer the nation, but in view of the nature of certain questions which have been put in the press I think it would be opportune for me, as First Lord of the Admiralty, to explain the Admiralty's views.

ONE-POWER STANDARD

"Our estimate of the defense requirements of the British Empire has been summed up in the policy of successive governments to His Majesty here and in the dominions: Namely, a one-power naval standard.

"In the matter of capital ships this has been very simply expressed in the form of parity with the greatest other naval power. This was the main achievement of the Washington conference.

"In the matter of cruisers it is not so simple, and this was the crux of the Geneva conference of three powers, which failed to reach an agreement.

"One of the most important aims of the London conference will be to reconcile our defense needs in the matter of cruisers with the requirements of an international agreement.

NEEDS SET FORTH

"After the Washington conference, at which the question of cruiser strength was only to a limited extent touched upon, the board of Admiralty advised the government of the day of their views of the needs of the British Empire in cruiser strength.

"The number, which is based on the needs of defense for our world-wide vital sea communications, was fixed at seventy. That was the number for which we held out at Geneva. That is the number which,

BUSINESS ON UP SWING

Barnes Declares Corner Turned

Chairman of Hoover Survey Asserts Confidence in Future Unimpaired

National Reports Indicate Credit Flowing Back to Production Channels

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—Reports received by the National Business Survey Conference, called by President Hoover last month, indicate "that business has rounded the turn of the year with the volume of production and distribution approaching normal for this season and confidence in the immediate future unimpaired."

That was the conclusion announced tonight by the chairman, Julius H. Barnes, in the course of a study of returns available from inquiries that have been made all over the country.

UPWARD TURN

An upward turn in savings bank deposits, increase of life insurance business and expansion in the total of stockholders in standard corporations are among the points cited in the summary. It was said that recessions had been experienced in textiles and in some food producing lines, while the rate of increase in use of gas and electricity had slowed down.

Taken as a whole, the summary added, "the reports indicate that readjustments are being made in an orderly way with definite signs that credit is flowing back to productive enterprise."

CONFIDENCE GROWS

Chairman Barnes said, "The energy of America's trade and commercial organizations is being earnestly devoted to the task of maintaining stability in our various fields of business," and that in view of the data available, "confidential and mutual support grows naturally among the directors of industry."

He predicted that the "ever-expanding requirements of 120,000,000 people lead prudent business judgment to make now the necessary extensions, replacements and betterments of plant and equipment in preparation for the future."

Ortiz Rubio to Stay at Canyon

GRAND CANYON (Ariz.) Jan. 10. (AP)—Eduardo Fernandes Chazaro, secretary to President-elect Ortiz Rubio of Mexico, told the Associated Press tonight the stay of the President-elect's party in Grand Canyon will not be terminated until the 15th inst. The plans for its return to Mexico are not complete.

Senor Chazaro, however, said the President-elect definitely had cut the Pacific Coast from his itinerary. The reason for the change in plans, Senor Chazaro reiterated, is the delicate condition of Senora Ortiz Rubio's health, and that the political situation had no bearing on it.

FIRE PERILS CHILDREN OF KEATON

Midnight Flames Destroy Part of Comedian's Home in Beverly Hills

Mrs. Buster Keaton and her two children were rescued from death by fire shortly before midnight last night when the Beverly Hills residence of the actor was discovered ablaze. The two children were asleep in their quarters, which were badly damaged by the flames. Mrs. Keaton and the children were taken from the burning house by their nurse and firemen in charge of Fire Inspector Hicks, attached to one of three fire companies which responded to the call.

The damage to the home at 1004 Hartford, adjoining the Tom Mix estate, was confined to the dining-room and the children's quarters, owing to the prompt response of the firemen. After being rescued Mrs. Keaton and the children were taken to the home of Tom Mix, where they remained for the night.

Buster Keaton was absent from home at the time. A number of servants were also in the house at the time and were aroused in time to make their escape. The fire was caused by an overheated furnace. The damage was estimated at $10,000.

Bill Provides Park Highway Building Fund

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—A $15,000,000 highway construction program to connect national park highways with the nearest Federal aid roads, over a three-year period, is provided in a bill introduced today by Representative Leavitt, Republican, Montana.

California, with the greatest number of national parks, Leavitt said, would be the State most benefited under the proposed program. There are in all, he explained, twenty-three national parks in the western part of the country which would be benefited.

Under the bill the Secretary of the Interior would be authorized to designate roads as national park approach highways. Funds provided in the bill, of which $5,000,000 would be expended each year, would go toward improvement of the designated highway.

Colorado Meet in Reno Put Up to Dr. Wilbur

RENO, Jan. 10. (AP) — Following receipt of a telegram from Gov. Phillips of Arizona this morning stating that the Colorado River Commission of that State will meet in Reno on the 27th inst. if Nevada desires to have the tri-State conference meeting in Reno, Gov. Balzar today telegraphed to Secretary of the Interior Wilbur requesting him to approve the proposal.

George W. Malone, head of the Nevada commission, is confined to a hospital here with a broken leg.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Jan. 10. (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Wilbur today declined Gov. Phillip's invitation to attend the tri-State Colorado River conference.

Wilbur feels that the States should work out an agreement among themselves without what might appear as influence from the Interior Department.

Money Hunters Clear Off Snow

WAUKEGAN (Ill.) Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—One hundred men of North Chicago shoveled and hauled snow away from several streets today without compensation in the interests of a merchant of the community who had lost $1000. Andro Pucin, owner of a clothing store, dropped $1000 in bills from his pocket while walking from a bank to his store, a distance of nearly a mile.

Despite the work of fellow-citizens, Pucin still is minus his money. The city has benefited, however, as many streets are practically free from snow.

DEAL JOINS PRODUCERS OF CEMENT

United States Steel Buys Atlas Portland Company on Stock Exchange Basis

INDEPENDENCE (Kan.) Jan. 10. (AP)—Officials of the Atlas Portland Cement Company here today announced that the United States Steel Corporation, through its subsidiary, the Universal Portland Cement Company, has acquired all property, assets and business of the Atlas Portland Cement Company.

The new corporation will be known as the Universal Atlas Cement Company and the management of the properties, effective immediately, has been placed in its hands. One of the largest plants of the Atlas Portland Cement Company is located here.

COMBINE CONTROLS FIFTH OF NATION'S OUTPUT

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (Exclusive) Formal announcement is expected tomorrow of the consummation of the huge merger of the Universal Portland Cement Company, United States Steel subsidiary, and the Atlas Portland Cement Company, one of the country's largest cement producers. Completion of the combine, it is understood, was made at a meeting in Chicago, with B. F. Affleck, president of Universal Portland Cement, departing afterward for New York.

Terms of the merger are said to be an exchange of five shares of Atlas stock for one of United States Steel common, of which about 160,000 shares were involved in the transaction. The new corporation will be known as the Universal Atlas Cement Company. The combine makes United States Steel Corporation the largest production interest in the Portland cement industry in this country with an annual capacity of about 37,000,000 barrels or about one-fifth of the nation's output each year.

STEAMSHIP GROUNDS IN DENSE FOG

Edward Luckenbach on Rocks Off East Coast and May be Total Loss

BLOCK ISLAND (R. I.) Jan. 10. (AP)—The freighter Edward Luckenbach grounded on Southwest Point in a dense fog today and probably will be a total loss. A southeaster is pounding the vessel with heavy seas.

The freighter rests on a rocky section of the shore, scarcely 100 yards below high-water mark. Water has flooded the engine room and the pounding broke open her fuel oil tanks.

One Coast Guard officer remains aboard with the Luckenbach's crew, to signal to the shore in the event of an emergency.

The ship left New York yesterday and was to proceed to Pacific Coast ports after discharging her cargo at Boston.

Toward evening the wind hauled to the northwest, leaving her in a lee and the crew of forty-eight decided to remain aboard tonight.

WOMAN FLAYS SENATORS

Cuban Sugar Publicity Agent Lashes Lobby Group; Politics Charges Start Two-Hour Row

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—An outspoken young woman today charged the Senate lobby committee with playing politics in its investigation of Cuban sugar interests and precipitated a battle of words which raged for more than two hours.

Mrs. Gladys Moon Jones, Washington publicity representative of the United States Sugar Association, took advantage of every opportunity to express her opinion of the committee. Laughter frequently swept the crowded committee room.

In a statement placed into the record she asserted that "apparently the two chief purposes of the so-called lobby committee have been to create political difficulties for President Hoover and to whitewash the twenty-five years' activities in Washington of the domestic sugar interests."

She also charged that the committee had violated the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution by obtaining correspondence from her office files.

Startled at first by the woman's frankness, members of the committee soon began to chuckle and then joined in the general laughter that greeted her thrusts at them. Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, who seldom has smiled during the hearings, burst into laughter a number of times.

It was the first time a woman has been questioned at length, and Mrs. Jones proved one of the most outspoken witnesses examined during the lobby investigation.

As the session was nearing an end she told the committee that it had treated her nicely.

"Your treatment of other people on the Cuban side," she added, "has made me act this way."

The committee adjourned today until Tuesday. Then it will question Edward R. Pickrell of the General Dyestuffs Corporation of New York, in regard to reports that he

UNIVERSAL SERVICE ACT SUPPORTED

Citizen Army Needed by United States, Declares American Legion Head

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—Universal military service was declared today by O. L. Bodenhamer, national commander of the American Legion, as the one essential element in which the national defense policy of the United States is lacking.

Characterizing the Army and Navy as "the cheapest and best insurance for our national wealth and income that can be devised," he said the veterans' organization indorses and supports the National Defense Act of 1920.

"There is nothing inherently wrong with the national defense policy of the United States as it stands in the basic law of our land today," he told the Army War College, "except that it is not complete and will not be complete until the principle of universal service is written into it as one of its fundamentals. There is a question, however, as to its successful operation in view of the fact that the degree of its 'workability' is dependent upon the availability of funds.

"The American Legion believes that our national defense program is being made subservient to a false economy which prevents a full and fair trial of the provisions as outlined in the act of 1920 and its subsequent amendments."

Bodenhamer said the nation had found itself in a state of unpreparedness in each war since colonial times and asserted that "we do not yet seem fully to realize the necessity of a citizen army trained in the duties and responsibilities of soldier life."

BROTHER OF HUBERT MAY BREAK WILL

Investor's Kin Risking $1,000,000 Legacy to Gain Millions Given Charity

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (AP)—An attempt to break the will of Conrad Hubert, flashlight manufacturer, under which former President Coolidge, former Gov. Smith and Julius Rosenwald, Chicago philanthropist, recently divided about $6,000,000 among thirty-four institutions, was disclosed tonight by the attorney for the Hubert estate.

The attorney, Samuel K. Abrahams, said he had been served with papers in the action, which he said was brought by Joseph Horwich, brother of the late Mr. Hubert.

Abrahams said Horwich risks a $1,000,000 legacy by contesting the will, a section of which stipulated he should forfeit a bequest of that amount if he sought a larger share of the estate.

SMOOT DECLARES WIFE HIS GREATEST BLESSING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP) Reed Smoot of Utah, dean of Republicans in the Senate and indefatigable worker, celebrated his sixty-eighth birthday anniversary with these words:

"I am drawing dividends on the life I have lived since my boyhood.

"I've never, never drank liquor in my life. I've never smoked. I've always eaten good, plain food and loved work. I never was lazy and never saw a time when I didn't have plenty to do.

"I've wronged nobody. I was fortunate in marrying as perfect a young woman as ever lived. My children have had a marvelous mother, a superb homemaker. Of all the blessings received by me she was the greatest."

His wife, who was Alpha May Endredge, died November 7, 1928.

BRITAIN FIXES ON NAVAL CUT

Minimum of Fifty Cruisers Will be Proposed

Drop from Seventy Possible Under Peace Pact

had conditions remained the same, would be our requirement today.

"But today we have to take account of the new situation which has arisen through the signature of the pact of Paris outlawing war by most of the nations of the world, including all the major naval powers, and not only by those who are members of the League of Nations, but also by the United States, which nation by authorship of this pact took a second great step in the practical solution of the world's need for assured peace.

PROSPECT FOR PEACE

"With such powerful support for peace we feel justified in looking forward to a period in which armed conflicts need not be expected.

"The Board of Admiralty, therefore, having regard to all the circumstances of today and especially to the pact of Paris and to improved world political relationships, is prepared to agree to fifty cruisers as the minimum needs of the empire up to the date for a conference and a revision, which we expect to be near 1936.

"I must emphasize that this figure is the lowest we feel can be fixed to meet even peace conditions in present world circumstances.

"The responsibility of the British commonwealth both imperially and internationally, including large commitments to the League of Nations, is enormous, and the navy is required again and again—as illustrated in the recent Palestine disturbances—to take both precautionary and effective action in carrying out our obligations to keep the peace in some parts of the world even when the major powers of the world are at peace.

HOPES FOR FUTURE

"We hope that international peace will be permanent and that a further agreement in 1936 will confirm and extend the present agreement.

"But if, unhappily, the international horizon should become in the future less unclouded than it is today, it will be up to the Board of Admiralty to review their position and to make further proposals to His Majesty's government.

"The proposed reduction in the number of cruisers to fifty is, of course, dependent on agreement at the forthcoming conference on adequate limitation of projected building programs being made by the other powers.

"Our aim is to reduce existing commitments and to stabilize our position by mutual agreement with others, avoiding competitive building and the expenditure of excessive sums of money.

GREATEST CONFERENCE

"The naval conference upon which we are entering probably will be the greatest of its kind in the history of the world and no delegates of the British nation can afford not to be impressed with the importance and the responsibility of the occasion.

"In 1921 and 1922 at Washington we achieved an agreement with regard to capital ships and on the assumption that we adopted a one-power standard we then conceded to America parity with regard to capital ships. That agreement still runs and ultimately our strength of capital ships will be reduced to fifteen.

"But so far as we are concerned we should very much like to see, if replacements are to take place as they must take place, a capital ship which would be less expensive to build and to maintain than the ship involved in the maximum tonnage laid down in the Washington treaty.

"There never has been an agreement with regard to the ratios of cruisers and destroyers. We said to America we were prepared to concede full and friendly parity between this country and theirs in naval strength in all the categories, in addition to those agreed upon in 1921 and 1922.

"At whatever point we think requirements will allow us to come down to, we should be quite willing for the other great English-speaking nation to take parity with us, ship for ship and ton for ton.

"There are two other main categories, destroyers and submarines, which must come under review. The extent to which you can get very substantial reductions in destroyer provision depends on the measure of success you can get in regard to reduction in submarines.

"I never had hesitated to say that nothing would please me more from the humanitarian point of view than complete abolition of the submarine, but there are difficulties in the way of getting the consent of other powers with regard to proposals in this respect. At the same time, it ought to be possible to have some measure of reduction.

"It has been quite obvious that the feeling between ourselves and America has not always been of the best and since the war something has wanted doing. I am quite sure now that we are in for a more free and frank relationship than at one time had appeared likely."

STIMSON SILENT ON FRANCE AND ITALY

ABOARD STEAMSHIP GEORGE WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—Secretary of State Stimson declined to comment tonight on the announcement that France has refused to accept a naval parity with Italy. He said he is without official advice on the subject.

The failure of Italy to obtain a parity with France is not likely to cause Premier Mussolini to refuse to sign a naval agreement in London. France already has served notice that it will not sign a definitive naval limitation agreement, but only one that will be advisory to the League of Nations in its undertaking to reduce the sea, land and air defense.

Unless France and Italy can be persuaded by the London negotiations to modify their attitude the utmost that can be accomplished will be a treaty by Great Britain, America and Japan, with a reservation by Great Britain for release if it perceives a national menace in the French navy building program.

QUIZ OPENS OVER UNITED CIGAR CASE

Confused Affairs Will be Looked Into by New York Bureau of Securities

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (AP)—The confused affairs of the United Cigar Stores Company, as reported by its new management, has resulted in an investigation by the State Bureau of Securities into the activities of the previous officials of the company, who represented the interests headed by George J. Whelan, founder of the 2200-unit chain.

Watson Washburn, assistant Attorney-General and head of the Securities Bureau, announced today that "transactions of the United Cigar Stores Company, under its former management are under investigation" by his office. He said several of the former officers have consented to appear voluntarily at the bureau for questioning next Tuesday.

Whether Washburn plans to question Whelan could not be learned, but it is considered extremely unlikely that he will appear, since he recently has been under treatment in a sanatorium. He is reported to have suffered a nervous breakdown aggravated by the recent crash of the stock market.

The Whalen group sold control of the company last August to a syndicate headed by George K. Morrow, chairman of the Gold Dust Corporation.

Improvement of Judiciary System May be Asked

Congress to provide as quickly as possible more adequate enforcement machinery.

It is generally understood that the reports of the commission which have been submitted to the President deal with the transfer of the prohibition unit from the Treasury to the Department of Justice, codification of the various prohibition acts, co-ordination and enlargement of Coast Guard agencies and improvement and strengthening of the judicial system for the more efficient handling of criminal cases.

MACHINERY INADEQUATE

The commission itself issued a statement today asserting that its preliminary examination has demonstrated unquestionably that the criminal law enforcement machinery of the country is entirely inadequate.

The commission's statement, prepared by Chairman Wickersham, reviewed just what its work entails, and the progress it has been able to make.

In stating that the preliminary examination demonstrated the inadequacy of the criminal law enforcement machinery, the commission said that "prohibition, automobile theft, white slave traffic, immigration and other criminal laws of the Federal government have overtaxed the capacity and effectiveness of the national machinery for enforcement."

REPORTS READ PREVIOUSLY

Mr. Hoover read the reports of the commission dealing with these four subjects some time ago and returned them to the commission. That body has been awaiting the appointment of the joint committee requested by the President before sending its findings and recommendations to the Capitol. Since the House refused to follow the President's recommendation there is no course for the President to follow other than consent to have the prohibition problem handled by the regular committees. The reports will be returned to him and he in turn will send them to the House.

It was made clear at the White House today that Mr. Hoover has no particular interest in the question of whether or not such a joint committee as he recommended should be appointed. He urged it in the first instance as a means of expediting legislation. It was his idea that such a committee could co-operate more efficiently with the Treasury and Justice departments and the law-enforcement commission than could five or six separate committees all of which, under existing conditions, have to do with prohibition enforcement.

AGREED ON LONG AGO

The White House, however, is further content to accept the explanation of House leaders that technicalities prevented the organization of such a joint committee. In this connection it was said at the White House today that the plan for such a joint committee was agreed upon by the Senate and House leaders months ago as a method of obtaining co-ordinated action by the several committees involved in prohibition enforcement. However, it was added that House leaders found that the resolution as passed by the Senate providing for such a joint committee meant bills would have to be referred to the regular House committees.

It was considered, it was said at the White House, that to obtain amendment of the Senate resolution would entail delay and that the prohibition problem could be expedited by having it referred to the regular committees. It was emphasized that the only interest the White House has in the whole subject is expedition of legislation and to that end is willing to adapt itself entirely to the wishes of the House leaders in any methods they may adopt for speedy consideration of legislation. The President, it was added, will send the reports of the commission to the House Monday and will place at its disposal the various administrative officials of the government.

SPEED EXPECTED

The House, it is forecast, will act speedily on the President's recommendations. Now that it has succeeded in its patent object to dodge all responsibility for initiating enforcement legislation—in view of the approaching elections—it is felt that it will be willing to give Mr. Hoover whatever he may ask for in the interest of enforcement. The measures, however, are likely to be delayed in the Senate by the tariff bill, but there is every indication that, having escaped original responsibility for the legislation, Congress will enact it as speedily as possible.

Leaders of the House were quick today to deny any intention of embarrassing the administration by refusing to adopt the Senate resolution for the proposed joint committee. Speaker Longworth, who yesterday was quoted as saying that the "House leaders decided that they do not believe in a joint committee which would take preliminary jurisdiction from the committees of the House," said today he desired to make it clear there was no breach of prohibition policy between House Republican leaders and the President.

BACK OF PRESIDENT

"The majority party of the House stands firm in its support of the President upon all measures which he deems necessary for the proper enforcement of all laws of the United States," Mr. Longworth said.

Representative Tilson, majority leader of the House, also was surprised by interpretation of the action of the leaders.

"So far as I have been able to learn there is no opposition whatever to the transfers desired by the President," he said. "There has been some difference as to the procedure in passing the legislation. These differences of opinion revolve around the question of jurisdiction of the several committees of the House, but I repeat there has been no objection raised so far as I have learned to carrying out the wishes of the President. The method of doing it is a matter of detail, and does not go to the substance of the matter at all. Whether the legislation is handled by a joint select committee, or by the regular standing committees of the House, it will be done."

Weather Forces Miss Earhart to Abandon Plane

ALBUQUERQUE (N. M.) Jan. 10. (AP)—Amelia Earhart, noted aviatrix, was forced to change from plane to train here tonight in order to continue her eastward trip after bad weather had caused her to return to the airport a little more than an hour after her take-off today.

After an overnight stay here Miss Earhart and her secretary, Miss Norah Asterlund, took off early in the afternoon but were forced to return because of bad weather.

It is expected a T.A.T. pilot will fly her ship, a fast cabin monoplane, east as soon as the weather allows. Miss Earhart is en route to Pittsburgh.

TRAIN KILLS AUTOIST

PETALUMA, Jan. 10. (AP)—Frank Shaver, 40 years of age, was injured fatally and Willis Bonham was less seriously hurt tonight, when a Northwestern Pacific train smashed into their automobile at a grade crossing two miles from here.

DOWRY OF PRINCESS LARGE

Bride of Italian Crown Prince Has $6,500,000 to Add to Husband's Large Estate

ROME, Jan. 10. (AP)—Princess Marie Jose of Belgium, who on Wednesday became the bride of Crown Prince Humbert, brought as her dowry, it was said in diplomatic circles today, 50,000,000 Belgian francs, or about $6,500,000.

This, together with the Crown Prince's private properties, including Racconigi Castle, which by itself is one of the largest estates in the world, forms such a substantial patrimony as to give the newlyweds an independent status equal to, if not surpassing, that of most European royalties.

King Victor Emanuel, father of Prince Humbert, is reputed to be the wealthiest man in all Italy.

The Prince and Princess this morning heard 30,000 Roman school children acclaim them and 6000 greet them in song in the statue-lined Piazzi di Siena, in the great park known as the Villa Umberto Primo. At the conclusion of the songfest the youngsters marched by the royal stand and each deposited flowers in honor of the young couple.

Princess Marie Jose evidently was touched by the moving tribute and she smiled and patted the cheeks of some of the young donors and kissed one or two of the girls. The children were all uniformed, the girls in white with blue ties and white berets adorned with the colors of the city of Rome, and the boys in blue shirts with white collars and sailors' caps.

CHINA'S RECORD COLD SLAYING THOUSANDS

PEIPING (China) Jan. 10. (AP)—Half of China for days has been experiencing the severest cold in sixty years with the dead numbering thousands and with tens of thousands suffering cruelly from lack of shelter.

Undernourished populations in the districts where famine had followed crop failures last summer were hard hit and many died in the hovels into which they crawled in vain search of warmth. The greatest mortality from the wintry blasts was in the Suiyuan district of northern Shansi and Inner Mongolia, where it was estimated that 15,000 undernourished persons, most of them aged and children, were dead from exposure.

In the town of Pengchen 2500 were frozen to death. In Sahsien another 2000 died, while in Paotowchen 800 succumbed to the cold.

Honan Province reported the coldest weather since 1870, with below-zero temperatures reported in the three Wuhan cities in Hupeh Province. The Han River was filled with blocks of ice which crushed thousands of junks and drowned hundreds of persons.

The Rengo News Agency said 700 soldiers were frozen during the movement of the Second Army. Bodies were sent back to Hankow in freight trains where soldiers and relatives were summoned by the beating of gongs to come to the railroad yards and take charge of the dead.

In Peiping the police reported 167 men and forty-one women found dead since Monday, while in Hankow, Wurhang and Hanyang 100 persons have died within two days.

WARMER WEATHER PREDICTION CHEERS

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 10. (AP)—Somewhat cheered by general predictions for slightly warmer weather the Southwest, still swept by zero and subzero temperatures, tonight continued to battle record-breaking snowdrifts.

The season's worst blizzard, which has taken a toll of thirteen lives, seemed reluctant to release its icy grip. Snow flurries continued to fall here and there.

Highways generally were open, however, and trains and busses were running on nearly normal schedule.

Although the mercury was expected to tumble downward again before morning, Missouri Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Northern Texas were promised some relief later in the day.

NEW MEXICO'S SECOND DEATH FROM COLD

LAS VEGAS (N. M.) Jan. 10. (AP) The second death in New Mexico this winter resulting from subzero temperatures was reported today when the frozen body of an unidentified man was found three miles west of Las Vegas on Highway No. 66.

The body was apparently that of a tramp who had frozen last night while asleep. There was no evidence of death by violence.

WOMAN FLAYS SENATE GROUP

KING UNINTERESTED

Asked today if he will appear before the committee, Senator King said: "I have no interest in the matter. I don't know anything about it."

When Mrs. Jones's statement charging the committee with playing politics was read, she was asked if she meant that Senator Robinson, Republican, Indiana, also intended to "create political difficulties for President Hoover."

"That is the answer you want me to make," she told Senator Walsh.

"No, no," he replied. "I want you to say yes or no."

"I refuse to answer it," she asserted. "You want me to answer it so the newspapers will publish it."

"Very well. You refuse to answer it," replied Walsh.

Walsh then read the reference to whitewashing activities of the domestic sugar interests.

"Do you want to know what I mean by that?" she demanded.

"No," Walsh told her.

"No. See, You want nothing about that in the newspapers. That is the reason."

"EXCUSE TO CAPITULATE"

The statement added that "perhaps the lobby committee is looking for an excuse to capitulate to the politically powerful domestic sugar interests."

Questioned about the statement, Mrs. Jones told Walsh she was afraid "you will not get up on the floor of the Senate and make a fight for low tariff."

"Perhaps you will be disappointed, then," Walsh told her.

"I hope so," she replied.

Later Walsh said he "resented very much" the statement that the committee had acted with any desire "except to develop the facts on both sides."

"That was my opinion yesterday and it was my opinion this morning," she replied. "I might change my mind."

Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, asked her if she knew of the "colloquy that took place yesterday between a Senator supporting an increase in the sugar tariff and a member of this committee who is opposing any increase in the sugar tariff."

Mrs. Jones replied that if that were true, her statement was not justified. She promised to make an investigation.

SOUND FILM DISCUSSED BY WARNER

Producer Speaks to League of Penwomen in Session at Washington

BY a "Times" Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—Before an audience of 400 religious, educational and social leaders, Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., Los Angeles, told here today the story of the birth of sound motion pictures. Before his address he was in conference for a half-hour with President Hoover.

Mr. Warner was the guest of the League of American Penwomen and was accompanied by Albert S. Howson, head of the Warner Brothers scenario department, who told of the development of a new story technique, made necessary by the conjunction of sound and vision on the screen.

"The next five years," Mr. Warner said, "will make the motion-picture miracles of the past decade, vivid as they have been, seem only a preparatory period. The absolute perfection of synchronization is here. While we are bringing the present proved inventions to a constantly higher plane of performance the mechanical brains of the producing companies are concentrating on such problems as full natural color and the three-dimensional film. The latter will make the screen seem not a flat surface but a complete room or countryside, with perspective in all its true values."

"The industry has now come to the point," he continued, "of serving audiences of 115,000,000 weekly in the United States and 130,000,000 abroad. With this steadily increasing influence over recreational hours of millions has grown a corresponding responsibility, and we have not shirked it.

"The realization of this responsibility resulted early in 1922 in the engagement of Will H. Hays to serve as a channel of contact and information for the industry with responsible public groups. At no time," he added, "has the industry been content with a box office standard of success. Counsel from hundreds of religious, civic and educational leaders has been sought, and facilities of the industry have been put at the disposal of all socially minded groups demonstrating willingness to work toward public support of the best in pictures."

Dry, Low Heels His Running Gear

CHICAGO, Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—High heels and hootch are the twin banes confronting the old U.S.A., according to J. H. Kirby, who has announced his intention of running in the April primary for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator.

Kirby is a farmer living near Petersburg and has been known as "High Heels" Kirby since he served a term in the Legislature a dozen years ago and tried to put over a bill providing severe penalties for wearers of high heels.

RESERVE BOARD CHANGES URGED

Chamber's Survey Would End Treasury Dominance

Secretary's Removal from Chairmanship Asked

Bankers' Power and Salary Increases Favored

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—Removal of the Secretary of the Treasury from the chairmanship of the Federal Reserve Board in favor of the governor of the board was advocated today in a committee report accompanying a referendum submitted to its membership by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The questions upon which 1700 business organizations were asked to vote also included recommendations that flow of bank credit into speculative channels be restricted, but without prescription by Congress of precise methods to be followed, and that a uniform rate of rediscount for all reserve banks is "unsuited to our regional system and to the diversity of business conditions."

NINETEEN QUESTIONS

Nineteen questions were presented in the referendum, which was compiled by fifty leaders in business, labor and agriculture after a year's study, which the chamber said is "probably the most extensive examination of the country's central banking system ever undertaken."

The report said the results, which are to be made public on February 24, next, will, in effect, "determine the policies of organized business toward the reserve system."

Relatively few of the recommendations favor changes in the Federal Reserve Act itself, and in no instance is there insistence upon immediate legislation.

POWER FOR GOVERNOR

"Instead, there is emphasis," the report said, "upon the importance of a capable and politically independent management and upon the wisdom of permitting the system to develop improvements in practice."

Urging removal of the Treasury head from the dominant place on the board, the committee said the position of governor should be enhanced, and added that "the board cannot possibly be expected to meet the anticipation of the framers of the Reserve Act while it continues to include the Secretary of the Treasury as its chairman, overshadowing the governor."

"Indeed," the report continued, "we are convinced of the inadvisability of including the Secretary of the Treasury as a member of the board.

TREASURY OVERSHADOWS

"It is hardly going too far to say that since the establishment of the Reserve system, the Treasury Department to a considerable extent has overshadowed the board and has tended, consciously or unconsciously, to reduce the board to the status of a departmental bureau."

The committee proposed that the salaries of board members be increased from $12 000 to a minimum of $30,000 annually for the governor and $25,000 for other members.

Recommendations also were made that the feasibility of divorcing the office of the Comptroller of the Currency from the Treasury Department and bringing it under the purview of the Federal Reserve Board be considered.

Entering into the widespread discussion of broker's loans, the committee urged that in determining the system's credit policies, Federal Reserve authorities, with co-operation of the member banks, should endeavor to restrict the flow of bank credit into speculative channels when such flow is likely to produce an immediate or prospective strain on the reserve of member banks.

This would be accomplished, however, without prescription by Congress of the methods to be followed.

Seventy students escaped injury as Mrs. Hannah Matchin, principal, marched them out of the building, which was burned to the ground. Only six desks were saved from the flames. Total loss is estimated at $18,000.

Our Fathers' Faith is Dead
In What Can We Believe?
THE acids of modern thought have eaten into the traditional religious beliefs to such an extent that whether we like it or not we are compelled to abandon them in many fields. The result is that multitudes of men are confused and know not where to turn for those guiding principles that will give value and meaning to their lives.
In "A Preface to Morals" Walter Lippmann has found the situation squarely and has offered an answer worthy the earnest consideration of thinking men. E. Burdette Backus will discuss this book in a series of three addresses beginning at 10:50 A.M. at the First Unitarian Church, West 8th St. just east of Vermont. Music by double quartet from the A Capella Choir of U.C.L.A. You are cordially invited to attend.

NOOSE AVENGES FOLSOM'S RIOT

Two More Convicts Hanged For Slaying Inmate

Burke Silent as He Walks to Meet His Doom

Gregg Talks to Warder and Turnkeys of Prison

FOLSOM PRISON, Jan. 10. (AP)—With the execution of Walter E. Burke and James Gregg here today the State had claimed the lives of four of six men sentenced to death for the murder of Convict George Baker, one of eleven persons killed during the Folsom prison outbreak on Thanksgiving Day, 1927. Burke was dropped through the gallows floor at 9:04:50 a.m. and was pronounced dead at 9:17:30 a.m. Gregg was dropped at 9:21 a.m., and was declared dead at 9:43 a.m.

Burke went to his death without a word. He walked down the 200-foot alleyway with Warden Smith, Turnkey Nief and Assistant Turnkey Richmond without a change in facial expression. He stared at the large crowd of witnesses gathered outside the door of the execution chamber and mounted the gallows steps unwavering.

MORE PHILOSOPHICAL

Gregg, on the other hand, went to his death far more philosophically and in an apparent better frame of mind than had Anthony Brown and Roy Stokes, who were hanged last Friday, or Burke today.

As he left the cell for the walk down the corridor to the execution chamber, Gregg said to Warden Smith:

"Warden, I want you to know I held nothing against you. I played the game and lost."

As the condemned man and the guards group of guards neared the end of the walk, Gregg asked if anyone was present from Kingsburg. He was convicted in Fresno county of killing a Kingsburg constable. The warden told him he did not know.

SMILE NOT FORCED

Smiling broadly as he turned to enter the door of the death chamber, he glanced at the group of witnesses and said:

"Quite a crowd up here today."

His smile was natural, not forced.

James Gleason, better known by his alias, Eugene Crosby, will be the fifth man to hang for the riot here in 1927. He is to mount the gallows next Friday.

Albert M. Stewart, who also was condemned to die, has not had the date of his execution set. He has an appeal pending before the State Supreme Court.

Burke's body was taken to his mother, Mrs. Florence Claeghorn in Sacramento, and Gregg's remains taken to his parents in Oakland.

Both men went to their death refusing spiritual solace. Like Brown and Stokes they refused to talk with Rev. Patrick Cronin, prison chaplain, nor were they accompanied by him on the death march.

McMASTER WINS POINT BY PROTEST

Senate Committee Seat Promised to Independent After Harmony Upset

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—Senator McMaster of South Dakota, one of the rebel western independents, upset the harmony program for the Republican organization in the Senate today with a stout protest against barring him for a place on the Interstate Commerce Committee in favor of Senator Hastings of Delaware, his junior in service.

The independents have won recognition in the appointment of Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin to the powerful Finance Committee, and in other major committee assignments. With this in mind, they decided after a conference late in the day that if McMaster should be promoted the next vacancy on the Interstate Commerce Committee, they would not oppose the newly revised organization set-up.

That promise has been made to McMaster and tonight the path seemed to clear for final approval of the party's committee line-up tomorrow.

The faction-split Republicans did unite long enough at the party's conference today to elect unanimously Senator McNary, of Oregon, assistant to Senator Watson, of Indiana, as floor leader. It was Senator McNary who finally worked out the complete organization program which composed the sharp differences among the independents, the "young guard" and the old guard.

The present program places Senator LaFollette on the Finance Committee, and also gives another member from the Northwest representation on this committee—Senator Thomas of Idaho, a member of the "young guard."

Three Sailors Admit Drinking

NEW LONDON, Jan. 10. (AP)—Three more Coast Guard sailors pleaded guilty today to charges of intoxication before the general court-martial which is hearing the thirty-nine cases arising from the Thanksgiving escapade at the State pier December 29, following the seizure of the rum ship Flor-Del-Mal. Thirteen cases have been disposed of.

ARIZONA AUTHORITIES SEEK MISSING GIRLS

TUCSON (Ariz.) Jan. 10. (AP)—Helen Booth and Martha Clauch, missing from their homes here since Tuesday afternoon, are the objects of a widespread search by city and county authorities here. Both are 15 years of age. According to the police and Sheriff's office information regarding their disappearance was withheld until today because of the critical condition of the Booth girl's father, who is in the Veterans' hospital at El Paso.

KICK ON SHINS ENDS MARRIAGE VENTURE

DECREE WON BY WOMAN TRACK STAR

Helen Filkey Testifies Husband Kicked Her for Error in Bridge Game

CHICAGO, Jan. 10. (AP)—Winner of many women's track-and-field events, Helen Filkey won out in the divorce court yesterday and will no longer be known as Mrs. Beach Van Husen Warren.

Miss Filkey, holder of many records, eloped with Warren last April; they separated December 13, last.

Among other things, she charged her husband with kicking her shins under the bridge table when she led the wrong suit and then pushing her over a chair. Then, too, on another occasion, she charged him with pushing her into a radiator and severely burning her side.

Mr. Warren's loss of his wife, however, will be a gain for the field-and-track events, as Miss Filkey, who was granted her maiden name by Judge Sabath, announced she would re-enter competition soon.

Robsion Senate Entry Delayed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—Representative Robsion of Kentucky presented himself in the Senate today to take the oath of office as Senator to succeed Frederic M. Sackett, newly appointed Ambassador to Germany, but the ceremony was postponed when the Senate refused to accept his credentials by wire.

Postponement became necessary when Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, told the Senate he would not agree to administering the oath on the basis of a telegram sent Vice-President Curtis by Gov. Sampson which purported to be Robsion's credentials.

Cotton Inquiry to be Pressed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—The Senate subcommittee investigating cotton exchanges decided today to reopen its hearing tomorrow and to summon next week the officers and records of the New York Cotton Exchange.

T. Ralph Jones, Norwalk, Va., cotton dealer, and C. E. Morley of Oklahoma City were called to appear at tomorrow's hearing.

Determining to go fully into the operations of the New York Cotton Exchange, the committee ordered the appearance here Monday of the manager and auditor of the New York exchange, with all of their books for the last two years.

Crail Proposes Veterans' Aid

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—Creation of a veterans' home building and farm loan association was proposed in a bill today by Representative Crail, Republican, California.

Loans would range to a maximum of $5000, bearing interest at 3 per cent, and would be repayable in not more than fifteen years.

SMOOT ASSAILS NEW YORK BANK

National City's Sugar Tariff Activities Denounced

Veteran Senator Ridicules "Poor Cubans" Appeal

Speech One of Most Fiery in His Long Career

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—The controversy over the sugar tariff raged in the Senate today with both Republicans and Democrats demanding an increased duty and a leader of the Republican independents contending for retention of the present levy.

After disclaiming the making of specific charges against the National City Bank, Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, declared an investigation of the methods employed by that institution in "gaining control" of many Cuban sugar mills would establish information "which the stockholders of that company and the public are entitled to know."

INSINCERITY CHARGED

In one of his most vigorous speeches of nearly three decades in the Senate, the veteran chairman of the Finance Committee denounced the New York banking house for disseminating "propaganda" against an increase in our sugar tariff because they assert it will be harmful to the "poor Cubans."

"The insincerity of their interest in the Cuban people," he asserted, "is obvious when we remember that they had no hesitancy in putting the 'thumb screws' upon them when the opportunity presented."

Senator La Follette, Republican independent, of Wisconsin, in a lengthy address, opposed the proposed increase in duty in the pending bill from 1.76 to 2.20 cents a pound on Cuban raw sugar on the ground that it would place a great burden on consumers, benefit American sugar farmers but little, increase the profits of sugar growers in American insular possessions and fail to increase domestic production.

VOTE DELAYED

Senator Broussard, Democrat, Louisiana, the only other speaker, urged adoption of the House rate of 2.40 cents against Cuba, he said the Coca Cola Company and an association of soft-drink bottlers had paid for telegrams to members of Congress from soft-drink dealers over the country protesting against a raise in duty, and that one of these dealers in Linden, La., had "forged" the names of housewives in that community to telegrams of this nature.

Indications at the close of the day's arguments were that a vote would not be reached on the sugar item before Tuesday. A session was called for tomorrow, although this usually is a Senate holiday.

Waving his arms and walking up and down the center aisles of the chamber, Senator Smoot amazed his colleagues with the vitality he displayed in ripping into "propagandists" against a higher sugar levy.

"Having acquired large sugar holdings in Cuba," he said, "the National City Bank would like to see the domestic sugar industry destroyed so that larger profits from its foreign investments might accrue."

Public Finances Jury Quiz Likely in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—An impending grand jury investigation into the asserted padded pay roll and account - juggling charges hurled around the City Hall with the advent of the new Board of Supervisors, is outstanding tonight in several developments of a situation which owes its status to the rumpus raised over the Pasadena rose parade junket.

Angelo Rossi, former Supervisor, returned to office at the last election and now head of the new Finance Committee, declared publicly that the committee has uncovered an apparent deficit of $50,465.67 in the publicity and advertising fund, from which Supervisors draw their funds for trips at the city's expense. At the same time, Rossi said a thorough investigation is going forward as to the status of city employees in various departments, and declared the condition of the funds in the Streets Committee is "far from satisfactory."

BLACKSTONE'S REIGN AT END

"What Does He Know About Today's Problems?" Asks University's Law Dean

CHICAGO, Jan. 10. (AP)—As far as the college of law at Northwestern University is concerned, the reign of Blackstone over the legal world is ended.

"Blackstone's day is not our day," declared Dean Leon Green, "and his law cannot be our law."

Together with Blackstone will go other Alpha stars of the traditional legal firmament, notably Littleton and Coke.

"The move means," said Dr. Walter Dill Scott, "that the lawyer will become a social scientist." Dr. Scott and Dr. Green have announced that $6,500,000 will be spent during the next five years to accomplish the revolution.

PROBLEMS DIFFERENT

"What," asked Dean Green, "does Blackstone know of our problems? What does he know about zoning or subdivisions, or streets and assessments, or traffic signals, or of our philosophic venture of prohibition?

"In Blackstone's day legal problems were settled in courts. Today most of them are settled out of courts, or in the commissions and boards which our changing government has set up arbitrarily to take the place of courts. I refer to the Interstate Commerce Commission, for example, the Federal Reserve Board, the workmen's compensation boards and the informal traffic courts. In one instance that I know of in the East a prosecutor settled 90 per cent of his cases himself in his offices, others were disposed of by the court informally and only three cases were actually tried in a whole year."

HOW ABOUT AIR RIGHTS?

Blackstone and his contemporaries, Dean Green pointed out, certainly could not conceive any such thing as property rights upon a portion of the air, such as occur in the ownership of co-operative apartments. The old law was that the owner of a space upon the surface of the earth also owned everything above that space, into the immeasurable sky.

"Our purpose," Dean Green added, "is to try to teach our students from now on about the world as it and the law as it fits this world. We do not intend to cut away from history and the prophets. We intend to use them for what they are worth. But we intend also to carry on from where we ourselves stand."

NEWEST SOVIET AIM EXPLAINED

Moscow Party Resolution Cites Kremlin Goal

"Liquidation" of Wealthy Peasant Decided

Stalin's Ideas of Year Ago Finally Maturing

(Copyright, 1930, by the New York Times)

MOSCOW, Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—A resolution just adopted by the Moscow Communist party committee, which is second only to the Central party committee in influence, is the latest outcome of M. Stalin's speech, of ten days ago, in which he reaffirmed the Socialistic aims of the Kremlin. The Communist party decision which followed that speech amplified M. Stalin's words: The Moscow resolution completes and explains the decision.

The resolution asserts that not only must the Kulak or rich peasant, as a class, be "liquidated," but that "this process must imply the basic liquidation of the part being taken by private capital in commerce." (The word "liquidation" has a peculiar and violent meaning in Russia: For example, the newspaper headlines say, "Red army liquidates White Guard bandits.")

NEW IDEA MATURING

Thus M. Stalin's new militant Communism as conceived a year or more ago is maturing. And so it now appears that instead of the new economic policy being on the point of abrupt burial, it is, as M. Stalin has declared, reaching the culmination of the revisionary process which has been operating for the last six or seven years.

In 1921 Lenin, a great opportunist, realized that militant Communism was for the time being impossible, and accordingly he hastened things. For a couple of years he gave private capital and individualism generally, both in town and country, comparatively free play. All the time he kept saying it was only a temporary measure, an expedient, and that he did not admit Socialism was beaten.

ROPE'S END REACHED

The N.E.P. (New Economy Policy) men, or private traders in Russia, thus received a long rope, but in the end it has been used to strangle them. Christmas Eve of 1929 may be fixed as the date when the "N.E.P. mania," which had filled Moscow with gambling dens, cabarets, brothels and bejeweled newly rich, but nevertheless had fulfilled Lenin's purpose of restarting the frozen wheels of industry and commerce, met its first brutal check. On that night M. Djerjinski, who then was the grim chief of the Russian Cheka, raided Moscow's largest and brightest cabarets and arrested a score or more of spectators on divers charges. It was Lenin's answer to the world and to his doubting followers.

CABARETS GONE

There are no cabarets in Moscow now—no gambling dens, no brothels. And those left among the N.E.P. men are being "liquidated." It has taken years and has caused bitter fights in the Communist party—the Trotzkyist opposition, for instance, which had of course, personal grounds, but really meant that Trotzky was trying to go too fast and do things which the Communist party wanted and which it subsequently has achieved to a great extent but for which M. Stalin rightly saw the time was then not yet ripe.

To coin a new word from an old model, one might say there had now begun in Russia the "Rep" or "revised economic policy" to replace the "Nep." The Nep was a pure experiment, an enforced jump in the dark room from the Communist point of view. The Rep is the deliberate and conscious use of the convenient features of the Nep to serve the purposes of militant Communism, which resumes its place as the guiding policy of the soviet state.

RADIO HEAD TO ACT ON PROFANITY

Attention Will be Given Protests on Asserted Language of Station Owner

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—A promise that attention will be given to protests against the use of asserted profane language over radio station KWKH at Shreveport, La., was given today to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee by Chairman Robinson of the Radio Commission.

Robinson, who appeared before the committee as a witness on the Cousens communications bill, told Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, that the commission had a sworn statement as to language being used.

Dill has been voicing protests on the Senate floor against the station, which is operated by W. K. Henderson.

Dill observed that the situation he complained of had been going on for some time and that it was "getting worse lately," adding he is anxious to know why the commission has not taken action.

Robinson said that Henderson had been "on the carpet" within the last year, but he had proved an audience of 160,000 wanted the station continued.

The radio chairman also said that two Senators and several Representatives had testified Henderson is not guilty of using the language he is accused of.

STANDARD OIL HAS BIRTHDAY

Leaders Celebrate Sixtieth Anniversary in Cleveland

Rockefeller Conveys Best Wishes in Sound Film

More Than 200 Listen to Founder's Greetings

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10. (AP)—More than 200 outstanding leaders in the oil industries of the United States celebrated here tonight the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the Standard Oil Company by John D. Rockefeller, Sr., and his former associates. Mr. Rockefeller, spending the winter at Ormond Beach, Fla., was unable to be present, but a talking picture of him conveyed a personal greeting to those assembled.

It was the founding of the Standard Oil Company sixty years ago that was the beginning of the high attainments of the present oil industry and the stroke that made Rockefeller at one time the richest man in the country. From that fortune he is known to have given more than $750,000,000 to science and charity to further the world's fight for a better and healthier race.

Joining in the tribute to Rockefeller, the "Oil King," tonight were representatives from all of the Standard Oil companies which have grown out of the riginal firm, and from many of their large competitors. The celebration was arranged by W. T. Holliday, president of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio.

Although now past 90 years of age, Mr. Rockefeller as shown in the special talking picture, appeared to be in excellent health. He was shown walking in front of his Ormond Beach home, and then reading a letter addressed to Mr. Holliday, conveying his greetings to tonight's gathering. In conclusion, the first great figure of the oil world smiled happily and waved cheerfully toward the camera.

Silver Imports Embargo Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—Senator Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, in a statement placed in the Congressional Record today expressed the view that the price of silver presents a question of international concern and in his opinion the one remedy for the situation would be an embargo on the importation of silver except for refining and export purposes.

"This is a drastic measure and the government may hesitate to undertake it," Pittman said, "but the conditions seem to require drastic measures."

GERMANS REPLY TO FRENCH PLAN

Minor Changes Suggested in Sanction Clause

Favorable Answer Speeds Hague Conference

Frequency of Moratorium Issue Debated

[Copyright, 1930, Chicago Tribune.]

THE HAGUE, Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—The German draft in reply to Premier Tardieu's proposed text of a sanction clause was handed to the French delegation this evening. The German answer has been approved by the Berlin Cabinet, and it is reported that it is favorable to the French thesis, although certain minor changes are suggested.

In view of this progress on one of the most ticklish points at issue hopes are revived for an early ending of the conference.

It was stated tonight that Philip Snowden, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, suggested night sessions and working all day long Sunday to complete the protocol and to iron out other questions hanging fire.

MORATORIUM PROBLEM

It is proposed to instruct the bankers, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Jackson Reynolds, Melvin Traylor and others, to continue pourparlers among themselves wherever they choose for completing the organization of the international bank and adjourn the Austrian and Hungarian reparations to a later date in Paris. The Bulgarian indemnity is practically settled on a basis of $2,000,000 per annum.

The question of the frequency with which the moratoriums can be granted Germany cropped up today at the conference for final settlement of reparations, although it was believed that this was settled by the Young plan. This new problem now constitutes one of the most difficult obstacles before the big six.

Germany is entitled to cease paying reparations any time the transfer of huge sums threatens to weaken the par value of the mark or cause a financial or economic crisis, thus rendering it impossible to pay. The Allies agree to this provided the period does not exceed two years, but declare that at the end of that period Berlin must begin paying regularly, and also must make up the sum it has fallen behind.

GERMAN ATTITUDE

The Germans state, however, that an annuity or two missed through moratorium shall be tacked on the end of the whole schedule of thirty-seven years and paid afterward.

The French declare that Germany cannot possibly obtain a second moratorium until after it has cleared up any initial suspension of payments, but Berlin representatives retort that if at any time conditions warrant they are entitled to a lapse.

ROCKEFELLERS OUST RAILROAD

Public No Longer Can Travel Through Estate of Oil King

TARRYTOWN (N. Y.) Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—The Rockefeller family, it was learned today, have at last won the final victory in a fight which they have been carrying on for twenty years to have removed the branch of the New York Central Railroad which runs through Pocantico Hills. The victory has cost the Rockefellers, father and son, $3,000,000. News of it came today in an announcement by the railroad management that it had awarded a contract to the Walsh Construction Company of Davenport, Iowa, to relocate the section of the Putnam Division which now runs through the 800-acre Rockefeller estate between East View and Briar Cliff. The new road will run along the Saw Mill River to the west of Pocantico Hills.

IT'S ALL FOR SALE IN MARKET PLACE

Let Us Go, Senor, to Mexico City's Shopping Center

The new Mexico, the Mexico of Calles, Portes Gil and President-elect Ortiz Rubio and United States Ambassador Morrow, is playing an important role and will play a more important one in new world affairs. It is a different Mexico; how different is told in a series of articles of which this is the fifth. Another will be published in an early issue.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 10. (NANA) What would you have, senor, now that you wish to go shopping here in the sun-bleached capital of the sky? An antique blade from Toledo, a bunch of radishes, a kilo of charcoal, a used carburetor, an original Van Dyck or a pound of tripe? No matter.

If you desire fashionable goods at American prices, fixed prices, go to El Centro, the great department store, where half the potential floor space has been sacrificed for the inclusion of a patio, a courtyard within, covered, in this case, with a vast canopy of stained glass, the five stories, cut through, rising in a tier of balconies, over the bannisters of which beautiful rugs are displayed.

But American prices are rather too much in Mexico. One can get the goods cheaper if he knows where and how to bargain. In El Centro, perhaps, one must help pay for that patio and skylight, both conventional necessities. Extravagant, senor? What, with such beautiful glass, such subtly tinted sunshine, such a vista of hazy air? No, no, senor.

YOUR NOSE KNOWS

Close your mouth, wrap your top coat tightly around you to protect your clothes and purse, and dive into one of the swarming streets that lead to the city market. Only six or seven blocks of approach and you are in the congested and odorous center of it.

Retail stores line the street. But they are almost concealed by rows of portable booths set down at the edges of the sidewalks, and smaller merchants carry or set their trays between stores and booths.

Some of them spread goods in the streets, when motor cars are not passing, so that the shopper must play hop-scotch to escape stepping on house dresses, bolts of cloth, little piles of new peas and ancient beans, sprinklings of peppers, infants' garments, second-hand monkey wrenches, and pottery dishes of things steaming with ruddy charcoal and red with spice.

What jostling hordes of dark humans, some almost naked, some in filthy burlap and ragged cotton, some in silk and broadcloth. One rubs shoulders with the professor and the burden bearer, the sad-faced senora with somber and expensive dress, the toothless beggar woman crying for pennies.

TINSEL BALLS FOR SALE

Tiny children, who knew a bath only at birth, tug at the coat-tails of the well-dressed shopper. Won't you buy a beautiful little Christmas ball, senor, glistening with tinsel, bright with colored glass, thin as tissue?

In the intersection stands the ever-present patrolman, mounted on his footstool, head above the crowd. Otherwise, one would never see him, so dense is the throng.

At times it seems that every member of the crowd is a merchant. What would you? A pair of cheap socks or a good substantial coffin for only 5 pesos? An alarm clock, the second hand of which wiggles the trunk of a black elephant standing among green palms on the face? Or would you prefer the clock with the kicking donkey and the somersaulting peon? They both make the time of day very attractive.

There are potatoes, 3 American cents for a pound, piled up like the stones of an Aztec pyramid; radishes, a vast bunch for a few pennies! Do you have difficulty firing your charcoal, charcoal brought down on burro back from the green mountains to sell at 3½ cents a pound? Then buy this tiny bundle of pitch faggots, oily, yellow and redolent. Only the price of an American postage stamp.

The voices rise. Sugared brown bread, senor, in bizarre shapes to please the eyes. It is cheap, my friend. From this gigantic basket sample these oranges, big as the head of an infant. A handful of withered peppers, purple and red. Chiles of many colors. Fine fish, that advertise themselves.

Drink from the great glass coolers filled with ice-cold liquids the colors of the rainbow. Exquisite. Come, senor. It is of a price so cheap as to embarrass you. Come. You never can sleep nights, having passed up such a delightful beverage at so debased a price.

INDEED, MORE WONDERFUL

What? Is the crowd abandoning the booth where the ridiculously cheap frijoles are for sale? Indeed, because here is a sight more wonderful than the twin volcanoes, Popo and Ixxy, mountains of strange and marvelous beautiful volcanoes which the sun sets over the bone-colored city of the ancient Aztecs.

Behold the little boy with the intellectual dogs, which, at his command, leap through colored hoops, stand on their hind feet and pyramid themselves. Bravo! Here, my exceedingly interesting friend, is 5 centavos for your skill and patience with those five yellow curs.

As marvelous, senor, as those dogs is the bearded Indian with the shrewd twinkling eyes who, through some occult means, evidently has conveyed human ideas to the minute brain of a cageful of canaries.

"Come," says he, "and tell this lovely woman's fortune."

SUCH A CANARY!

A canary flutters from the cage, flies to the tray on the tripod and from it selects a tiny envelope, which it conveys in its bill to the woman beautiful by virtue of her 5 centavos. It flutters before her until she plucks the envelope from the intelligent bill. She is to be wealthy and well married. Bravo, canary! The canary, stimulated by applause, returns to the tray, picks up a black celluloid doll, and deposits it in a bathtub, a rare sight in miniature or otherwise for hundreds of persons in the vast market place.

There, in front of the booths where innumerable varieties of spices are sold, sits the accomplished

"What would you name, senor?"

"What would you have, senor?"

beggar, he of useless hands and legs. He is spinning the top-like cog wheels of a watch, spinning them with his tongue. He presses his face to the flagstone, mouths the top, sits up and ejects it with his tongue. It spins for a minute. He can wind a real top with his teeth and his lips and cast it as cleverly as a schoolboy on a playground. Surely, senor, such a high achievement deserves the gratuity of a dime.

YES, RUSTY NAILS, TOO

Chestnuts, roasting in a tin skillet over a charcoal stove? Or would you prefer a bundle of old notes, issued by a provisional government, forgotten except for a monument somewhere in the maze of monumenta in the City of Mexico? A basket of rusty nails? Here is the place to buy them. Nails or old bolts, used saws or Aztec idols.

Pass gently, lest you shove the man carrying the great basket of caramels on his head. What is this fragrance in the midst of the great smell? Flowers made of the skin of eggs and perfumed with attar of roses. One peso, senor, for a flower that will be dewy and sweet for six months. Wear this semiternal flower in your buttonhole. The senoritas will look upon you with palpitating heart.

Beautiful and dirty market place! Scrapes and tomatoes, wicker bird cages and looking-glasses, opals and cabbages, green and pink silk, short sections of green sugar cane, armor and ice-cream cones! Merchandise spread out over an area of six square blocks, merchandise sailing on trays, trodden underfoot, trundled in carts! What would you, senor? Cheap, very cheap.

FARES SLASHED BY T.A.T.

Radical Reduction in Los Angeles-New York Air Rates Announced to be Effective Tuesday

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (AP)—C. M. Keys, president of the Transcontinental Air Transport-Maddux Air Lines, tonight announced a radical reduction in rates on the forty-eight-hour service between New York and Los Angeles which the company operates in conjunction with the Pennsylvania and Santa Fe railroads.

The new rate, Keys said, is lower than that on the extra-fare trains, with Pullmans, across the country.

The new fare to Los Angeles from New York is $159.92, a reduction of $107.50 from the former rate and less than half of the tariff charged when the service was first opened last July.

The announcement said that a rate of 5 cents per mile will go into effect next Tuesday between all cities at which T.A.T.-Maddux planes make regular stops on its transcontinental lines, a cut from an average mileage tariff of 12 cents.

FARE CUT RECOMMENDED BY COL. LINDBERGH

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, chairman of the technical committee of T.A.T. and aeronautic engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad, recommended that a radical immediate reduction be made in transcontinental fares following a two weeks' inspection of the system, it was learned here last night.

"In my capacity as technical adviser I recommended to the board of directors a rate reduction," Col. Lindbergh stated last night at the home of J. L. Maddux, president of T.A.T.-Maddux Airlines of the western division. The statement followed a conference between Col. Lindbergh, Maddux and H. W. Beck, vice-president in charge of traffic for this division.

"I do not know the amount the directors plan to cut fares, but I recommended that the reduction be a radical one," Col. Lindbergh declared.

"This recommendation is the result of the close inspection I made over the entire system."

At the outset, T.A.T. has been equipped to handle four times the number of passengers it is transporting, it was pointed out by Beck.

"This places the cost of air-rail transportation from coast to coast below that of train fare exclusively," Beck pointed out.

He estimated that at prevailing prices on fast trains to the East the total fare, exclusive of meals, is $161.13, $1.21 more than the new air-rail rate. He said Col. Lindbergh's decision was influenced by the success the Pacific Coast line has had in attracting more persons to air travel by approximating railroad fares on the Los Angeles-San Francisco runs of the system.

It was reported here that Western Air Express also is contemplating a fare reduction on its eastern air-rail system.

Fear of Rise in Fire Insurance Rates Allayed

HANFORD, Jan. 10.—Fire Chief S. D. Logan allayed the fears of property owners today by assuring them that there is no immediate likelihood of an increase in fire insurance rates as result of the recent suggestions by the Board of Fire Underwriters that certain replacements be made in the city's pumping plant, which supplies the Holley system with its water pressure for fire-fighting. Other suggestions also were made.

Chief Logan said today that the suggestions were made as covering a period of years and they will be met. The system does not have to be scrapped, he said, and the City Council is expected to provide for considerable improvements next year. He pointed out that the city needs a pumper truck to serve as auxiliary to the Holley pressure system and believes that this will be provided before any rise in insurance rates is permitted.

Peach and Fig Plans Approved

FRESNO, Jan. 10. (AP)—Members of the board of directors today approved the plans of the management of the California Peach and Fig Growers' Association for the refinancing of the association, it was announced by E. I. Feemster, president.

The management, Feemster stated, was instructed to proceed with the arrangement of details as rapidly as possible with a view toward presenting the plan to the Federal Farm Board at an early date.

ARMY PLANES REACH DULUTH

"Arctic Patrol" Group Lands on Ice in Bay

Transport and Radio Aids Reported Missing

Machines Believed Down at Some Lake Port

DULUTH (Minn.) Jan. 10. (AP)—Completing the first leg of the 3500-mile test flight from Mt. Clemens, Mich., to Spokane, Wash., in fast time, eighteen army planes arrived on St. Louis Bay in Duluth at 3:30 p.m. today. Three transport planes and the radio plane, scheduled to leave Selfridge Field at Mt. Clemens this morning with the "arctic patrol," had not arrived at 6 p.m. and Maj. Ralph Royce, flight commander, believed the planes had stopped at some Michigan lake port city.

The radio and transport planes were delayed in taking off this morning and a report was received here that they had landed at Munising, Mich. However, Maj. Royce had received no report as to the whereabouts of the planes.

TRIP UNEVENTFUL

The entire trip from Selfridge Field to Duluth was made without incident, Maj. Royce said, adding that the flight from St. Ignace, Mich., to Duluth, a distance of 340 miles, was made in three hours and fifteen minutes. The planes landed at St. Ignace shortly before noon after leaving Selfridge Field at 8:10 a.m., Maj. Royce reported. They left St. Ignace at 1 p.m.

No definite time has been set for the take-off from here Saturday morning, Maj. Royce said tonight, as he is awaiting word from the transport planes. He was unable to say whether the pursuit planes would take off without the transport ships. The second leg of the flight is scheduled from here to Minot, N. D., with a noon stop at Grand Forks.

Delayed two days on account of unfavorable weather conditions, the "arctic patrol" found good weather conditions along the route today.

NEW DEVICES TESTED

Maj. Royce reported the weather as favorable to determine the mobility of the planes and also to test numerous recently developed devices designed to facilitate winter flying, the main purpose of the flight.

Hundreds of persons swarmed on to the ice of St. Louis Bay to greet the "arctic patrol," but no difficulty was had by the pilots in landing.

The planes are scheduled to leave Minot for a 700-mile trip to Great Falls, Mont., Sunday, and Spokane, the western end of the journey, is the fourth day's objective. Two days will be spent at Spokane and the return trip will be made over a slightly more southerly route. It is scheduled to take four days. Maj. Royce and the seventeen pilots here tonight were guests at a banquet given by Duluth city officials and the local Chamber of Commerce.

WILL ASKS PROOF OF DEATH

New Yorker Provides Precautions Against Possibility of Being Buried Alive

NEW YORK Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—Apparently obsessed with the fear that he might be buried alive, the late Henry Solomon provided in his will for extraordinary precautions to have it determined beyond any doubt that he was dead.

This was revealed today when the will, together with a tax appraisal showing that his fortune was almost $300,000, was filed in Manhattan Surrogate's Court.

Solomon, who died December 18, 1928, stipulated that after his supposed death, adrenalin was to be injected into his heart. If that failed to revive him his body was to remain untouched and unconfined for three days with proper guards to make sure nothing was done which might "hurt" him.

"Then before I am embalmed," the extraordinary document continues, "I direct that two competent physicians shall have certified that the decomposition of my body has surely commenced. My last wish is that the directions be carried out to the letter to prevent any doubt as to my being dead."

These unique requirements were faithfully carried out.

PRISONER TAKES PET INTO CELL

"Jail Me, Jail My Dog," Motto of Bakersfield Man Arrested at Tulare

TULARE, Jan. 10.—"Jail me, jail my dog" appeared to be the sentiment of Harvey Scearing, Bakersfield real-estate salesman, arrested on a charge of drunkenness, after the car in which he was an occupant had figured in a crash near the southern city limits. Scearing refused to enter the City Jail unless accompanied by his dog.

Asserting that he had never been separated from his dog and declaring that the weather was too chilly for the canine to remain on the city streets, Scearing insisted that the animal be placed in the cell with him.

The police acceded to his request, and the dog went to jail with his master on a charge of vagrancy.

SEVERANCE OF DANZIG BEMOANED

Germans Observe Date With Expressions of Loyalty to Fatherland

DANZIG (Danzig Free State) Jan. 10. (AP)—Today, the tenth anniversary of the "forcible" severance of Danzig from the German fatherland, was kept as a day of mourning by the overwhelmingly German population of the city. It was made occasion for patriotic addresses and articles in the press in which hopes of ultimate reunion were revived.

The papers recalled the declaration by Poland's first Premier, Ignace Jan Paderewski, in 1918, that "Danzig's occupation will be Poland's aim." They emphasized that colonization of the Danzig port and railways is making continuous headway and that Danzig's financial affairs have become increasingly dependent upon Poland's overlordship while competition of the new Polish port, Gynia, constitutes a growing menace to Danzig prosperity.

BERLIN, Jan. 10. (AP)—The East German League, observing the tenth anniversary of severance of Danzig from Germany, today issued a manifesto recalling "the robbery of almost the entire provinces of Posen and West Prussia for the benefit of Poland."

The manifesto appealed to all Germans to pledge themselves never to rest until "these stolen territories are peacefully restored to Germany."

DAM RIGHT RULE SETS PRECEDENT

Calaveras County Judge Says East Bay District May Condemn Lodi Property

SAN ANDREAS, Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—Superior Judge Smith of Calaveras county today handed down a decision holding that the East Bay municipal utility district has the right to condemn property owned by the City of Lodi lying below the East Bay dam on the Mokelumne River. In riparian rights history the decision is said to be as important as that rendered in the Herminghaus case, when the court decided for holders on the San Joaquin River that water could not be diverted from a stream by appropriators at the expense of landholders adjacent to the stream.

The City of Lodi sought an injunction after acquiring the property in question to prevent the East Bay from using the $20,000,000 dam, contending the dam interfered with the city's riparian rights. When the injunction petition was filed the East Bay sought to condemn the property involved. Whereupon the City of Lodi attempted to invoke the State law, which declares that, under certain conditions, one municipality may not condemn property owned by another municipality.

Judge Smith denied the injunction when he granted the East Bay a condemnation trial, scheduled to start the 20th inst.

JAZZ BAND GIMMICKS RULED OUT AS MUSIC

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—It has long been suspected that saxophones, ukuleles, derby-hatted trumpets and other noise-making machines commonly employed by jazz bands cannot be classed as "musical instruments," but until today there never has been an official ruling on the point.

The United States Customs Court took a slap at one of the commonest of these instruments when it ruled "temple blocks" are not musical instruments, even if they are utilized only by jazz bands.

In case you don't recall readily what "temple blocks" are they're those gimmicks they stick in the horns of cornets and trombones to provide the "boop-a-doop-doop" noises.

The court ruled when a shipment came in. As musical instruments they would have had to pay a duty of 40 per cent, but as "manufactured articles of wood not especially provided for" they pay only 33 1-3 per cent. Hence the decision.

A CHUCKLE FOR EVERYBODY

THE SON OF TARZAN

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

As the leopard leaped for the great ape, Meriem gasped in surprise and horror, not for the impending fate of Akut but for the boy's. A minute before he had angrily struck his strange companion. Now with drawn knife the youth leaped far out, and as the leopard was in the very act of sinking fangs into Akut's back, the Killer landed full upon the leopard's shoulders. The cat halted in mid-air, missing the ape by but a hair's breadth.

With horrid snarls it rolled on its back, clutching and clawing in an effort to dislodge the antagonist who was biting at its neck and knifing its sides. Akut had sprung into the tree with agility little short of marvelous in so heavy a beast. But when he saw what was going on below him, personal differences were forgotten and he dropped to the aid of his human companion. The result was a battle royal as the three rolled in the underbrush.

Shriekin., snarling and growlings rent the jungle air. It was the boy's knife which finally decided the fight. As the fierce feline shuddered convulsively and gave its final breath, Korak and the ape faced each other over its prostrate carcass. Korak pointed to the girl. "Leave her alone, Akut, she is mine!" The ape grunted, blinked his little eyes and turned to the body of the leopard. Standing erect on it he threw out his great chest.

Raising his face skyward, he gave voice to so horrid a scream that the girl shuddered. I was the victory cry of the bull ape that ha. made a kill. The boy looked on in silence; then he leaped into the tree again to the girl's side. Akut presently rejoined them and busied himself licking his wounds. For many months after this, the strange life of the three went on unmarked by any unusual occurrences.

HUNTINGTON PARK, Jan. 10.—Quadruped, as well as biped, pedestrians suffered heavily in the paths of motor vehicles here during the year 1929. Fifty-eight dogs met their deaths on local streets beneath automobiles during that period, according to a report compiled by Police Officer Henry Haddon.

He further reports that 258 canines were disposed of at the city pound while thirty-eight more were picked up and returned to their respective owners.

BULLET IN HEAD LEADS TO INQUIRY

Man Under Surveillance Pending Investigation of Death at Jacumba

JACUMBA, Jan. 10. — With a bullet wound in his head, the body of Ed Chambers was found in his apartment here today. Suspicious circumstances under which the body was found caused Coroner Kelly to notify attaches of the Sheriff's office, who left San Diego for this mountain resort to open an investigation.

Meager information received by the Coroner indicated that another man, whose identity is unknown at present, was in the apartment with Chambers. This man told officials that he did not hear the shot which ended Chambers's life. This man is being held under surveillance pending arrival of officials from San Diego.

Chambers is district agent for the Union Oil Company at Jacumba, officials here said. He is the son of "Mother" Chambers, County Jail matron, and brother-in-law of Frank Jennings, constable at El Cajon.

Drains Refuse to Retain Drink of Bad Liquor

VENTURA, Jan. 10.—While this community was revelling in a flood from the heavens, the Courthouse was going through an entirely different kind of flood. A clogged drainage system was held responsible for the deluge which arrived early this morning in the boiler-room in the basement.

Deputy sheriffs, taking advantage of the storm, broke up some 1000 gallons of confiscated liquor and dumped the contents into a drain at the rear of the Courthouse. But the drain, evidently feeling indignant at having the stuff poured down its throat without being consulted beforehand, coughed up a good share of the liquid and deposited it on the floor of the boiler-room.

At 1 p.m. today the first-floor corridors were reeking with "alcoholic ether."

Now the janitor faces the unpleasant problem of remedying the disaster.

Philip Davis Risks Life to Bring Him Out of Tank

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Jan. 10. George McKinzey, 40 years of age, was killed at 10 a.m. today and Philip Davis, 40, almost lost his life in trying to save his fellow-worker. McKinzey was cleaning the interior of a large refining tank when he was overcome by gases from the oil in the tank. Davis, truck driver, found McKinzey unconscious in the tank. Davis went in after his friend, and he, too, was overcome. A third worker reported the accident and, in putting forth the effort to save the other two, was almost overcome himself.

Responding to the alarm, the fire department got the men out of the tank and by the use of an inhalator saved the life of Davis, but could not restore McKinzey. Davis was taken to the Santa Ana Valley Hospital, where it is reported that he will recover.

Two fire squads responded with two inhalators and the men responsible for working over the men and saving of a life are: Fire Chief Sargent, Capts. H. L. Hibler and D. E. Burry, and R. F. Patrick, D. K. Clapp, A. E. Rafferty, C. E. Mathews, L. E. Hill, Henry Wiegart and G. M. Clark.

SCHOOL BUILDINGS NEEDED

Chaffey Union District Voters to Decide Whether to Issue Bonds or be Taxed Direct for $450,000

ONTARIO, Jan. 10.—Voters of Chaffey Union School District are to make the decision how $450,000 will be raised to provide new buildings to care for the rapidly increasing enrollment in Chaffey High and Junior College. Directors of the school district in a statement issued today declared there are two methods of providing the money, one by bond issue and the other by direct taxation.

Should the voters defeat the bond issue a direct tax will be assessed against the Chaffey district public, according to the directors' statement. Date for submitting the bond issue question has not yet been set, but the issue will be in two divisions, $250,000 for junior college purposes and $200,000 for high school purposes.

The direct tax method would provide $60,000 a year for the next five years.

The school district directors have had under consideration for several months the program for building structures to care for the rapid growth of the school and junior college. They have come to the conclusion that the program must be launched at once to meet the demands for additional rooms and equipment.

At present every available room in the several buildings on the campus is crowded to capacity and a large residence near the school is used for teaching purposes.

Girl Wife Not Murdered; She Goes to Parents

PASADENA, Jan. 10.—After digging up the basement of a bungalow at 1840 Glenn avenue, today, detectives abandoned the theory that Frances Villalobez, 19-year-old missing wife of Tony Villalobez, had been murdered, and asserted that they have information indicating she is safe with her parents in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Villalobez disappeared Monday after threatening several times to return to her parents, the husband reported.

When neighbors reported to the detectives that they had seen Villalobez digging in his basement, they went to the home early today armed with picks and shovels, and dug up every foot of the basement floor without discovering any clews.

Detective Lieutenant Henry Collins reported this afternoon that Mrs. Villalobez told neighbors a week ago that she feared she was to be returned to the Sonoma State Home and planned to "go away for a while."

Chief of Detectives Charles A. Betts states that the girl - wife apparently took her clothes and other belongings with her and that no tangible evidence that she was slain has been unearthed.

Judge White ruled that there was insufficient evidence to convict, when Hanley failed to identify clothing assertedly worn by Chancey, as being a part of the stolen property.

Chancey admitted that he had purchased some clothing from negroes in Los Angeles and that although he had assisted them in removing several sample cases to a house in the Central-avenue district in Los Angeles, that he did not know the goods had been stolen.

EDISON DENIES LAXNESS

Responsibility for Sulphur Mountain Blaze Not Admitted by Power-Line Owners

VENTURA, Jan. 10.—Answers to ten of the persons and organizations that filed damage suits over the Sulphur Mountain fire, September 10, last, have been filed in the Superior Court by the Southern California Edison Company.

The answers were filed in the suits of Richfield Oil Company of California, W. C. Harvey, Charles L. Bach, Edith H. Hoffman, Effie S. Hobson, Grace Hobson Smith and Fred W. Smith, Hobson Brothers' Packing Company, Ojai Oil Company, Santa Maria Crude Oil Company, Merchants' Fire Assurance Corporation of New York, Pyramid Oil Company, and the Gosnell Company.

The power company denies charges of carelessness and negligence, and asserts that its lines over the burned area were "constructed and maintained in a proper and workmanlike manner."

The charge that on the day the fire started the company's line was transmitting 11,000 volts of electricity is admitted, but the firm states that when the line broke, the power was shut off in time for fire fighters to get to the blaze, and that the ends of the broken wire did not fall on "trees, shrubbery, brush and stance."

the earth, or any other subs-

The charge that the broken lines started the fire near the Santa Paula Creek is denied.

The power company also contends that in each suit the money asked as damages was placed at too high a figure for the worth of the property destroyed.

Redlands-Highlands Fruit Exchange Re-elects C. H. Clock to Presidency

REDLANDS, Jan. 10. — C. H. Clock, Orange grower, was re-elected president of the Redlands-Highland Fruit Exchange at the annual meeting with representatives of the fourteen packing-houses in the exchange attending. "During the past year the membership of the Redlands-Highland Fruit Exchange has been increased by the affiliation of the East Highlands Fruit Association and Charles T. Paine. Both of these shippers control fine blocks of foothill fruit, aside from this our associations in general have added to their membership."

PIPE LINE URGED TO FIGHT FIRES

Engineers Advise Building at Tricounties Meeting

Experts Suggest Forty-Mile Length Into Mountains

Would Protect Watershed of San Bernardino Range

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 10.—Laying of approximately forty miles of pipe line into the remote parts of the priceless Santa Ana River water shed of the San Bernardino Mountains to aid suppression of forest fires was yesterday recommended to the annual meeting of the Tricounties reforestation committee in the Mission Inn. The session witnessed the re-election of Francis Cuttle, chairman, who this month starts upon the twenty-fifth year in this important post.

Recommendation of the mountain water system, believed to be one of the most colossal and vital projects ever proposed for the Santa Ana River water shed, from which three counties derive domestic and irrigation water, was made to the committee assembly by a committee of four engineers and forestry officials, who made an exhaustive investigation of its possibilities at the instance of the organization.

AMPLE PRESSURE ASSURED

The committee's report visioned the laying of approximately forty miles of pipe to strategic points and extending later all lines and distributing hoses into canyons and along ridges. Ample pressure is available to carry the water from altitudinous points throughout the entire proposed system, the committee, consisting of George A. Atwood, J. J. Prendergast, C. E. Johnson and J. E. Elliott, declared.

Following the filing of the favorable report, Chairman Cuttle was instructed to communicate with Federal and State government officials regarding the undertaking.

PROTECTION WORTH COST

While admitting that the cost of installing a system would be enormous, the committeemen declared that "It would be a great protection to the very life of our country, and a protection for all time to come." They recommended that "the cost of laying should be left to a competent board of engineers, appointed by the government."

"We have plenty of water that is available at an altitude which will give all the pressure necessary to fight any fire that may occur, and to keep the pipes constantly filled with water," the report continues. "We do not think it would be necessary to bury the pipe underneath the surface of the ground. It could be laid above ground, and kept painted at a nominal cost, to prevent deterioration from the outside, and kept filled with water to protect the inside. The pipe should last for many years."

The property adjoins the estate of Mrs. Harry French Knight and runs up into the mountains in the rear of the Peter Jackson and Chris Holmes estates, totaling 1300 acres, and coming down to a connection with the Swift property, which the Dreyfus real-estate firm subdivided some years ago and has been selling off to home owners.

SANTA ANA, Jan. 10.—About 100 war-time buddies of Company L, One Hundred and Sixtieth Infantry, Fortieth Division, Santa Ana unit of the National Guard, which served overseas, will gather at the Legion Hall Saturday night for their annual reunion which, members said, would largely take on the nature of a "chin fest" concerning the stirring days of the conflict. Large delegations are expected from San Luis Obispo, Ventura and Santa Barbara. The company was stationed at San Luis Obispo before being dispatched overseas.

Probably the most conspicuous figure in the gathering will be Col. Nelson Holderman, former captain of the company, now superintendent of the Veterans' Hospital at Yountville. The veterans will be called upon Saturday to elect a president of their association, Jack Fisher, the former president, having succumbed here this year to the effects of gas inhaled in action. Fisher ranked with Holderman as the most-decorated Santa Anan to return from the war. Louis Riehl of Tustin is secretary.

The reunion will get off to a good start with a dinner served at 7 p.m. by the American Legion Auxiliary.

The banquet is open to all men who served with Company L during the Spanish War, the border expedition or the World War, and to all men who served in any unit with Col. Holderman.

JOHNNY ROGERS SMASHES PAR TO LEAD OPEN FIELD

SINGING IN THE RAIN---FOR $10,000

Johnny Rogers of Denver, Colo., upper right, who scored a 70 over Riviera's soggy fairways yesterday, is singing lower than the rest as he leads a brilliant Los Angeles open field by two strokes. Al Espinosa of Chicago, upper left, is also doing a bit of yodeling after tying for second place with a 72. The two Smith boys, Horton and Mac, can still smile. Mac, the defending champion, bagged a 77, while the younger Smith is sitting pretty with a 73. In the center is shown the courageous gallery, which braved rain and wind to see the boys finish at the eighteenth hole. [Photos by Paul Strite, Times Staff photographer]

Horton Smith and Diegel Turn in Cards of 73; "Mac" Smith Gets 77 While Hagen Has an 81

BY EDWARD LAWRENCE

Putting his broad shoulders behind every screaming wood and iron that rose in majestic flight over the rain-spattered mud-stained terrain of the Riviera Country Club, a dark horse from the far reaches of the Rocky Mountains, Johnny Rogers of Denver, Colo., yesterday led a golfing legion in the first round of the fifth annual Los Angeles $10,000 open championship with a par scorching round of 34-36—70.

Damp fairways that proved out watery graves for others, offered little impediment to two brilliant Californians, Al Espinosa, now of Chicago, and Charles Seaver, 19-year-old star of the Los Angeles Country Club, who shot nearly perfect golf to tie for second place, with scores of 72, one over par.

LEO DIEGEL

Neck and neck after eighteen soggy holes, only three shots behind the leader, came a trio of America's "golfing greats."

DIEGEL TIES HORTON SMITH

They were Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., leading tournament winner of 1929-1930; Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente, national P.G.A. champion, and one of the nation's most promising young professionals, Denny Shute of Columbus, O.

(AP) — Arthur (the Great) Shires chalked up his fourth ring victory out of five starts here tonight by gaining a four-round technical knockout over bald-headed Al Spohrer, Boston Braves catcher. Spohrer struck a defensive pose in the second minute of the opening round and held it to the end.

The great one started swinging his wild right hooks at the opening bell and kept right on top of the National League catcher, who clinched by grabbing Shires about the legs. Spohrer's only blows were rights to the kidneys during clinches.

After Spohrer was dropped for nine by a right hook to the head in the second, he ceased trying and was content to remain in a neutral corner with his arm protecting his face and bald head. The relaxation lasted for more than a minute.

Spohrer became aggressive enough to cut Shires's lower lip with a light left jab in the third

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (AP)—Fighting back fiercely from the valley of the fog, the ancient wood chopper from Spain, grim Paulino Uscudun, carved a few chunks from the middle of lanky Otto Van Porat tonight and won a fight after 16,000 of the faithful were ready to start singing the old Beezark's swan song.

THE DENVER DARK HORSE

NO GOLF tournament would be any kind of a success without a dark horse, and rather than see the annual $10,000 open develop into a flop Mr. Johnny Rogers of Denver, Colo., stepped into the breach in noble fashion at Riviera yesterday.

Without even batting an eye Mr. Rogers, who was just one of the field when the boys were raffled off in the Calcutta pool the other night, led the big field of golf stars to the tape at the end of the first round with a dazzling 70.

Viewed in the light of the distressing conditions which prevailed—damp, soggy fairways, rain-drenched greens which were both fast and slow, etc.—Mr. Rogers's feat comes under the head of the phenomenal.

In the first round of the $10,000 open last year Tommy Armour reeled off a 69, but the day was perfect—sun shining, no wind, hard, fast fairways. In short the conditions were ideal.

But they weren't yesterday, and that is why Mr. Rogers's achievement is the more amazing.

Of course, there is another reason for Mr. Rogers's astonishing performance which doesn't show on the surface of things.

Mr. Rogers hails from Denver, and if you know your Denver it is that metropolis in Colorado known as the mile-high city.

It was there that the national A.A.U. track-and-field championships were held last summer, and some of the boys

Occidental Basketballers Open Southern Conference Cage Season at Redlands To

TIGERS BATTLE BULLDOG TEAM

Pomona and Caltech Clash in Another Feature

La Verne vs. Whittier is Third Game on Card

Bengals Expect Tough Tilt from Rivals Tonight

Occidental and Redlands clash tonight in the feature of a trio of basketball contests which open the official 1930 Southern California Conference race for title honors. Pomona and Caltech are a second pairing and La Verne and Whittier are a third.

The Tigers meet the Bulldogs in only one tilt this year, and that on the opponent's court. The Redlands team is rated the strongest court foe in the circuit by Coach Eddie Kienholz and his Oxy charges, and to win the conference honors again the Tigers must hurdle these hoopsters playing on the latter's home floor.

Last year, the Bulldogs invaded Alumni gym at Eagle Rock and carried the home team to a 29-26 extra-period tussle before taking defeat by the Bengals. The same team is back again at Redlands this year minus one regular, the remaining four veterans being intact, and having played seven consecutive seasons of basketball together from high school.

Kienholz will start his strongest combination in which Perry Seiler, at center, Capt. E. Roche and Abe Elliott, guards, and Forwards Dick Glover and Larry Dinster are included. Walt Murray, guard; John Gusto vich, center, and other veteran subs are sure to see action in the contest. The Bulldogs must halt the scoring of the Oxy forwards to take a victory.

La Verne, which finished second in the circuit last year, is again strong on the court, led by Wybright and Thomasson. With this flashy pair, the Leopards figure to defeat the Poets on their home floor. The Poet stars are Walker, Ograin and Reitz. Pomona figures to score handily over the Engineers at the Pasadena court. Al Putnam and Hadfield, Sagehen stars of 1929, again lead the Pomona attack.

Coach Kienholz at Occidental, who recently piloted a championship football eleven, will attempt to add the cage crown to his honors for a second season also.

PAULINO WINS VON PORAT GO

Eastern-Jawed schoolmaster from Norway poured right-hand volleys into the Spaniard's head until the glaring lights above must have been swimming in a sea of fireworks. Valley after valley crashed into the rock-ribbed chin of the Spaniard.

One long right hand after another sank deep in his body. His nose poured crimson, his left eye turned red and lumps stood out all over his weatherbeaten countenance.

Then with his countrymen at the ringside shouting feeble vivas and a dozen bells clanging in his ears, this game old rock of the Pyrenees started to fight. He walked straight into Von Porat's cool, raking drives, shook his head and slashed at Otto's body, until the big Norwegian faltered and the tide turned.

From the end of the third round on, when the boys in the derbies were wagering he would not go another round, Paulino won all there was to the fight with the exception of the fourth session. That was even, though the Spaniard's margin in several other rounds was but little, still he never did quit showing that Von Porat is one man he can whip.

It was hardly an exciting battle from the fourth round on and the chief interest of the spectators was in Uzcudun's unsurpassed gameness. He clung leather eternally at Von Porat's head and body from close range, lacking his thick skull alongside the Norwegian's until the gallery folk whistled for help and more action, but that style of milling turned the trick.

Paulino belied Otto's midsection until the tall slugger from Chicago bent down to the height of the squat Basque. He drove Von Porat around the ring in a desperate, furious attack that wilted Otto as the rounds piled up and left him at the close a beaten but unmarked fighter.

During the first three rounds, Von Porat punished the Spaniard as few have done in long years of milling. As the Basque, not up to his best form, piled in behind arms wrapped about his head, Otto stepped back and ripped right uppercuts under that defense. Von Porat is recognized as one of the stiffest of all the heavyweight punchers.

There was no time when Von Porat seemed in danger of hitting the floor, but his defeat was decisive. It marked Paulino's third victory over the Norwegian.

Campbell in Another Kayo Ring Victory

Frankie Campbell, Southern California's latest heavyweight knockout sensation, made short work of Jack Beasley in the main event at the Hollywood American Legion last night, putting Beasley flat on his back after one minute and one second of fighting in the first round.

Campbell landed but three punches to score his tenth straight kayo. The first blow was a right to the jaw that made Beasley's knees buckle. Campbell circled around his opponent and shot over a left, followed with a right and Beasley was on the floor, out.

In the six-round semi-wind-up Charley Sullivan won the nod over Willie Low. The six-round special event went to young Tommy McGough over Clayton Gouyd.

Cecil Guysel took the decision over Sailor Henderson in one of the four-round preliminaries, while Dutch Easter won on a technical knockout over Frankie Manns in the third round of the opener.

FAIRFAX IS WINNER OVER GARFIELD FIVE

Fairfax clinched the Minor City League basketball title for the second consecutive time when they handed the Garfield Bulldogs an artistic 30-to-14 trimming in a game played at Whittier.

The score at the end of the first half was 25 to 8 in favor of the Colonials. Coach Ross Bowen then sent in a flock of substitutes for the third period. The Bulldogs managed to hold their own against them, despite the fact that they were playing without their captain and high-point man, Bud Mohrman.

The Fairfax babes gave the Bulldogs a terrible shellacking in the preliminary game. The score was 35 to 8.

INGLEWOOD NOSED OUT BY SAN PEDRO CAGERS

The San Pedro High School basketball team nosed out the Inglewood quintet, 23 to 22, yesterday in the Inglewood gym. The Pirates assumed a 1-point lead during the first half and held it to the end of the game. Anyone of the dozens of shots thrown at the basket by the Inglewood lads would have meant victory if they had registered. Since they didn't, the San Pedro team is now considered one of the strongest teams in the Bay League.

The Inglewood babes won the preliminary game from the Pirate babes by a 29-to-14 score.

How to Play a Chip Shot

BY SOL METZGER

Glenna Collett advises golfers to turn the club toe in slightly toward the hole when playing a chip. The object is to impart overspin to the ball in order to make it roll farther. She says that she plays her chips with enough loft to carry the ball in the air for half of its journey to the hole.

By turning in the toe of one's club when addressing the ball you plan to strike it with the club in this position when contact is made. Now let us see just what this turning in of the toe of the clubhead does.

First, it lessens the loft on the club, just as turning it out increases the loft. That means you give the ball less trajectory than if struck normally with the same club.

It also means that you impart both overspin and pull to the rolling ball because your clubface somewhat smothers it at contact. So, allow for this slight pull if you follow this advice, an allowance that only practice will determine the exactness of.

Unless you understand the pivot you cannot hope to shoot good golf. Sol Metzger has a new illustrated leaflet which he will send to anyone wishing it. Address Sol Metzger, in care of The Times, and inclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Layton Again Cue Champion

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (AP)—Johnny Layton of St. Louis retained his national three-cushion billiards championship tonight by defeating Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, 50 to 43, in the deciding match of the championship tournament.

Allan Hall of St. Louis today made good his bid for second-place tie in the national three-cushion billiard tournament. The 28-year-old Missourian assured himself of a tie with Reiselt when he defeated Augie Kleckhefer, 50 to 31, in forty-one innings.

SPEEDWAY MOTOR RACES POSTPONED

No races tomorrow at the American Legion Speedway.

That was the announcement made by Dr. Fred Loring of the Legion contest board. Loring stated that the track on Alhambra Boulevard was in good shape but that prospects of future downpours and the condition of the parking grounds made it unadvisable to hold the opening program of 1930 this Sunday.

Therefore, the 100-lap Durant cup race and the other events of the program which will inaugurate the new year of speed competition, have been set back until the 19th inst., one week from tomorrow.

MERCURY TRACK WORKOUT CALLED

Boyd Comstock, track-and-field commissioner at the Los Angeles Athletic Club, has cabled for another Mercury workout at Bovard Field, U.S.C., this afternoon. The opening L.A.A.C. track drill last Saturday found a number of old-timers on hand ready for a big season. Charley Paddock led the veterans who turned out for practice. Many more of the veterans as well as newcomers are expected today. The Mercuries are training for the first big meet of the season, that against Stanford University at Palo Alto March 1.

EMANUEL LOSES BOUT

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 10. (AP)—Dick Daniels, young Minneapolis heavyweight, punched aggressively to win over Armand Emanuel, San Francisco, in a ten-round bout here tonight. Daniels's flood of straight punches won him the majority of rounds, with Emanuel unable to retaliate with any serious punishment.

BOSCIANO VICTOR

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10. (AP)—Nick Bosciano, Baltimore, punched his way to a ten-round decision over Gene Buffalo, Philadelphia, here tonight. Bosciano weighed 151 and Buffalo 154 1-2.

FARRELL DEFIES ELEMENTS

Former Open Champion Appears on Course Without Coat for First Round of $10,000 Open; Young Texas Player Holds Championship for Tough Breaks

BY RALPH HUSTON

Members of the "Big Nine" committee, directing geniuses of the fifth annual $10,000 open, were counting rain drops at the Riviera Country Club yesterday. Each additional drop meant just that much toward the necessary one-tenth of one inch of moisture, and that amount meant $2300. Naturally, they would have preferred sunshine, but since there was little, if any, sun to speak of, every little raindrop had a meaning all its own.

While the official championship will not be decided until tomorrow, Tony Butler, youthful professional from Corpus Christi, Tex., qualified for the hard - luck crown in sensational fashion, and probably will have no contestants. After splashing his way all over the golf course, including every trap, barranca and a pond on the place, Butler was in an auto smash-up on the way back to town, and had to walk something over a mile to the nearest garage. This is his first trip West for the big tournament.

Johnny Farrell, one-time open champion, defied all the elements and teed off in the midst of a downpour sans coat, sans slicker and wearing nothing over his shoulders but a shirt. His drive was a good one, however, although he wound up with a 38-38—76.

Somebody circulated a report early in the morning that Willie Hunter had gone out in 32, despite a birdie 3 on the second hole. Just when everybody had started to feel sorry for the popular Montebello professional he blazed home in a startling 34.

Waldo Crowder had the honor of being the first man off the first tee and the first contestant to finish. He had a 78.

A temporary umbrella stand was sold out in a hurry. The proprietor was practically mobbed when he announced there was only one left.

Johnny Rogers missed a two-foot putt on the eighteenth for a 69. Charley Guest sank a 30-footer for a birdie, and Craig Wood laid one three feet from the pin, for another birdie.

Chick Fraser, whom doctors gave up as a hopeless case not so long ago because of ailing feet, found the muddy going fairly good and hung up a 39-41—80. He sank a 30-foot putt on the ninth, and a 20-footer on the eighteenth.

Frank Rodia, the young Seattle pro, was two under par for the first seven holes, but blew up to take a 9 on the eighth, and got a 41-42-83, for the day.

Bob Harlowe, Walter Hagen's manager, furnished the best laugh of the day when he had to yell for somebody to identify him so he could get past the entrance guards.

Joe Kirkwood, the Australian trick-shot artist, had no difficulty with the soggy spots on the course. One of his best tricks is to sink a ball in a foot of water, and then play it out.

The intermittent showers caused a lot of trouble to the contestants. Harry Cooper and his gallery were far, far from the clubhouse in one of the heaviest downpours, and he took three successive 5's before he recovered. He had trouble with his putter and took an 81.

Harold Lloyd, Douglas Fairbanks, Owen Moore and Matt Moore were hardy galleyites, Fairbanks insisted on relating his historic feat of getting an eagle 2 on the par 4 tenth. Both Moore boys do all their golf at Riviera.

Clever Cage Play Figured

BY SOL METZGER

Down in the great open space of Texas they are as keen for basketball, which is played indoors, as for such outdoor pastimes as baseball and football. And they are on to all the stunts that are known to the game. Take Coach Fred Walkat's team at the University of Texas, a great organization that proved to be the best ever turned out by the Lone Star institution last season. They had a clever and quick working out-of-bounds play at the business end of the court.

No. 1 had the ball. Nos. 2 and 3 were the men concerned. No. 2 made a quick start to beat it for the corner and circle around B. As he did so No. 3 cut immediately behind him for the basket. You see, as No. 2 cut, his opponent B moved with him. As both were passing C as C attempted to get into the play to cover No. 2, C was simply crowded out of the picture.

A quick pass in to No. 3 from No. 1, a short dribble and a shot and the boys from 'way down were shouting loudly over another pair of points.

Bruins Stage Ring Tourney

Bruin mitt and mat men breezed through preliminary matches yesterday in the first annual University of California at Los Angeles boxing and wrestling tournament. The remainder of the matches will be held next Friday.

In the boxing bouts, the feature match of the day was in the light-heavyweight division. Tom Devlin, a star catcher at U.C.L.A. two years ago, won a decision over J. Rosenbaum in three rounds. In the 119-pound class, Roy Beatty defeated Al Tanner, Eddie Pearson succumbed to Freddy Trot, and David Tepper won from Henry Nightingale, all matches being decision affairs. In the 139-pound division, Hirsh Segal decisioned Jack Gilbertson, and Dave Orubolf and Bill Thurman fought to a draw. Thurman registered the only knockdown of the day. Matches in the other divisions will be held next Friday.

In the wrestling tournament, Lagasse threw Ridgwald in one and one-half minutes, and Drake gained a decision over Butler, in the 139 and 165-pound divisions, respectively. The feature wrestling match of the day was in the unlimited class. Homer Oliver, star 190-pound center on the fresh football team last fall, threw Dale Morgan, 200-pound guard on the grid squad, in thirty seconds.

Bruin Cinder Clash Carded

The track squad of the University of California at Los Angeles will engage in its first track meet two weeks from this afternoon, according to the Bruin athletic authorities. Glendale Junior College is scheduled to compete with the Westwood tracksters on their home field on the 25th inst.

Two other practice meets have been scheduled. The Los Angeles Junior College will be met at Westwood on February 8, and the Compton Junior College squad on March 1. Four other meets of greater importance have been scheduled as follows: Pomona at U.C.L.A. on March 8; Caltech Engineers at Pasadena on March 22; the University of Arizona squad on April 5 at Westwood, and the Fresno State Teachers' College Bulldogs on April 12 at Westwood.

GILMORE LIONS BATTLE UNION OIL PUCK SQUAD

Ted Le Roy's league-leading Gilmore Lions face another possible defeat tonight at the Winter Garden Ice Palace, when they clash with Al Claman's Union Oil Pirates in the nineteenth game of the Southern California Amateur Ice Hockey League.

The clash this evening marks the first in the second half of the race, and all clubs are expected to ask no quarter or give none for the balance of the season. There is little to choose between the Union and Gilmore forces, as both clubs have strong defenses and fast-skating forwards.

JACOB RIIS CAGE MEN CONQUER JORDAN FIVE

Jacob Riis High School's basketball teams won three out of four games from Jordan High yesterday afternoon in the Marine League, the games being played at Riess. The varsity of Riis defeated Jordan by the overwhelming score of 58 to 13; the Class B's won, 17 to 9, and the Class D's won, 13 to 12. Jordan's Class C team won by a score of 19 to 14. In the varsity game Noonan, playing forward for Riis, scored 10 points and Leon, the other forward, 12 digits.

PASADENA SIGNS NATURAL

What Manager Morrie Cohan terms as a natural for his club was signed yesterday when Charley Kaiser and Canto (T. N. T.) Robleto were matched for the main event at the Pasadena arena next Thursday night. Kaiser is making his first appearance in a local ring after a two months' lay-off. He gave Speedy Dado a real fight not long ago.

Benefit Show for Dixie Kid on Tonight

Dixie Kid, whose real name is Aaron L. Brown, is being given a benefit tonight at the Tivoli Theater on Central avenue. In his heyday Dixie was acclaimed the greatest negro welterweight of all time. Today he is 47 years of age and helpless, rendered so by rheumatism. He has no money and since his stay here has been taken care of by friends. The show tonight will present many of the colored stars of the stage and screen in specialty acts. There will be boxing exhibitions by several uptown stars, including Bert Collins, Sammy Jackson and John Lester Johnson. The show starts at 11:30 p.m.

Mary Browne Amateur Again

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (AP)—Miss Mary K. Browne, former women's tennis champion of the United States and in 1924 runner-up in the women's golf championship, today was reinstated as an amateur golfer by the executive committee of the United States Golf Association. Miss Browne, formerly of Los Angeles, but now resident at Cleveland, was declared a professional when she became a member of C. C. Pyle's touring tennis party in 1926. Her three years of probation as an amateur golfer will expire February 12.

She won the tennis championship in 1912, 1913 and 1914 and was defeated by Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd for the golf championship at Providence, R. I., in 1924.

The executive committee, through Prescott S. Bush, secretary, also announced the reinstatement of Phil Carter of Los Angeles, formerly of New York.

Robert T. Jones, Jr., was named captain of the Walker Cup team to play international matches in England in the spring. The other players will be selected later.

Jackie Fields Stops Owens

CHICAGO, Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—Jackie Fields, the world's welterweight champion, won by a technical knockout over Jimmy Owens of Oklahoma City at the Stadium tonight. Owens received a bad cut on his lip in the first round, during which he was badly outclassed. Blood continued to flow from the wound in the second round and Referee Dave Barry stopped the contest to save Owens from further unnecessary punishment.

Bruce Flowers, sharp-shooting negro lightweight from New Rochelle, N. Y., fought the rough King Tut, Minneapolis challenger for the lightweight title, to a draw in their ten-round battle in the Chicago Stadium tonight.

WOOD AFTER FIRST NET TITLE OF YEAR

Sidney Wood, the Pasadena Junior, who has been told to "keep in shape" by the United States Davis Cup selection committee for the Davis Cup trials next month, will make an attempt for his first championship of the new year, when the local youngster faces Tamio Abe, Japanese Davis Cup captain, in the men's singles final Sunday at the Midwick Country Club.

Wood thumped Bunny Austin of England in the Pacific Southwest championships recently, which was the direct cause of his being named for the trials. A victory over the Japanese internationalist, by no means improbable, would place the Southland junior even higher in the estimation of the high moguls of the eastern organization. Wood and Abe clash at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

CITY OPEN TENNIS TOURNEY TO START

The fourth annual Los Angeles open tennis championships will commence play tomorrow morning at Griffith Park playground, located at Los Feliz Boulevard and Riverside Drive. More than sixty matches are included on tomorrow's schedule, which, when finished, will complete the first round in the men's and women's singles.

Entries are still open and will remain so in the men's, women's and mixed doubles until Thursday evening at 6 o'clock, the 16th inst., when the drawings in these three events will be held at the City Recreation Department offices in the new City Hall. Play in these events will be held next week-end along with the second round of singles matches.

CATHEDRAL VARSITY WINS OVER ALUMNI

The Cathedral High School alumni were given a warm reception when they returned to the fold yesterday afternoon, and after the reception the varsity basketball squad took them on the gym floor and proceeded to wallop the daylights out of them. The final score was 404 to 12, in favor of the varsity.

Next Tuesday the Vandals will take on the El Segundo five in their first league game. The contest is billed to take place at Cathedral High.

HUSKIES NOSE OUT GONZAGA CAGERS

SPOKANE (Wash.) Jan. 10. (AP)—The University of Washington basketball team nosed out the Gonzaga Bulldogs, 24 to 22, in a sensational nonconference game here tonight. The score at half-time was tied at 11-all.

RABBIT PUNCHES

from the west coast were somewhat put out about the altitude in the longer races.

Of course, an A.A.U. track meet apparently has nothing to do with a Los Angeles $10,000 open golf tournament.

But therein lies the secret of Mr. Rogers's success.

Yesterday was just like a day in dear old Denver to Mr. Rogers. The air was nippy and biting. There was no mild California sunshine to bake the marrow in one's creaking bones and make one shed heavy sweaters and topcoats.

There were overhanging clouds, and ever and anon outbursts from the heavens.

The situation so obsessed Mr. Rogers that he actually forgot his surroundings and his companions and competitors and did just as he is accustomed to do in Denver, imagining, of course, that he was at home.

It is unfortunate that the weather man does not predict a continuation of yesterday's conditions for the duration of the tourney.

Mr. Rogers would be added to your correspondent's list of picks for top honors.

LOOK OUT FOR THE SMITHS

AS MATTERS stand now your correspondent has one of his favorites riding high in the saddle—Mr. Horton Smith, who slipped home with a 72, which is one over par.

Mr. Smith was unfortunate enough to take a five on the home hole whereas a par would have given a par 71 for the entire route. He had a tremendous drive to the eighteenth, and where the other boys of his threesome were using woods he employed an iron for his second shot. But it did him little good because he hooked into the tall uncut on the high bank to the left of the green, and was lucky to get off with a five.

One of your correspondent's other picks—Mr. MacDonald Smith, no relation to Horton nor to the cough drop brothers—had a 77 for his lap, which is something of a handicap to Mr. MacDonald Smith repeating his triumphs of the past two years in this $10,000 open tourney.

However, Mr. MacDonald Smith overcame the terrific margin of strokes which Mr. Tommy Armour hung up on his first three rounds last year and beat the former national champion to the first prize.

Mr. Armour had a 74 yesterday, which leaves him nicely situated to make a bid for the big dough when it comes time to bear down.

But your correspondent has a deep suspicion that the languid Mr. Horton Smith is the boy to watch most closely in this tourney.

He is plunk, plunking the old pill right down the fairways, and being possessed of the proper golfing temperament he is not annoyed by incidents which appear to make some of the other boys mad enough to bite nails or chew some innocent gallerylte into small pieces.

TOO COLD TO BE "HOT"

AS MATTERS stand now Mr. Rogers is the lone individual who was able to break par yesterday although several of the other boys threatened to become "hot" and do the same thing.

However, all of them fell by the wayside—several after splendid starts. For example, the Messrs. Leo Diegel, the P.G.A. champion, and Tommy Armour, former national champion, broke par on the first nine, both shooting 34, but Leo came home in 39 and Tommy in 40.

Diegel had five 3's on the outward journey.

Mr. Harold Lloyd, proprietor of the "Welcome Danger" course, joined Mr. Diegel's gallery at the tenth tee, and thereafter Mr. Diegel was in trouble of one kind and another right up to the finish.

This is not intended as a slur upon Mr. Lloyd's ability as a gallerylte because Mr. Lloyd is a perfect gentleman both on his own course and other people's courses.

But the fact remains that either Mr. Diegel was perturbed at Mr. Lloyd's presence because he has been cutting into Mr. Lloyd's racket in the fillums or he just couldn't make his approach shots behave on the second nine. Not only was Mr. Diegel unable to make any birdies, but he slipped over par on the eleventh, fifteenth and eighteenth holes.

Mr. Bobby Cruickshank, the wee Scotti who won the second Los Angeles open at El Caballero in 1927, played with Mr. Diegel and Mr. Espinosa and shot well enough to get a 74, and but for breaks on the putting greens might have scored lower. Mr. Espinosa nabbed two birdies on the last nine and came home with a neat 72 total.

This threesome had a fair-sized gallery considering the threatening weather, but the Smiths and Cluci had the biggest one. The great Walter Hagen was followed by a beggarly dozen who dropped to less than that when they saw him chip weakly to the first green and take a six that was almost a seven on the second hole.

ROGERS LEADS GOLFERS

of Detroit, and Maude Miller of Norwich, Ct.

But Riviera's cleverly designed hazards, born in the brains of George C. Thomas, Jr., and William P. (Billy) Bell, while smiling on some, frowned on many, and the toll was great.

"Mac" Smith, the defending champion, had to battle every inch of the way to score 39-38—77. Craig Wood, long-driving New Jersey youngster, and Al Watrous of Detroit, finished in the same bracket. The 74's included Bill Mehlhorn of New York and Joe Kirkwood, co-winner of the Long Beach open, and Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., had a 79. Tony Manero of New York, Catalina open champion, carded an 80.

HAGEN HAS AN 81

But the worst is yet to come. Really trying to play his best, Walter Hagen, British open champion, staggered around the course to finish with an 81. He had plenty of illustrious company, Harry Cooper, 1926 Los Angeles open champion; and Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., a fellow Ryder Cup team member, winding up with similar scores. Fred Morrison of Midwick, while playing well, had a disastrous nine on the twelfth hole to score an 82.

It is much more pleasant to write of Rogers, who played superlatively under the most adverse conditions possible. Armour's 68 last year in the first round with perfect weather prevailing was hailed as a marvelous feat, but Rogers's 70 was even finer.

And don't think for a minute that Johnny was shooting over his head. Before taking the position of professional at the Denver Country Club, where he has been for the past three years, Johnny was Pennsylvania open champion. During that period he has played little tournament competition. Last year he played in Southern California's midwinter tournaments, established a course record of 66 to win second-place money in the Long Beach open and then poked out a 69 to shatter the course mark at Sunset Fields in the qualifying round for the Los Angeles $10,000 open.

STARRED IN OPEN

This year Johnny went back to Winged Foot, and, under the trying conditions that battered down many a more noted golfer, finished eleventh in the United States open championship.

Equipped by nature with powerful shoulders and wrists of steel, Rogers can maintain a championship stride through the fairways. He is not only one of the world's longest drivers, but socks them down the middle time after time with none of the wildness that is usually found in extraordinarily long hitters.

But in giving Johnny unusual hitting ability, nature equalized the balance by dulling his putting touch. A great golfer to the greens, Rogers has three putted himself out of thousands of dollars.

Yet that was only partially the case yesterday, as a brief resume of Rogers's score will show.

Coming to the sixth hole even with par, Johnny laid his tee shot stiff to the pin and sank a four-footer for a deuce. The 490-yard, seventh, one of the trickiest holes on the course, netted another birdie, when Rogers dropped his second shot by the pin and rammed home his putt. He parred the eighth, but went one over on the ninth, when his tee shot just failed to clear a trap.

SINKS FORTY-FOOTER

On the tenth and eleventh holes, Johnny missed two five - foot putts for birdies, but made up for it on the 170-yard fourteenth hole, when he canned a forty-footer for a birdie 2. He parred the next three holes, but was short with his second on the long eighteenth hole. He chipped up and took two putts for a bogey.

The card:

Par (out)	544	343	444—35
Rogers	544	342	345—34
Par (in)	454	434	354—36—71
Rogers	454	434	355—36—70

Espinosa, born and raised at Monterey, and a well-known San Francisco pro before he decided to trek eastward, played in rare form yesterday. Al beamed on the gallery at the eighteenth green, after finishing with four pars for 36-36—72.

Pushed shots, one on the 430-yard fifth hole, another on the 445-yard thirteenth, and a missed putt on the 170-yard fourteenth, cost Espinosa a stroke each time, but they were his only misplays. On the first nine Al had eight pars, and five pars and two birdies coming in.

MRS. ESPINOSA GETS CREDIT

Mrs. Espinosa, one of the most charming personalities in golf, ranking in that respect with Mrs. Bobby Cruickshank, followed Al every step of the way, as usual, and took as much pleasure in his score as if she had played every shot. In fact, Mrs. Espinosa claims that Al's score was largely to her credit.

Espinosa's card:

(Out)	544	353	444—36
(In)	443	544	354—36—72

One of the real surprises was the fine showing of Charles Seaver. It was said that young Seaver was all washed up last fall, but it appears that he was more overgolfed than anything else. After a rest from golf while attending prep school in the East, Charley returned home for the holidays to shoot a 68 in the Long Beach open, and finish well up in that tournament.

SPECTACULAR PUTTING

Seaver's game yesterday was featured by magnificent putting. On the second hole, a difficult 445-yard, par 4, Charley's tee shot lodged behind a tree. He chipped out on the fairway and was on in three with a sixteen-foot putt left for his par. He dropped it to get out of a bad hole.

Again on eight, Seaver was in the trees and canned a twelve-foot putt for a bogey.

Starting back, after finishing the first nine 1 over, Seaver drove the edge of the 315-yard tenth hole, and was down in two putts for a birdie 2. One over par going to the 445-yard fifteenth hole, Charley sank a twenty-five-footer for a birdie 3 to put him even with par, and then finished with three pars for 36-36—72.

Seaver's card:

(Out)	544	344	354—36
(In)	355	333	354—36—72

Armour, who finished second last year after leading at the thirty-six-hole mark, started beautifully yesterday, but went 4 over par on the last four holes to finish, 34-40—74.

Armour card:

(Out)	544	343	444—34
(In)	445	436	455—40—74

Diegel had an interesting card with five 3's on the first nine, but was in trouble several times and the best he could score was 34-39—73.

Diegel's card:

(Out)	343	363	334—34
(In)	464	435	355—39—73

FINALS TOMORROW

Mister Braven Victor Dyer, well-known Times football expert, whose wife is bewailing the fate of a golf widow, followed in the footsteps of Horton Smith, Mac Smith and Henry Cluci, and in other columns of the sport section, has given a full account of their trials and tribulations.

There will be much wailing and gnashing of teeth tonight, when the field of 120, which started so bravely yesterday morning, will be cut to low 50 and ties for the final thirty-six-hole round tomorrow.

HORTON LEADS SMITH BATTLE

Young Joplin Pro in Front of Mac at Riviera

They Draw Largest Gallery in First Day's Play

Four Leaf Clover Unlucky for Henry Cuici

BY BRAVEN DYER

As was expected, MacDonald Smith, Henry Cuici and Horton Smith drew the largest gallery at the Riviera Country Club yesterday. "Mac" Smith, as defending champion, and young Horton, 1930 favorite, figured to attract those who are interested in seeing how this game of golf should be played. Little Henry Cuici, who is a dead ringer for Mahlon Chambers, one of U.S.C.'s many quarterbacks, also had his followers and responded by shooting the first nine holes in even par, while Horton went one over and "Mac" had to be content with a 39, four above perfect figures.

When they had finished eighteen holes Horton was out in front with a very fine 73. "Mac" and Henry were tied with 77's. Horton played practically perfect golf all day. He had all pars on the first nine until the final hole, when he dubbed a short pitch shot out of the rough and took a five where he ought to have had a four.

It was the same thing on the second nine. Again Horton was even par to the eighteenth. On this hole his second, an iron shot, hooked to the left and came to rest in the rough, far up on the hillside. His third went over the green to the apron. Coming back his fourth shot was too strong, leaving himself a putt of ten feet. But the sensational young star was equal to the emergency and came through one over par for the nine by sinking this putt.

PUTTING EXCELLENT

Horton's iron shots were working beautifully all afternoon and his putting was excellent. He narrowly missed birdies on several occasions. On the 560-yard eleventh, par five, Horton sank a seven-footer for his lone birdie of the round.

"Mac" Smith missed a ten-foot putt for a birdie four on the first hole and was in almost constant trouble doring the rest of the first nine. He drove to the rough on the right on the next hole and had to sacrifice a shot to get back on the fairway. At that his fifteen-foot putt rimmed the cup, but refused to go down for his par.

After getting his par on the 410-yard third, "Mac" encountered further trouble with his putter on the 345-yard par 3 fourth. Here his drive went into rough of the trap, but bounded out, only to stop in more rough outside the apron. His pitch left him a six-foot putt, which rimmed the cup, but would not go down and he was two over par with only four holes played.

The defending champion snagged his par on the next hole, but couldn't make his putter behave on the 165-yard sixth. His iron shot from the tee hit the big tree on the left of the green and dropped down on the edge of the apron. This shot might easily have gone far over the hole had it not been for the tree. After getting a nice approach, "Mac" missed a five-footer and was three over par as they teed off on the seventh.

RUNS INTO TROUBLE

Determined to put a stop to such proceedings, "Mac" holed a twelve-foot putt for his birdie 3 on the next hole, but ran into his worst trouble of the day on the 390-yard eighth. His second shot was slightly sliced into the river bed below the hole. The ball rested among a lot of rocks and "Mac" made a splendid shot out, but had to hit it so hard that it rolled on through the green. His fourth left him a ten-foot putt, which rimmed the cup as most of his previous attempts had been doing and the champion had to take a six.

Cuici's 38 on the first nine was gained with the aid of two birdies, one on the third hole and the other on the ninth. Henry was putting nicely and made some splendid recovery shots, particularly on the first two holes, where he was in trouble. The little Italian found his spoon shots behaving beautifully and was on practically every green in two well-played woods.

Both Smiths got birdie 4's on the 560-yard eleventh, but "Mac" went one over on the twelfth, when his third shot, a short pitch, left him a seven-foot putt which he missed. Horton had considerable good luck on this hole. His second was partially dubbed into the river bed. When he socked the ball out it raced straight for the hole and fortunately collided with the pin, or Horton would have been ten feet over. As it was the ball stopped almost dead and Smith got his 4.

The unlucky thirteenth saw all three take 5's, where the card called for 4's. This was due in a large measure to the trickiness of the green, which looked slow, but proved to be very fast. Horton Smith made a nice recovery shot out of the river bed here.

The short putt which Cuici missed on the twelfth evidently got under his hide for Henry went one over par on both the fourteenth and fifteenth and then took a five on the 140-yard sixteenth. Horton just missed a birdie on the 170-yard fourteenth and also on the sixteenth. "Mac's" five-foot putt on the seventeenth would not go down for a birdie, either.

If Horton Smith maintains the pace he set yesterday he will be practically unbeatable today and tomorrow. Horton is swinging as easily as ever and his putting cannot be improved upon.

"Mac," had his putter behaved or at least helped him out a little, might just as well have had a 71 or 72 yesterday. Perhaps he will get it today.

FINDS CLOVER

Cuici found a four-leaf clover after teeing off on the seventh hole, but the good luck token did him no good, for he went one over par on that very green, and then encountered no end of trouble on the second nine. Henry had a bad round in the traps, but came through with some splendid explosion shots, no easy task in the wet sand.

LA BARBA RULES FAVORITE

Bettors Give ex-Flyweight Champion 10-8 Edge Over Fernandez in Olympic's Next Show

Fidel La Barba is a 10-8 favorite over Ignacio Fernandez, hard-hitting Filipino, for their ten-round bout at the Olympic next Tuesday night in the featherweight elimination. The wagers are being made on past performances rather than on present condition.

La Barba will return from Soper's ranch tonight after his final workout in the outdoor ring where he has done all his work. George Blake went to Ojai yesterday and will return with the ex-flyweight champion.

Fans have not seen La Barba in a gymnasium since he left here to fight Kid Francis in Paris. On his home-coming La Barba went to the mountains and has roughed it to regain his health and former fighting form.

La Barba contracted a severe cold in New York just before the Kid Chocolate bout, and had never entirely recovered until he took the mountain cure. He comes back heavier, stronger and more rugged than he has ever been before.

Fernandez will take his final workout here tomorrow. The Filipino weighs around 134 pounds and is swinging his right with a vengeance in his workouts.

HUNTINGTON PARK IS VICTOR OVER VENICE

As a result of their 23-to-18 victory over Venice last night, the strong Huntington Park basketball team is regarded as a serious contender for the Bay League championship. Huntington Park went into the lead in the first quarter and stayed there until the end. Venice outplayed the Sparkians in the last quarter, but were too far behind to cause a great deal of trouble. The line-up:

HOLLYWOOD BEATS POLY IN CLOSE 28-20 TILT

Two teams, playing a mediocre brand of basketball, yesterday met on the Hollywood gym, and the team that made good its foul shots and free throws walked off the floor with a 28-20 win. That is how one would sum up the game between the Poly High basketballers and Coach Bill Paige's Hollywood High quintet, which was won by the latter five.

The Redskins, due to the stellar playing and eagle eye of Watkins, center, led the Mechanics throughout the encounter. The first quarter found the Hollywood boys leading by a lone digit, the second by two points. In the third period they increased their lead to three and the end of the game found them with an eight-point margin. Watkins copped high-point honors, collecting 12. For Poly, Gillinbeck was the high scorer, with 7 points.

In the preliminary game the Poly High lightweights, coached by "Cop" Mahoney, took the measure of the Hollywood Bees, winning by a 36-28 score. The line-ups:

Coach Johnny Buelher's Belmont basketball quintet gave the Fremont Pathfinders a 45-to-22 drubbing in the Belmont gym yesterday afternoon.

no exception. Caddy believes that the best basketball players are those who can get the casaba through the net and drills his boys accordingly. Although his teams are generally light, they make up for this by being slightly better shots than their foes and thus win a lot of games.

The U.C.L.A. mentor has lost several good men from last season, notably Dick Linthicum, Balter, Young, Smith and Woodroof, but has built a fast-moving club which now features Capt. Larry Wilds, Carl Knowles and Carl Shy. Lubin, six foot-five-inch sophomore, is playing nicely at guard with Shy. Von Hagen will be at forward tonight with Wilds.

Stanford's team includes a flock of veterans from last year, among them Capt. Harlow Rothert, Vance Fawcett, Red Berg, Red Thompson, Hawkins, Reynolds, McCandless, Jim Mears and several others. Fawcett and Hawkins played stellar roles in several games here last year. Hunt has so many good men that he switches his line-up frequently during the evening and gets splendid results.

Milt Rowley, a transfer from Ohio State, is a cinch to start in one guard berth tonight, and if injuries are still bothering Rothert, the other post will be filled by Reynolds. McCandless or Hawkins will be at center, with Fawcett and Berg as forwards.

and they rested again, after the Great Arthur had pelted him with a few harmless rights. Shires continued his wild right swings in the fourth and so many of them landed that Spohrer's advisers threw in the towel.

The capacity crowd of 18,000 jeered Shires before, during the after the performance, but he finally waved it into silence long enough to announce: "I didn't want Al Spohrer, I want Hack Wilson."

VEGETABLES IN BETTER DEMAND

Eastern Shipments Sharply Up Over Last Year

Los Angeles Dealers Place Gain at 50 Per Cent

Bad Weather in Competitive Areas Held Reason

With the eastern demand for shipments of green and bunched vegetables estimated by Los Angeles produce merchants as about 50 per cent heavier than at this time last year, Southern California produce growers will receive a substantial increase in their crop returns this year, according to information received yesterday from wholesalers and officials of the Federal fruit and vegetable division and of marketing associations.

Unfavorable weather conditions have held back the Texas early crops and this has resulted in the increased demand for Southern California produce, it was stated. Wholesalers reported heavy shipments of chicory, carrots, spinach and parsley. Prices on these vegetables are running higher than last year while parsley is bringing from $3.50 to $6 a crate, as compared to around $2.50 a crate last year.

An abnormal demand for celery is reported in this market. This was attributed partly to the fact that the lack of rainfall has retarded the Delta section crop, while in the Chula Vista area the sizes are running smaller than usual and the yield is under the original estimate. The months of February and March are usually the peak period for celery shipments from the San Diego and local district, and the recent rains will materially improve these crops.

Imperial Valley lettuce growers will undoubtedly experience one of their most profitable years from present indications. The warm weather in December was very favorable to growing while the recent cooler weather permitted the heads of lettuce to solidify, thus improving the quality. Government reports estimate the acreage in lettuce at 28,160, against 27,200 last year, while the yield per acre is estimated at 150 crates this year, against 147 crates last year, giving an estimated total of 5,715,000 crates against 4,000,800 last year.

Lettuce prices are averaging substantially above those of last year, prices for the current season thus far being from $2.75 to $3.50 a crate as contrasted to $1.75 to $3 a crate last year.

While the delayed rainfall this season has affected to greater or less degree nearly all the vegetable crops, particularly cauliflower and celery, market conditions are more than offsetting in most instances the losses due to weather conditions and with the coming of the recent rains the general outlook for Southern California producers this season is regarded as unusually favorable.

MOUNTAIN STATES IN GOOD GAIN

New Business Written by Life Risk Company Up $1,015,765 in Year

Revealing substantial progress for the year, Mountain States Life Insurance Company of Hollywood wrote $6,850,185 of new business in 1929, an increase of $1,015,765 over 1928, according to a preliminary annual report released yesterday by William L. Vernon, president.

The statement showed that $17,584,309 of insurance was in force at the close of 1929, an increase of $2,251,309. Net assets of the company are $2,103,807, as compared with $1,290,721 in 1928, a gain of $813,086. The annual premium income is now $1,062,562.

The company during the past year absorbed the Western Casualty Company of Denver and Sierra Nevada Life and Casualty Company of Oakland. Annual premium income of Western Casualty is given as $500,000 with capital and surplus of $70,000. Prior to the acquisitions of these two companies, Mountain States took over three other Nebraska, Arizona and Missouri life insurance companies.

Home offices of Western Casualty and Sierra Nevada will be moved from Denver and Oakland to the Mountain States Life Building in Hollywood about the 20th inst. A two-story annex has been constructed for their use. The absorption of the two casualty companies marked the entrance of Mountain States Life into the casualty field.

Better Tone in Retail Circles Noted in Survey

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (AP)—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

Post holiday "sales" at retail to clear stocks, a rather deliberate getting to work of industry following shutdowns for inventory, and a gradual stepping up of wholesale and jobbing trade for spring, this interspersed with some fill-in orders to round out depleted stocks, contribute the large visible features in a week that is rarely an active one, and which this year sees a rather leisurely return to normal conditions of midwinter. The warm weather has lingered in the eastern half of the country, with a slowing-up effect on sales of seasonable goods; collections have continued to lag.

Perhaps the chief outstanding feature of the week in the matter of new operations has been the better buying of steel, this mainly on account of automobile manufacturers who had been stepping up operations in December, and a like raising of steel productive operations from the low points of last year, with from 50 to 60, and in some few instances 75 per cent of capacity at work.

Weekly bank clearings $12,927,-168,000, a decrease of 14.4 per cent compared with last year.

Lead and Zinc Mine Curtails

SALT LAKE CITY (Utah) Jan. 10. (AP)—Reduction of their working forces by 60 per cent and discontinuance of the mining of zinc and lead ore were announced today by the Utah-Delaware Mining Company and the Utah Metals and Tunnel Company both of Bingham. Low prices of lead, zinc and silver were given as the reason for the curtailment, which affects about 300 men.

Both properties are operated by the International Smelting Company, a subsidiary of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company. They will continue to mine copper ore of which they are relatively small producers.

MORTGAGE GUARANTEE GETS HOUSING LOANS

Loans totalling $241,000 on old and new dwellings in Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, San Mateo, Burlingame, Redwood City, Palo Alto and Piedmont were authorized at the last meeting of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company real-estate committee, it was announced yesterday. The loans were placed through the Mortgage Guarantee Company of Los Angeles.

BANKS STILL HOLD STOCKS

Emergency Loans During Market Break Expected to Count for New Liquidation; Pressure Brought

BY EARLE E. CROWE

Well-posted speculators are still waiting for a secondary decline in the stock market prompted by the liquidation of bank loans on stocks. In Los Angeles, as several bankers report, and in other large cities as reflected through Federal Reserve statements, the banks are still carrying loans on stocks made during or shortly after the recent break which amount in the aggregate to a respectable figure. This accommodation was temporary, and the banks are pressing borrowers for payment.

What actually has happened, as Federal Reserve figures show, is the virtual transfer of marginal business from the brokerage houses to the banks directly. There has been little increase in the number of outright owners of stock. For a few days during the break margin traders responded to brokers' demands by depositing additional margin. But when the demands exhausted available funds those traders possessing borrowing capacity went to the banks and borrowed the money to buy the stocks outright. Now the banks have the stocks instead of the brokers.

LOAN TOTAL HIGHER

The total of loans on securities by members of the Federal Reserve System is considerably larger, moreover, than the peak of brokers' loans in 1929. Bank loans are approximately $7,800,000,000, which compares with the high for brokers' loans of $6,800,000,000 established in October.

Loans of this character are generally on a sixty to ninety-day basis, and many are falling due. To satisfy the obligation, the stocks on which most of these loans have been made undoubtedly will be thrown on the market, since the banks are disinclined to employ too much credit in stock loans. Prices of the stocks probably in the majority of instances are lower than at the time the loans were made, which means the borrowers merely postponed the evil day.

Prospect of this kind of liquidation continuing for a time is one potent reason for the inactivity of market sponsors and professional pools. The merest suggestion of an advance in a stock is certain to invite selling from people holding stocks on bank credit.

WILL OPEN WAY

When this secondary period of distress liquidation runs its course the market will rest in a much healthier condition. The stocks will have passed from weak to strong hands again and the way opened for a renewal of bullish operations in the stocks that merit such attention.

Most observers look for an upward trend in stock prices some time this spring, but not until the expected secondary decline has been concluded. Washington authorities, on the strength of reports made by business leaders, are understood to look for substantial trade recovery starting in April which should be forecast, under ordinary circumstances, by a rise in stock prices. Delay in the transferring of stocks from the weak to the strong holders may retard the discounting process.

If the stock market should discount April trade recovery by as small a margin of time as two months, the rise would begin in February. It is not at all certain, however, that the technical state of affairs, or other possible circumstances, would permit a February rise.

EXTRA ON DOCKET OF SHEAFFER PEN

CHICAGO, Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—Directors of the Sheaffer Pen Company will meet in February to declare an extra dividend in addition to the regular quarterly of $1 a share payable March 15, W. A. BOSTON, Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—Judge Cox in equity session of the Superior Court today appointed B. Loring Young as receiver of the United States Worsted Company, which failed to pay interest on debenture bonds issued by the Worsted company in 1923. The Old Colony Trust Company recovered a judgment of $3,463,024 against the worsted company, which it failed to pay. Mr. Young was authorized to continue the business.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (AP)—The cotton market reacted today from yesterday's advance under realizing by recent buyers who appeared to be influenced by the failure of Thursday's influences to create a point general or better sustained demand. Small private consumption figures for December and relatively easy Liverpool cables probably contributed to the selling of some 13 to 18 points from Thursday's close.

The mid-afternoon market was quiet, but rather steadier at rallies of 4 to 5 points from the lowest.

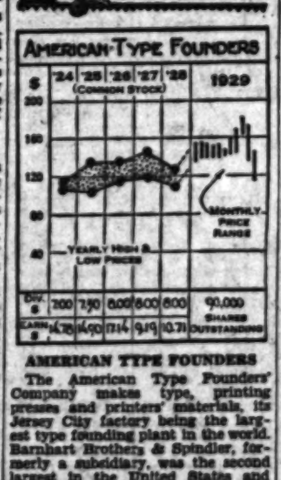
WHAT'S BEHIND YOUR STOCK



AMERICAN TYPE FOUNDERS

The American Type Founders' Company makes type, printing presses and printers' materials, its Jersey City factory being the largest type founding plant in the world. Barnhart Brothers & Spindler, formerly a subsidiary, was the second largest in the United States and was recently absorbed by the parent company. Sales offices are maintained in the principal cities in this country, and agencies handle the products in foreign fields. The company's large library of copyrighted type faces protects Type Founders from competition.

Net income for the fiscal year ended August 31, 1929, amounted to $1,729,946, or $16.11 per share on the common stock, as compared with $1,561,193, or $14.24 per share for the preceding year. CAPITALIZATION

Funded debt	$6,924,900
Preferred stock ($100 par)	4,993,600
Common stock ($100 par)	5,000,000

Current Data: It has recently been reported that since the company's policy has, in the past, been to distribute about 60 per cent of net income as dividends, the excellent earnings reported this year may bring about an increase in the rate in the near future.

STOCK MART IN DOLDRUMS

Range of Prices Narrow and Trading Interest at Low Ebb; Turn for Better Difficult to Forecast

BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR

[Copyright, 1930, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The stock market continues in a narrow groove with little interest on either side. Wednesday was the slowest day in seventeen months in the number of sales, a figure reached last on July 31, 1928, when 1,521,960 shares were traded in, as against 1,638,830 shares for Wednesday.

At the present time there is no market leader. United States Steel is getting nowhere. It's up a point or two one day and down the next. Anaconda Copper, formerly, a big leader, has lost its power. And the motor stocks are more or less listless.

Call money is cheap, averaging from 4 to 4½ per cent; bill rates are holding at from 4 to 3 7-8 per cent, and the Federal rediscount rate remains at 4½.

There has been some discussion of reducing the Federal Reserve rate to 4 per cent, but the movement of gold outside the country for the present has stopped, although gold shipments from London to Paris are still considered possible.

Many brokers have become disgusted looking at the tape and have packed their bags and gone to Palm Beach for a vacation.

In comparison with the feverish activity of October, November and December, the stock market today looks deserted.

No one yet is willing to predict when this condition will change.

Is money the driving motive of business research? Or is it fame or achievement or admiration of one's fellow-men?

Mme. Curie, codiscoverer of radium, who two months ago was presented by President Hoover with $50,000, raised by American friends to enable her to carry on her research work, recently made the statement that scientists who work for the pecuniary reward find that their "brain power will sag and become sterile." The famous woman scientist believes that curiosity is the basis of research work.

"What matters it to Einstein whether he makes money or not?" she asked. "Wealth should not be the motive and oftentimes is a bar to its continuous development."

But Mme. Curie made a plea in a recent address in Paris against making the road of the young research worker too difficult and hard. One needs to live, even though one's wants are small.

"Why not endow ability instead of buildings and universities," asked a business friend of mine in Chicago, recently, who is contemplating giving away several millions shortly.

Frankly, I like the idea, and I hope he does.

The drop in the net profits of the United Cigar Stores of America for 1928 from $8,352,000 to $4,525,000 as a result of "a different theory of accounting," which the new management, headed by George K. Morrow and his associates, insist upon, is surprising.

When a drop of almost 50 per cent, amounting to millions of dollars, can be handled in this fashion, it shows the importance of a standardized audit in the business world.

Probably no other problem confronting business is more important in developing confidence then this. With millions of stockholders being added to the lists of industrial corporations annually, the word "depreciation" should mean in every balance sheet a definite thing So should the word "reserves" and so should the words "gross" and "net" profit.

One of the best jobs that the Interstate Commerce Commission has done has been in standardizing the book-keeping of railroads. This is the great need today in the field of public utilities and likewise in the field of business.

Business confidence is the most important factor in success. An audit that is standardized and means just exactly what it says is a crying need of balance sheets today. A whole volume could be written on this subject, but the United Cigar net being cut in two by a "different theory of accounting" brings the problem sharply to public attention.

Orders for New Ford Car Heavy

DETROIT, Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—Ford Motor Company booked more than $68,000,000 worth of orders for the improved model A car throughout the United States up to the 4th inst., Edsel Ford, president, announced here today. "Production schedules at Detroit and in every branch plant in this country are being immediately increased to keep pace with the nation-wide demand," he said.

The company has on hand enough accumulated materials for the improved model which will permit a rapid expansion, Mr. Ford stated. Production of completely assembled cars was discontinued late in November while the River Rouge plant was building motors, chassis and other parts.

DEMAND ON WOOL MART IRREGULAR

Review Reports Medium Grades Lower With No Change in Finer

BOSTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say:

The demand for wool has been spotty and medium wools, influenced by the foreign markets, are quoted lower this week, although fine wools have changed hardly at all. The tariff agitation has little effect on the market.

The manufacturing position, while evidently sound, is in between seasons and not yet developed in any definite direction.

The foreign markets are opening for the post-holiday sales with prices rather in favor of the buyer, although not to the extent some thought probable. The wool growers in the primary markets are inclined to withhold wool from sale rather than accept current bids.

The trade is watching with interest the developments in the farm co-operative selling scheme.

Mohair is dull and nominal here with prices favoring the buyer abroad.

The rail and water shipments of wool from Boston from January 1, 1930, to January 9, 1930, inclusive, were 9,706,000 pounds, against 6,230,-000 pounds for the same period last year. The receipts from January 1, 1930, to January 9, 1930, inclusive, were 2,932,300 pounds, against 5,930,-000 pounds for the same period last year.

The Bulletin will publish the following quotations:

Wheat Hit by Warning From Federal Board

[illegible], Jan. 11. (AP)—Stampede selling in the initial Chicago wheat prices today followed remarks today of an official of the Federal Farm Board. He was quoted as having said he had been informed that some persons in the Northwest contemplated increase this year in hopes that the loan basis would be established when the crop was harvested. NEW YORK BOND PRICES

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (AP)—Listed bonds were faced with competition from important prospective new financing today and the structure of market prices softened a trifle. Money rates were a shade firmer, reflecting week-end readjustments by banks.

Announcement of the $150,000,000 issue of American Telephone 35-year debenture 5s at 99½ caused favorable comment in bond circles, which regarded the loan by the big utility as rather in the nature of a vote of confidence in the current market, as well as in the country's fundamental economic position. Bankers recalled that the same company's issue of bonds several years ago came just before a protracted rise in fixed income securities.

It was understood that over subscription of the current loan was virtually assured, although the books do not open until Monday, and dealings were traded "when issued" on the New York Produce Exchange's securities market during the afternoon at quotations ranging between 100¾ and 101. The listed 5s of 1960 were sold freely, touching 101 and closing half a point above that figure for a net loss of ¼.

A banking group offered $29,690,000 in states of Tennessee serial 4½s and 4¾s, priced to yield 4.40 to 4.55. This issue was purchased by a New York syndicate from Tennessee bankers.

The result of these operations was a small decline in the quotations on numerous high-grade domestic listings, which have been moving upward.

Rails met with minor realizing, part of which was profit-taking. United States governments were dull and irregularly lower.

Chesapeake and Ohio 4½s; Erie 5s; Virginia Railway 5s; Missouri, Kansas and Texas prior lien 5s; Missouri Pacific 5s; Pennsylvania general 4½s; St. Louis and Southwestern 4½s and prior lien 4s; Southern Railway general 6s and Union Pacific first 4s found lower ground, but there was some improvement in Baltimore and Ohio refunding 5s, Atchison general 4s, Rock Island general 4s and Kansas Price 6½s, Series B. The utility section group was generally firm.

Higher prices appeared in American Gas & Electric 6s, Niagara Hudson 5s and Western Electric 4s and other industrials.

Convertibles experienced a dull day, moving narrowly on small turnovers. The irregular net changes were mostly fractional.

Foreign bonds, fairly active, tended higher. Czech 7s traded in the largest volume of the group, but rose only a small fraction.

The quotations represent sales of bonds the thousands of dollars and their low and closing prices in order given. To expedite transmission, the cents is omitted when the same as the two, and both low and close the same is blank.

OIL NEWS

BY HOWARD KEGLEY

Tuesday's most interesting development in California oil circles was the announcement by the Santa Fe Gas Island Company of Santa Barbara that the Standard Oil Company of California has leased 2000 acres of State Island off the coast of Santa Cruz Island for the purpose of oil exploration. The lease did not mention the amount of bonus paid for the privilege of drilling on the submerged land, but it is understood that the Santa Cruz Island is one of the Santa Barbara group of channel islands, all of more than that city a number of thirty or forty miles. If Standard has made a geological study of the island it has found nearly all of exceptionally good area it with an exceptionally good chance of success. It is, however, highly probable that a study of the island's formations has been made by the company.

In the last ten years several of the major oil companies have leased the channel islands. One, in particular, is the Shell Oil Company, which went over Santa Cruz Island with painstakingly, but failed to find anything of sufficient promise to justify leasing and drilling.

It is presumed that Standard is prepared to make the island pay by the splendid production which operators lately have developed along the shore at Elwood, which is some distance west from Santa Barbara.

A co-operative drilling agreement between the Continental Oil Company and eight other tideland operators along the Carpinteria coast may solve one problem of conservation and serve as a means of curtailing considerable drilling activity.

Continental now is constructing docks on Tideland Permit No. 241, at a pier, and the project will be drilled about 600 feet out from the pier. This test is on a three-acre permit, and should it appear as if drilling operations on both sides, as eight other tideland permits are being utilized by a group of operators.

According to the agreement, if successful finds oil, each operator having a permit will drill at least one well, the oil to be pooled. In the meantime, small drilling outfits are being assembled for the purpose of drilling each of eight projects to about 500 feet deep. If oil is discovered in Continental's tideland set, larger outfits will be moved in on the eight adjoining permits.

Those having tideland permits on Continental's acreage include the Ohio Oil Company, Jacques Vincent, Rancho Oil Company, Texas Company, Independent Oil and Gas Company, Rio Grande Oil Company, Lincoln Drilling Company and H. L. Whisler.

Other Tideland Activity

The General Petroleum Corporation is one of the most active operators now busy along the Santa Barbara coast, searching for oil in the Summerland-Carpinteria area. Nine Colista wherry General drilled Mare No. 1 and No. 2 in the Mesa ranch, four projects have been drilled to 500 feet or more and a fifth is drilling below 400 feet.

General's tideland activity at present is centered on Banks No. 1, Mare No. 1, Sands No. 1, Crandall No. 1 and Parker No. 1. Five piers are necessary for these wells.

Most of the new activity near Ellwood is due to showings obtained in the Mare No. 1, now suspended with bottom at 4833 feet in the Mare No. 2, drilling below 4000 feet. The tideland property adjoins the holdings on the shore and is believed to be a continuation of the favorable showings obtained further inland.

Deep Test Drilling

The Shell Oil Company's Childs No. 1 in the Dominguez field is drilling below 4500 feet in search of deeper production than that obtained. Its test is considered unprofitable, being located at the extreme edge of the structure, the same lease where the company's Childs No. 1 has been drilling from a depth of about 3000 feet.

Deep Test Boring

The Shell Oil Company's Childs No. 1 in the Dominguez field is drilling below 4500 feet in search of deeper production than that obtained. Its test is considered unprofitable, being located at the extreme edge of the structure, the same lease where the company's Childs No. 1 has been drilling from a depth of about 3000 feet.

Deep Test Boring

The General Petroleum Corporation expects to develop the deepest producing well in the world has been plumbing for its Santa Fe No. 223 in the eastern part of the Santa Fe Springs field has reached from 6740 feet back to 7980 feet and is continuing for production. The test is near the intersection of Norther and Shumaker streets and not far from the Santa Fe tracks.

Tar Activity

The northeasterly portion of the Long Beach oil field is undergoing development that seems to be attracting. The Petroleum Securities Company is constructing derricks on its Pointed Hills ten-acre lease in Block V of the Signal Hill area.

This new development by Petroleum Securities is considered quite important, as it is an effort to get production in an area that has already been tested, the earlier drilling back to 1920 by the Signal Hill Syndicate.

The Rainier Oil Company recently finished a test near the corner of Pacific and State streets, with an indication that drilling is to be resumed within ninety days. Another test was drilled by the same company at the northwest corner of Alamitos and Ocean street, just south of State street.

Gusher in Ojai

The Venture Gulf Oil Company has just completed No. B-10 on its lease in the Ojai field, at Fruitvale. It came in with a flow of 2000 barrels of 22-deg. oil per day from a depth of 4000 feet. It has been bailed at the rate of 100 barrels daily. The outlook is good.

Ojai Boom

The Gulf Oil Company has begun down the flow of Recreation Creek, 1 northeast of Venice Junction, by putting out 1150 feet of casing, gravity oil per barrel from 1,250,000 cubic feet of gas and a depth of 6199 feet. It is constructing derrick for drilling Cam Club No. 3, 550 feet north of the producer and may be ready to quit in within the next ten days.

Ventura Again

The Gabrielle Well Drilling Company's Del Amo No. 1 wildcat is searching for a connecting link between the Signal Hill and Dominguez fields tested wet recently with bottom of the hole at 8500 feet and is preparing to recement at that depth. This project is the deepest wildcat in the world.

Slight Increase

The Santa Fe Springs field daily flow increased to 164,790 barrels yesterday, being somewhat higher than the estimate two days ago. One new completion was brought in, being the Standard Oil Company's Walker No. 17. Initial output was estimated at 500 barrels per day based on a four-hour test flow. Sand troubles shut off production for a time and the new completion will be cleaned to bottom and an attempt made to recomplete it.

REMINDERS SENT OUT BY COLLECTOR

Income Tax Blanks Given Out to 300,000 Southland Taxpayers by Federal Man

Income-tax blanks were sent yesterday to more than 300,000 Southern California taxpayers, of which 200,000 are individuals and 100,000 are corporations, partnerships and fiduciaries. With the mailing of these forms, Galen H. Welch, Collector of Internal Revenue, issued the annual reminder that the time limit for filing returns expires at midnight on March 15, following which date a penalty of 25 per cent will be added.

Pink slips accompanying the forms call attention to the lower tax rates for 1930. Exemptions remain the same, and are as follows:

Single persons, $1500; married persons, $3500; each child or dependent, $400. As a result of recent tax reductions the first $4000 of the net income in excess of the personal exemptions and other credits is to be taxed at ½ per cent instead of 1½ per cent; the second $4000 of the net income in excess of such credits shall be taxed at 2 per cent instead of 3 per cent; the balance of the net income shall be taxed at 4 per cent instead of 5 per cent.

Local Russian Colony Keeping Christmas Now

Members of the local Russian colony are rejoicing over the fact that the no-Christmas order of things in Russia in no way affects their celebration of the season here, which has been in full swing during the past week, the Russian Christmas Day being the 8th inst.

A climax to the occasion will come tonight when the Ladies' Aid Society of the Russian Church on Micheltorena street will sponsor a Christmas tree and dance in Columbus Hall, 1431 McCadden Place. Children of the Russian school have arranged a program of Russian songs, dances and other numbers. Rev. Paul Hototzky will act as master of ceremonies and many prominent members of the Russian colony are expected to attend. The public is invited.

HEALTHIEST GIRL, AIM OF SCORE CARD

Tulare High School Plans Novel Contest to Combine Beauty and Hygiene

TULARE, Jan. 10.—Out of 315 girls examined during the first semester at Tulare Union High School by Dr. Frances Zumwalt, in conjunction with Miss Lucy Proudfoot, girls' physical education instructor, a total of forty were underweight, and Dr. Zumwalt proferred advice on diet to the too sylph-like maidens.

Physical tests are made twice each school term. A contest is to be held in the near future to determine Tulare High School's "healthiest girl." Height and weight will be among the points scored, according to Dr. Zumwalt. Examination only is made and in case of defects being discovered, the student is referred to her family physician for corrective treatment. Seven tonsil operations have already been performed through advice given by Dr. Zumwalt. The contest is being continued for several weeks to permit girls with minor defects, such as bad teeth and underweight, having an opportunity to try for the coveted title.

While feminine pulchritude is not recognized in the rating table compiled by Dr. Zumwalt, it is certain that a homely girl will not be the recipient of the title, Miss Proudfoot declared, adding that youth and health are synonymous with beauty and loveliness and cannot be divorced one from the other.

STATES PLAYING BALL WITH DRYS

owman Says Co-operation Rendered by Half

linor Violators Prosecuted in Local Courts

ther Commonwealths Fail to Aid Government

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Ap-proximately half the States are ving fairly satisfactory co-oper-on in dry law enforcement, As-tant Secretary Lowman said to y, adding that in the other half is spasmodic and not all the gov-nment would wish.

The Treasury, through the Pro-hibition Bureau, started a bene-ent last summer to obtain co-operation from the States. Con-rences were held with governors d prosecutors and they were ked to shoulder more of the pro-hibition burden by trying minor vi-tions under the State statutes. As a result of these con-rences, Lowman said, some gain ing received in each State, though about half it is spasmodic. As t as much as the government uld like to have.

Lowman did not name the States which the co-operation had im-eased or those in which the as-tance is less than expected.

In urging the States to take a eater share in enforcement Fed-al officials said that if the States ll look after the minor violations will leave the Federal officers e to direct their attention to rd the large producers and dis-butors of illicit liquor.

GRANTORS MUM ON BELL PERMIT

Councilmen Let Quarry Vote Speak for Them

Ordinance Being Drafted by City Attorney

Opponents of Plant Insist Fight Yet to Come

A blanket of silence extended it-self at the City Hall yesterday over the action of the City Council Thursday night in voting to grant Jabbour Bell a special permit to operate a rock quarry and slurry plant in the Santa Monica Moun-tains. The ten Councilmen who voted for the permit had no state-ments to make. Councilmen Cooke, Lee and Williams, who opposed the bell permit, expressed their at-titude immediately after the vote was taken.

The matter is now in the office of City Attorney Werner, where the ordinance is being drafted. On completion it will be submitted to the Council, probably early next week, when it is sure to be adopted. The ordinance then will go to Mayor Porter for his signature, and it is stated after the thirty-day limitation period it will be signed and Bell can proceed with his blasting and grinding, provided no protests make no further effort to halt the industrial invasion of the mountain area.

The attitude of the protestants, however, is that the fight is just opening. There appear to be no effects of continuing the fight. The protestants can circulate a referendum petition against the ordinance, holding it up until de-cided by the people at the next election, or they can go to court to set aside the Council's action as void as illegal. The referen-dum petition will need in excess of 9,000 qualified signers, or 10 per cent of the total vote cast for all candidates at the last mayor-alty election.

LOS ANGELES AIR STUDENT DIES IN FALL

Tangled Parachute After Loss of Altitude Fatal to Lawrence W. Lake

Loss of altitude and a tangled parachute proved fatal to Lawrence W. Lake, 23-year-old son of Mrs. Florence W. Clark of 3831½ South Hamilton Place, Los Angeles, at Santa Maria yesterday, when he plunged to his death at the flying field of the Hancock Foundation School of Aeronautics.

Young Lake was granted his li-cense as a private pilot shortly be-fore Christmas, and yesterday was receiving his advanced training. He had finished his course in dual control in spins and at 10 a.m. was about to practice his solo gyra-tions. According to eye witnesses and investigators for the Depart-ment of Commerce, the young avia-tor, at 1000 feet, took between six and eight spins before attempting to right his plane and lost con-trol at that altitude. At approxi-mately 500 feet he attempted a leap for his parachute. It became en-tangled with the fuselage and he fell to the ground and was killed instantly.

In addition to his mother the young flyer leaves a sister, Miss Marjorie Lake, and an uncle, Judd Lake, both of Los Angeles. He was a grandson of the late George Lake, prominent in civic affairs here.

Funeral services will be conducted in Los Angeles today at the W. A. Rowan mortuary parlors at 1215 South Figueroa street. R. S. Davis, a friend of the family, took charge of the body following the inquest. It is declared death was accidental.

FILM PLAYER ASKS RECOVERY OF DEED

Dorothy Mackaill

ACTRESS IN COURT OVER STOCK DEAL

Dorothy Mackaill Seeks to Recover Trust Deed in Suit Against Company

Dorothy Mackaill, film actress, went before Superior Judge Jamison yesterday seeking to recover a trust deed tendered in payment for $5200 worth of Prudence Corporation stock which, she asserts, never was delivered to her. After hearing the testimony Judge Jamison took his decision under submission.

At the close of the plaintiff's testimony, attorneys for the defendant made a motion for a nonsuit, which was denied.

The actress testified that she turned over to William Anagnostl, an agent for the Prudence Corporation, a trust deed to property as a payment on 1040 shares of capital stock of the corporation, valued at $5 a share. Miss Mackaill asserted that the stock never was delivered to her and that the corporation has refused to give her back her deed.

The defendant corporation offered no defense at the trial, other than an answer to the suit in which it is asserted that Miss Mackaill did not pay for the stock. The actress was represented in court by Attorney Milton M. Cohen, the company by Attorney E. P. Peers.

LARGE ART STOCK LOST IN FLAMES

Japanese Store Building Blaze Causes Damage Placed at $200,000

Flames, causing damage estimated at $200,000, last night swept through the stock of Japanese art objects in the two-story brick store of the T. Saji Company, importers, at 408 South Los Angeles street. At a late hour a squad of fire department investigators had not determined the cause of the fire's origin.

The blaze started in the second-story storeroom, which was filled with many expensive objects of Japanese art. A policeman noticed the flames bursting from the upper story about 7 p.m., after the sales force had left the building. Before the arrival of firemen the fire had destroyed the upper floor with its contents. Smoke and water did heavy damage to the lower-floor salesroom.

COUNCIL ACTION ON JAIL NEARS

Conference Held Over Need of New Structure

Lincoln Heights Barracks Scheme Frowned On

Plan of Putting Prisoners to Work Discussed

Assurances that every effort will be made to obtain favorable action from the City Council toward an appropriation for the construction of the first unit of a permanent jail at Lincoln Heights in view of the emergency existing at the crowded Central Jail which has been condemned as a menace by the health department, were given yesterday by the Police and Fire Committee of the Council. This consists of Councilmen Ingram, Williams and Martin.

The Police Commission's request for an appropriation of $13,000 to construct temporary barracks at Lincoln Heights was shelved as out of the question.

The three Councilmen met with Police Commissioners Thorpe and Wehn, Chief Jailer Shand, Construction Superintendent Brittain, Drs. George Parrish and G. S. Porter of the health department, Dr. E. P. Ryland of the Park Commission and Anthony Pratt of the Municipal League, to consider the problem.

Pratt and Dr. Ryland urged that provision be made for putting the prisoners to work in order that they might work out their social salvation and also reduce the cost of their keep.

SKETCH SUBMITTED

Thorpe related his experiences and studies of the jail question, intimating he is well qualified to pass thereon.

Pratt declared if action is taken now, except on a general solution of the jail problem, it will be difficult to get anything done for the next twenty years. He did not think the emergency reported by the health department of great moment, he said.

Dr. Parrish urged that action toward reducing congestion of prisoners be taken as soon as possible. He was supported strongly by Councilmen Williams and Ingram.

"What we need is action," declared Ingram vehemently. "After we end this emergency is the time to go on dreaming." He repeated this a number of times when the discussion drifted to the subject of prisoners raising hogs. Martin declared that there is a hog farm near Los Angeles which is the largest in the world. He said it is a wonderful sight to see 40,000 pigs.

Brittain submitted a sketch of a T-shaped jail unit which he said would cost $50,000 for the basement and $70,000 for each story above it. The foundation would support six stories, he said.

The Councilmen thought the plan was excellent and that there will be no need to send a commission to study leading jails of America and Europe.

AS TO SIZE OF JAIL

Ingram and Williams favored three floors in addition to the basement, so as to provide space for juveniles.

Martin doubted that sufficient funds can be obtained to build more than two floors and the basement, costing $190,000.

Pratt urged that the congestion be relieved by disposing the prisoners around the various jail divisions until a permanent jail is built. Shand explained that this can be done but transportation will be costly.

Ingram sarcastically suggested that the police can be limited to just so many arrests each day, in order that the divisions might not be overcrowded.

The three Councilmen won the arguments, and declared they will do their best toward getting an appropriation, after which, if successful, another conference can be held to go into the plans in detail.

Teacher Faces Hit-Run Trial

William McCarty, 25-year-old school-teacher, was bound over for trial by Superior Court on charges of hit-and-run driving at the conclusion of his preliminary hearing in Municipal Court yesterday. Bail was fixed at $500.

Witnesses declared that McCarty, who resides at 1801 South Bonnie Brae street, was driving an automobile which collided with one operated by George Peterson of 337 West Alexandria street, Glendale, on December 21, last. McCarty fled, but was captured after a chase of six blocks, testimony disclosed.

PRAISES OF ALASKA SUNG

Aide of Wilbur Urges Closer Relationship With Southland in Telling of Northern Area

Urging a closer relationship between Alaska and California, Ernest Walker Sawyer, assistant to Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday for a brief stay. He is a guest at the Mayflower. Many of Alaska's products, he declared, will meet even the most particular demands of California consumers. Particularly is this true of reindeer meat and coal for manufacturing purposes.

"The resources of Alaska have been only partly developed and opportunities abound on every hand, not only for those who wish to seek paying investments, but for those who desire to live and work in the United States' far northern territory," the visitor said. Within the next five years Alaska will enter into one of its greatest periods of prosperity and development, he added.

Alaskan scenery should prove an ever increasing attraction for California vacationists, the assistant secretary declared. He said that an automobile highway connecting Los Angeles with Alaskan cities is not beyond the possibilities of the next five years. He also predicted that the white population of the territory will be doubled within the next two years and that Alaska will be admitted to Statehood before 1950.

A strong advocate of Colorado River development under the Boulder Dam plan, Assistant Secretary Sawyer declined to comment on that particular dominion of the Department of the Interior. The affairs of Alaska and Hawaii only come under his official attention, he explained.

FUNDS FOR COLISEUM PROVIDED

County Supervisors Vote to Pay Half of $450,000 Improvement Costs

The County Board of Supervisors yesterday formally voted to pay half of the $450,000 necessary for improving the Coliseum at Exposition Park, and increasing its seating capacity to 100,000.

This action was taken after passage of the city ordinance assuring the payment of half the amount by the city. The Supervisors already had decided to work with the city in enlarging the big arena.

The Community Development Association will remain in charge of the Coliseum until after the Olympic Games in 1932. Deputy County Counsel McAllaster prepared the county ordinance necessary for the expenditure of the county's share of the money involved.

BRONZES ON EXHIBITION

Bronze sculptures being exhibited this month at the Los Angeles Museum, Exposition Park, are the work of Eli Harvey. Other exhibitions are the international photographic show and Gustav Ertle's batik wall hangings.

MORE RAINFALL EXPECTED TODAY

Occasional Showers and Chill to Continue

No Danger of Frost Seen by Weather Bureau

Mountains Get Heavy Snow; Many Roads Blocked

Information on road conditions issued late last night for week-end motorists by the automobile Club of Southern California was as follows:

Arrowhead—Desert and Waterman Canyon roads closed. Drifts average three to four feet; some eight feet.

Big Bear—Desert road reported open, but poor condition.

Idyllwild—Open, fair condition.

Mt. Wilson—Closed.

Big Pines—Open, 30 inches snow.

Camp Baldy—Passable; two to four feet snow.

San Diego-Imperial highway—Passable, but in poor condition.

Mojave—Four inches snow.

Little Lake—Seventeen inches snow.

Reservoir Canyon—Closed.

Sacramento-Reno—Closed.

Temperatures below normal, with occasional showers, may be expected over the week-end, the Weather Bureau announced last night as thousands of residents planned hours of rare sport in the mountain ranges of Los Angeles, Riverside, San Bernardino and San Diego counties, which are mantled with the heaviest snow seen in recent years.

Showers and sunshine intermingled yesterday to bring rainfall of .76 of an inch, making a total of 2.39 inches for the storm, and a season total of 2.71 inches as against that of last season to date of 4.66 inches and a normal of 5.37 inches.

"Unsettled with occasional rain today and tomorrow; temperatures below normal," was the official forecast issued last night by Col. H. B. Hersey, as he scanned the weather maps for signs of the week-end weather.

Out of a possible ten hours and three minutes of sunshine yesterday only four hours and forty minutes were clear. The temperature remained somewhat low during the entire day, with the highest, 49 deg., coming shortly after mid-day. The low point of 41 deg. was reached about 5 a.m.

FROST NOT EXPECTED

No frost warnings were issued in the citrus district for last night, as none of the government experts anticipated freezing temperatures early today.

Clouds blanketed practically the entire Southland last night at 10:30. In the Santa Paula section the thermometer stood at 38 deg. at that hour, with an anticipated low of 31 deg. forecast for daybreak. Threatening clouds carried strong hints of rain over the Santa Clara Valley.

Continued cloudiness all during the night was predicted for the Pomona district, where the reading was between 34 and 35 deg. over the entire section at 10 p.m. Intervals of clear sky were expected, but no frost. The low-temperature mark was forecast for dawn when 31 deg. is expected.

Frost was not anticipated in the Redlands and San Bernardino sector, as the skies continued overcast and were expected to carry through the night. The temperature at 10 p.m. was approximately 37 deg. as various stations reported, and the lowest was forecast at 33 to 32 deg., and with no danger of frost.

HEAVY SNOWSTORMS

In the wake of Thursday night's storm came from hill and mountain districts reports of snowstorms amounting virtually to blizzards, roads in some places made impassable by snow drifts, telephone wires down, and snow still falling in some of the higher altitudes.

Contrary to a notion held rather generally and even among some of the citrus growers, the presence of the unusually heavy snowfall in the mountains does not mean an additional frost hazard for the citrus groves. According to F. D. Young, the government frost expert at Pomona, the snow has no effect on the chances for frost. It is indi-

The Lancer

by Harry Carr

MARY PICKFORD'S testimony on the witness stand in her income-tax hearing makes one dizzy to read.

A mere $10,000 a week in 1919 before she really got started . . . A little allowance to her mother for her services in keeping the family in order—just $50,000 a year—ho, hum . . .

Mary ought to believe in Santa Claus and Cinderella.

MARY'S COURAGE

And, after all, this stupendous fortune and this astounding fame flowed in to a little girl who was not so different from any other little girl.

Mary could hardly claim to be a Duse; yet she could have bought and sold Duses in herds and bunches, and is known to a hundred people where there was one who ever heard of the Italian actress.

What is the answer to this Cinderella story? I think the answer is to be found in Miss Pickford's personal courage. The motion-picture business is one in which the rewards go to the bold and lion-hearted. Mary was born a fighter. And she saw to it that she got what was coming to her all along the route.

It hasn't been all rose petals. Mary has faced and ridden down two or three crises that would have ended the careers of lesser souls.

ARGENTINA

I have seen all the great dancers from Pavlowa and Genee to Isadora Duncan, but this little Spanish girl, Argentina, who is now dancing in Los Angeles, is the most interesting of the lot. She has everything — youth, charm, beauty, originality, humor, and a great sense of showmanship.

Just how to say it, I don't know, but Argentina has a peculiar power of getting her dances over the footlights—of establishing a cooperation and a sense of intimacy.

CARMEN

If she can sing, I would like to see her as Carmen. It also happens that I have seen every famous Carmen. I can't judge their singing, but as actresses they were terrible.

SUCH IS FAME

Calve—the most famous of all Carmens—was the worst. She suggested a fat old milliner who had put her money into a pair of red-heeled shoes and had to live up to them.

Callamarini was alluring, but had no sense of dangerous suggestion. Geraldine Farrar acted like the business agent of the bullfighters' union. Dolores Del Rio suggested a nice little Mexican girl trying to act like Carmen and not being careful about keeping her skirts down.

Pola Negri was the best Carmen I have ever seen; and even Pola lacked something. She had the restlessness of the wolf, but not the killing qualities.

Carmen of the Prosper Merimee story was—as she says herself—a wolf. She killed without emotion or compunction, and died with the fatality of an animal. She knew two things—to want and to be satiated. She had no inhibitions, no conscience and no inconvenient emotions. She was as primitive and as ruthless as a snake.

TWO TRAFFIC VICTIMS DIE

Man and Youth Succumb to Injuries While Police Arrest Suspect in Hit-Run Affair

A man and a boy died yesterday morning as the result of injuries received in traffic accidents. They were Robert M. Orr, 17 years of age, of 1906 Merrill street, and Henry Davis, 22, of 1435½ Creston Drive.

Orr fell from a milk truck and received internal injuries near his home Thursday afternoon. He was taken to Georgia-street Receiving Hospital, where he died.

Davis, according to a police report, was injured when his automobile collided with another car driven by Marco Laird of 2816 West Seventeenth street on the 6th inst. at Wilshire Boulevard and Hudson avenue. Laird later was reported in a dying condition at Good Samaritan Hospital.

Bodies of both victims were removed to the County Morgue, where inquests will be conducted today.

Accused by police of having driven the automobile which struck and perhaps fatally injured Ernest Perry of 1362½ East Forty-second street at Temple street and Glendale Boulevard early yesterday morning, Brent Loring, 43, of 1623 Fargo street, was arrested on suspicion of failing to stop and render aid after an accident. The arrest was made at his home.

Loring, according to police, leaped from his automobile and ran on foot from the scene of the accident. Verification of this was given to detectives by Mrs. Gustave Bangs of 941 South Bernel street, who is said to have been a passenger in Loring's machine.

Perry, a welder for the Pacific Electric Railway, was working on the car tracks, it was stated, when he was hit by Loring's car. The impact knocked him about forty feet in the air, witnesses said, and when he fell to the pavement he again was struck by the same automobile. His back was reported broken. He also suffered internal

HEROES SAVE TWO LIVES, QUELL FIRE AND VANISH

Unheralded and unsung, two citizens dashed into a burning house at 3424 Marathon street yesterday, saved the lives of two youngsters, extinguished the fire with a garden hose after it had done about $2000 worth of damage, and then vanished without making their identity known.

The report of the unusual episode was on file in fire department records. According to this report Ronald Hixson, 3-year-old son of B. Hixson, and Donald Luben, 5, of 812½ Tularosa Drive, were playing in the Hixson home with matches. Several of them ignited and set a quantity of clothing afire. Within a few moments the rear of the house was choked with smoke and flames began to crackle in the woodwork.

At this point the unidentified heroes happened by. They saw the fire and smoke and heard the cries of the children. Both rushed in through a rear door, but were repulsed by smoke. Then with handkerchiefs saturated with water bound about their faces they made a second attempt, reached the youngsters and carried them to safety.

With the children safe the pair succeeded in subduing the fire with a garden hose found connected to a hydrant just as apparatus from the fire department roared up.

Investigators of the fire department obtained the story from witnesses, they said, who saw the two citizens during their battle with the blaze. Neighbors of the Hixsons and firemen searched for the two men in vain.

VENICE'S OIL PLEAS HEARD

Hundreds of Residents Ask Planning Board to Permit Drilling Within Certain Limits

Hundreds of Venice residents, either in person or through representatives, appeared before the City Planning Commission at an all-day hearing yesterday asking that special permits be granted to allow the drilling for oil both in the town of Venice, which is a part of Los Angeles, and in adjoining territory, which fears contamination of the beaches.

The commission, after hearing the testimony of scores of property owners eager to see drilling operations begun, took the matter under advisement.

MEETING SCHEDULED

It will meet a committee of the Venice branch of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce in Venice Monday at 11 a.m. to go over the ground. Meanwhile geologists are to submit their findings to the commission.

The applicants for a change of zoning number nearly 900, while thousands of names have been placed on petitions to the commission. The only protest filed so far is from the Board of Playground and Recreation Commissioners.

The desire to drill for oil was occasioned by the discovery of oil by the Ohio Oil Company two weeks ago on the property of the Recreation Gun Club in county territory.

President Baker of the commission indicated that the commission will proceed slowly, so as not to throw open the doors to promiscuous industrial uses of land which has no oil deposits.

PURPOSES OUTLINED

Among the witnesses were W. D. Newcomb, president of the Venice branch of the Chamber of Commerce and head of a bank, and Sherwood Kinney, president of the Abbot Kinney Company. Both declared that the desire to drill is

North Main Street Merchant Brutally Beaten to Death in Store for Two Blank

HOUR OF CRIME FIXED BY DEAL

Police Told of Mortal Fear Held for Enemies

Widow of Slain Man Denies Existence of Foes

Cash Found in Pocket of Robbery Victim

Murdered for two new warm blankets!

That was the theory the police were working on last night as they sought to solve the killing yesterday morning of Wolf Minsberg, struck down in his second-hand store at 418 North Main street.

At first the police were inclined to believe the middle-aged merchant had been killed by bandits seeking money, but they found nearly $20 in Minsberg's pockets and a little later Adolpho Bergis, clerk in the Steinberger Furniture Company, 405 North Main street, told them this:

"Minsberg came in here a few minutes before 10 a.m. and bought two blankets. I watched him go across the street with them in his arms and enter his store."

BODY DISCOVERED

Minsberg's body was found lying in a pool of blood half way down the length of his dimly-lit shop less than ten minutes after 10 o'clock. The blankets were gone.

"Find the man or men with those blankets," ordered Capt. Ray Cato, in charge of the police homicide squad. A detailed description of the blankets was sent out to all officers over the police teletype system.

The second-hand dealer apparently had been lured to the back of his long and littered shop, and there struck down. A large crockery vase had blood on its sides and bottom, and the police believe he was struck with that as he leaned over to pick up some article.

SEARCH FOR BLANKETS

Left there to die, the rather slight man with remarkable courage, had dragged himself toward the front door of his shop, collapsing before he completed his journey. He was still breathing, when a prospective customer entered and found him, but he died an hour later in the Receiving Hospital without regaining consciousness.

While the search for the blankets was the main activity of the police, other information brought to them indicated that there may have been a grudge for the murder or that liquor might have provided a motive.

FEARED FOR LIFE

In Minsberg's pocket was found a penciled slip bearing the address of the Federal prohibition offices. Assistant Prohibition Administrator Peters and Prohibition Agent Holland, who viewed the body in the morgue, however, said that they did not know him, nor did their records show that he ever had visited their offices.

Abe Braeger, clerk of the Karl Shoe Store, 428 North Main street, told Detective Lieutenant Charley Hoy that Minsberg recently had told him that he had enemies and feared for his life.

"He said he was afraid to go home at night," Braeger told Hoy, "but he did not say who his enemies were."

WIDOW TALKS

Minsberg was married and lived at 948 Court street. Mrs. Rose Minsberg, the widow, mother of two children and expecting another, told the police, however, that she did not know of any enemies that her husband might have. She said he formerly had operated shops at 422 Ford Boulevard and 1067 Temple street, and had opened the shop on Main street less than three weeks ago.

She said he had been born in Russia forty-eight years ago, and had been in this country twenty years, the last ten of which were spent in Los Angeles.

practically unanimous in Venice, which feels it lacks industries, and regards the oil discovery as a "Christmas present."

Mr. Newcomb described mass meetings where thousands voted for drilling with no dissenting voices. He said that Venice wishes the commission to issue special permits for drilling, with the territory zoned for industrial use after the limits of the field are defined.

Woman Chosen for Play Board

Mayor Porter yesterday submitted to the City Council the nomination of Mrs. Laura E. Hadlock to the Playground and Recreation Commission to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Marshal L. Carter. The nomination was referred to the Parks and Playgrounds Committee.

Mrs. Hadlock lives at 903 South Crenshaw Boulevard. She is a former teacher and is active in the Eastern Star, having charge of State educational work for the organization. Her husband is a real-estate broker.

Robert C. Coyle, University of Colorado graduate and former Occidental College student, who died Monday following an appendicitis operation in Denver, was laid to rest yesterday in Forest Lawn Memorial Park. Funeral services were conducted at 2 p.m. at the Little Church of the Flowers. Robert was a son of Rev. Campbell Coyle, former pastor of the Highland Park Presbyterian Church here, now pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Boulder, Colo. He graduated from Franklin High School in 1924 and from the University of Colorado three weeks ago. He was 24 years of age. He leaves his parents and one brother.

MACHINE FINDS VOICE ERRORS

Miss Mildred Martz and Tonoscope

THIS machine, called the Iowa tonoscope, will enable one to know the worst about one's voice instantly. No delegation of neighbors need to call and register protests if you have one of these machines in your home. You will know immediately if you can sing or if you can't.

The contraption was invented by students and professors of the University of Iowa and it registers the waves of the voice and shows how to correct them. Miss Mildred Martz, University of Southern California co-ed, yesterday gave the machine the once over.

LINDBERGHS WILL HAVE CONVERTIBLE AIR COUPE

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh plans to change his and Mrs. Lindbergh's new Lockheed-Sirius open pleasure monoplane into a veritable "convertible coupe" of the air, it was learned here last night from reliable sources.

Whether the blasts shot back on the Lindberghs from the 425-horsepower motor will prove a bit too nipping on the noses of the famous flyer and his bride in the cold climes they expect to fly through was not stated, but it was learned the colonel has Lockheed engineers at work on a covering for both cockpits.

As the ship stood when delivered to the Lindberghs last Tuesday, both cockpits were protected by the ordinary wind cowlings slanting upward and backward over the front of each cockpit.

Col. Lindbergh at that time said he was "considering a change or two on the ship if it proved practical to make them."

The wind-protecting covering is what he had in mind, it was revealed.

Plans call for a transparent cabin to be built over the cockpits, a tiny cabin that will not cut down the visibility advantages of the open ship, but one that will keep the Lindberghs snug when they run into freezing temperatures or rainstorms.

The little cabin, just high enough to cover the heads of the flyers, will be constructed in a way that it can be opened for ventilation in warm weather.

The idea is Col. Lindbergh's and will constitute the first cabin ever built on an open-cockpit ship.

HEINZE MAY REGAIN HIS WATER POST

Former Assistant Under Van Norman Reviews His Grievances Before Board

That Carl A. Heinze, assistant chief engineer and general manager under H. A. Van Norman of the Board of Water and Power until the reorganization a few weeks ago, will be able to make his peace with his former chief, E. F. Scattergood, chief electrical engineer, and that a place eventually will be found for him in the organization was the drift of the information given out last evening by members of the board following an executive session at which the matter was discussed for more than two hours.

No official action was taken, as it is impossible to do so in executive session. Heinze has been connected with the department since 1907. At the recent reorganization, at which time, Van Norman was demoted from the position of chief engineer and general manager to a position equal in power with Scattergood, Heinze was not provided for. He was told he would be employed for a period of two months.

Yesterday he was given a chance to air his grievances before the board, following the regular session. Both Van Norman and Scattergood were present. President John R. Haynes of the Department of Water and Power, declined to make any comment, other than to intimate that the matter might be settled and that a place might be found for Heinze. The latter was assistant chief engineer to Scattergood and held the position for two years and before this was in charge of power distribution. It is understood that a difficulty arose between Heinze and Scattergood, who does not want him replaced as his assistant.

Customs Office Open at Airport

Despite the fact that Los Angeles is 129 miles by airline from Agua Caliente, she became a border city yesterday when the first passengers passed through the United States customs office at the Western Air Express Airport, which has been designated as an international port of entry.

"Inspectors H. H. Carpenter and G. E. Purtell have been assigned to the field," said Collector of Customs Schwaebe. "An entire plane-load of persons can be passed through the inspection in a few minutes. Our inspectors never touch a person unless they have conclusive proof that the law is being violated. Tourists and sightseers are allowed to bring small souvenirs across the border with them."

TWO TRAFFIC VICTIMS KILLED

injuries, it was stated when taken to Georgia-street Receiving Hospital.

Identification was made yesterday of the body of Mrs. Anna Isackson, 55, of 2437 Brooklyn avenue, who died in General Hospital shortly before midnight Thursday after being struck by an automobile at Brooklyn avenue and Soto street. The car was driven by Leo Lewis of 2422 East First street, who hurried the injured woman to the hospital, police informed the Coroner. An inquest was set for 9:30 a.m. today.

Accused of driving his car last night into the rear of another automobile, Dan A. Henderson, 57, a real estate dealer, of 1015 South Rimpau Boulevard, was booked by police on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Battalion Chief A. C. Williams of the fire department reported that Henderson crashed into his car while the fireman was halted at West Pico street and West Boulevard.

LIFE SACRIFICED TO SAVE MONEY

Pockets of Hunger Victim Found to be Stuffed With Bills

Starved to death with $495 concealed in his clothes sums up the final record of J. Eubanks of Texas, who fell dead yesterday in front of 137 Rose street. When a surgeon of the Georgia-street Receiving Hospital examined the dead man he recorded the cause of death as malnutrition—starvation. A search revealed $406, costly in $5 bills, and $90 in tens concealed in tobacco sacks and stowed away in the man's pockets.

Eubanks was about 60 years of age. Papers found on the body indicated he had prospected along the Rio Grande in Texas. He had been lodging here briefly at 609 East Second street.

THREATS TO KILL SPOUSE BROUGHT UP

Witness at Bolton Trial Recalls Wild Talks of Dancer Before Marriage

Testimony that John Dewey Bolton, Jr., former dance-hall operator, declared eighteen months ago that he would kill the girl who was to become his wife found its way into the record yesterday in Superior Judge Wilson's court where Bolton is on trial on a charge of first-degree murder resulting from the shooting of his wife, Lucille Grace Bolton, on the Roosevelt Highway north of Santa Monica, November 9, last.

The testimony was given by Ruby W. Abbott, a school-teacher, who was called to the witness stand by Dep. Dist.-Attys. Crall and Curran. Under direct examination Mrs. Abbott recounted a conversation she said she had with Bolton in the summer of 1928, before he and his wife were married.

"That girl is crazy about me," Mrs. Abbott quoted Bolton as saying, "but I hate her nerve and if I ever marry her I'll kill her."

Defense Attorney Newton J. Kendall vigorously objected to the testimony on the ground it was too remote to have a bearing on the case and moved that it be stricken from the record. A heated debate over the legality of Mrs. Abbott's testimony was precipitated, and Judge Wilson took the motion under advisement until Monday.

The State charges Bolton shot his wife in an effort to collect $10,000 insurance on her life. At the time of the shooting Bolton declared he and his wife were held up by bandits, one of whom killed Mrs. Bolton and wounded him after being recognized by Mrs. Bolton.

The insurance policy on Mrs. Bolton's life found its way into the record yesterday through the testimony of Walter S. Solomon, an insurance salesman. Solomon testified he subscribed to a list giving persons applying for marriage licenses and it was in this way the Boltons found their way into his file of prospects. He said he sold each of them a policy. Bolton was named beneficiary in the policy on Mrs. Bolton, it was disclosed.

The trial will be resumed Monday.

FALL FATAL TO WRITER OF POETRY

L. E. Bernheimer, Believed from New York, Killed by Plunge Through Window

Plunging from a hotel window last night, Louis E. Bernheimer, believed to be a New York writer, who had been sojourning at Carmel-by-the-Sea, was killed instantly. Papers found in his room indicate that he had been involved in the recent stock market crash, that he had spoken at Sacco-Vanzetti protest meetings in Boston, and had written extensively on subjects ranging from poetry to radicalism. A scenario, and an unsent a telegram addressed to a woman at a motion-picture studio, hinted at the cause of his visit to Los Angeles.

LOUIS E. BERNHEIMER

Bernheimer registered on Thursday night at the Astor Hotel, Second and Hill streets, as from New York City. Yesterday he called in a doctor, whose name the police were seeking last night. The poet's hotel room on the second floor was visible from the upper offices in the Department of Power and Light Building, where city employees saw him pacing the lighted room for hours.

Nobody had been found last night who saw Bernheimer fall to death. The crash of his body as it struck in a court promptly drew people from the hotel. The body was removed to the morgue.

A passport, obtained for a trip to Paris last summer, revealed that Bernheimer was born December 5, 1895, in New York, and was a writer by occupation. One address given was Hotel Lafayette, New York. A clipping from the Boston Globe of August 26, 1929, recounted a Sacco-Vanzetti protest memorial meeting at which Bernheimer was a speaker. A passbook in a bank at Carmel showed that he had $200 on deposit there.

The unsent telegram was addressed to Miss Lillian Cooper, care of Basil Rathbone, M.-G.-M. studios, Culver City. It was signed "Louis." Letters from editors, many in intimate tone, and manuscripts of verses, together with notes on California, were found in the man's effects.

WOMAN ATTACKED WITH HAMMER DIES

Anna Bradley, colored, 5317 Compton avenue, died at General Hospital last night as the result of an attack made upon her by an assailant who battered her head with a hammer. The woman was found near a tank farm not far from Compton yesterday morning in an unconscious condition. She was lying in an automobile. Deputy Sheriff Lysle of the Compton constable's office arrested the woman's husband, Edward Bradley, who is being held at the County Jail pending an investigation today.

Two Bullet Wounds in Chest Cause of Death

Killer Believed to Have Fled in Waiting Coupe

Shortly after he was seen struggling with another man in the front part of his barber shop at 2018 Glendale Boulevard early last evening, Mariano C. Mazzone, 53 years of age, who resided at 2123 Baxter street, was found dead in the shop, with the bullet wounds in his chest. Robbery is not believed to have been the motive for the shooting, as the cash register in the shop had not been disturbed.

The only witness of Mazzone's struggle with his slayer was Justin Dunn, a 12-year-old schoolboy living at 1700 Grafton street. The boy told Detective Lieutenants Clinton and Wilson of the police flying squad that as he was walking up Glendale Boulevard across the street from the barber shop he saw Mazzone grappling with another man.

About forty feet north of the shop, the boy said, a black coupe was parked and in it he believes there were a man and a woman. The boy said that when Mazzone released himself from his assailant's grasp and slumped to the floor the latter dashed out of the shop and entered the coupe, which sped away.

Mazzone apparently had been shot before he seized his assailant and tussled with him, for the Dunn boy said he did not hear any shots and the barber shop was spattered with blood, which flowed from Mazzone's wounds during the course of the unequal combat.

ALUMNI OF CHICAGO 'U' HEAR STAGG

Famed Coach Addresses Meeting Here Which Founds Scholarship Fund

A. A. (Old Man) Stagg, since 1892 the football coach and athletic head at University of Chicago, addressed 160 alumni of that school at a meeting at University Club last night. The meeting went on record as founding an annual scholarship to send a Los Angeles boy or girl to the Chicago institution and Dr. Frederick Speik of Pasadena heads the committee to make arrangements. At a similar meeting of San Diego alumni last week a scholarship fund was founded in that city.

Twenty-two men of the 160 men and women in attendance at the meeting proved to be former winners of the Chicago varsity "C" and the famous coach asked each to stand as he narrated some incident in connection with the athlete's college sports career. Herbert Ahlswede, Long Beach merchant, who played on Chicago's championship football team of 1899, was the only football player he ever knew to play through a game with a broken leg, Mr. Stagg said, throwing an arm around Ahlswede's shoulder.

Fred Steigmeyer, who went to Chicago in 1892, and wrote the school's first college songs, was singled out, and Harold Hula, City Attorney of Pasadena, and Dr. Theodore Gerald Soares, a member of the university faculty, gave addresses.

PASADENA GOLF STAR NOW BRIDE

Kathleen Wright Married to Edward F. Lenihan at All Saints' Church

(By a "Times" Staff Correspondent)

PASADENA, Jan. 10.—Kathleen Wright, golf star, became the bride of Edward F. Lenihan, Cleveland business man, at a ceremony performed at 4:30 p.m. today in All Saints' Episcopal Church. Dr. Leslie E. Learned, rector, read the service in the presence of thirty relatives and friends.

EDWARD F. LENIHAN

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest N. Wright of 612 Drexel Place. She won the women's midwinter tournament at the Los Angeles Country Club in 1929, and has held the club championship at the Flintridge Country Club for the last two years.

In 1929 she was a semifinalist in the western golf championship, and in 1928 and 1929 she was runner-up in the California State women's golf tournament. She also holds the Los Angeles midwinter championship.

Mr. Lenihan, who met his future wife while she was competing in a championship match in the East, is well known in club and financial circles in Cleveland, O.

Garden flowers in pastel colors formed a setting for the nuptials. Mr. Wright gave his daughter in marriage. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Frances Wright. Norman K. Evans of 227 State street served as best man.

Following an informal reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lenihan left on a six months' wedding trip in Italy, France, Ireland and England. They have not announced their future home.

Barrymore Soon to Launch Yacht

John Barrymore last night announced that he will christen and launch his new steel Diesel yacht on the 15th inst., at the Craig Ship Building Yards, Long Beach. Mrs. Barrymore and a few friends will accompany the actor to the launching.

The new yacht is 120 feet long and will have a complement of two officers and six men. The vessel is designed especially for cruising in Mexican and South American waters.

DIVORCE PREFERRED TO DASH OFF CLIFF

Divorce was a better way of ending her marital difficulties than being driven over the Santa Monica Palisades, Mrs. Jessie Clasen told Superior Judge Archbald yesterday. That was why she left home taking her 13-year-old daughter Beverly with her, she said. Her husband, E. Milton Clasen, proposed the precipitate way of ending their married life, according to her story, but she objected. Judge Archbald agreed with her, giving her the custody of the child.

VENIREMAN SENT TO JAIL

A. Lee Miller, 1042 Sanborn street, yesterday was sentenced by Superior Judge McComb to serve one day in jail for contempt because of his asserted failure to appear for jury duty.

Miller had been summoned for jury service last Monday, but failed to appear Tuesday or Wednesday, according to court records, and Judge McComb then issued a bench warrant. Miller sought to explain that his employment would prevent him serving on the jury panel, but Judge McComb found him in contempt for failing to appear without first being excused legally.

Ex-Bank Employee Among Thirty-eight Indicted by Federal Grand Jury

In twenty-nine indictments returned yesterday by the Federal grand jury thirty-eight persons were indicted on various charges. Among them is Thomas Houston Reynolds, former teller of the Bank of Italy branch at El Centro, who is accused of misapplication of $938 of bank funds.

Eight persons were indicted for asserted violations of the Dyer Act by transporting stolen cars from one State to another. Mountain Resorts Ready for Big Rush

Rainfall Soaks in With Little Runoff

RESORTS READY

Mountain resorts prepared for one of the greatest week-ends in many years as reports came in of the heavy snowfall with opportunities for winter sports of all kinds. In some instances, however, roads to some of the popular resorts were closed because of heavy snow, with rainfall promised about their base of operations tomorrow night. The heaviest snowfall in the Los Angeles area was reported from Mt. Wilson, where about two feet of snow was on the ground. The Mt. Wilson road was closed, however, all day Saturday, the indications being that it probably will not be opened until noon today at the earliest. Chains are required on the road.

The snowfall on the Sierra Madre mountains extended unusually far down on the slopes. Residents in foothill cities and towns awoke yesterday morning to see the white mantle lying seemingly within arm's reach of the front door. Its depth reached more than half-way down the Mt. Lowe incline, for instance, with fifteen inches of snow on the ground at Alpine Tavern, Mt. Lowe. It is reported that even some of the orange trees in the higher groves located above the foothill district had snow on them early yesterday morning.

Snow drifts at the higher altitudes are reported to be six to seven feet in depth, with some fire-break crews and road gangs snowbound. No reports of missing persons have been received, and ample provisions are on hand for the workmen held by the snowfall.

Reports at Lake Arrowhead was reported at a depth of 32 inches; with 15 inches on the level at Panorama Point, and 8 inches at Vail's Camp. At Big Bear, with a 36-inch snow, eight hours were required yesterday to make the journey to below the snow line.

TELESCOPES "BURIED"

Mt. Wilson Mountain, at an altitude of 6000 feet, was covered with snow yesterday, but Pacific Electric officials stated that the storm has not interrupted service from Rubio Canyon and Echo Mountain to Alpine Tavern.

The astronomers at the Mt. Wilson Observatory took yesterday off to dig themselves from under the six-foot-and-both white blanket. The domes of the 100-inch and sixty-inch observatories were snow covered and "no observation" was written into the daily record.

Running had eight inches of snow and Redondo ten inches. At the latter place some of the pepper trees were weighted down with snow.

With the prospect of a great army of pleasure-seekers heading for the mountain resorts today and tomorrow, the Automobile Club of Southern California and public officials issued general warnings to motorists to be sure their cars are in good condition and equipped with skid chains before attempting the snow-covered roads. On some of the mountain roads cars without skid chains are not permitted. Sheriff Traeger and County Forester Thorne warned hikers and all who plan to go into the mountains in the snow to stay on the main trails and roads as a precaution against becoming lost in unexpected snow storms.

REPORTS ON ROADS

The Automobile Club report last night on some of the more traveled roads included the following notes: The Waterman Canyon road was closed, a large drift six feet deep being at Panorama Point.

The road to Camp Baldy open and passable through two to four feet of snow.

Cajon Pass had snow on it, but no trouble, if cars used skid chains.

Mint Canyon road had some snow on it.

The Ridge Route was passable with skid chains, snow extending from a few miles above Castaic to Lebec with about fourteen inches at Gorman.

Traffic in the Bakersfield district was badly confused yesterday as the rain and snow continued. In some of the mountain districts east and west of Bakersfield highway officials reported an almost complete tie-up.

The snowstorm on the Ridge Route was reported as the heaviest in the memory of residents along the highway. Drifts along the roadway are many feet in depth. All motorists are being asked south of Bakersfield and warned of conditions before they are permitted to proceed over the mountains.

INFORMATION OFFERED

It is suggested that in case of need call the touring bureau of the Automobile Club, BEacon 3600, for road information on any road. Ventura is open nights.

Both roads to Big Pines recreation camp were reported open, with snow plows at work. Thirty inches of snow was reported at the camp, with indications of a record crowd over the week-end for all manner of winter sports.

Wire communications to points in Death Valley were crippled yesterday, but Independence reported three and one-half inches of snow over the entire valley floor, with much heavier falls in the mountains. The thermometer stood at 20 deg. with the sky cloudy but weather calm.

There was a foot of snow above Imperial Valley in the Santa Ana mountains, according to reports from Riverside.

Redlands reported "the greatest in years" with a heavy fall of snow in the mountains, ranging from five feet in lower Mill Creek to three and five feet in Bear Valley.

The mountains in the Fresno district received a heavy fall of snow.

ROAD BLOCKED

In the San Diego district one road was blocked with the snow, the stretch from Descanso to Julian being impassable. There was snow on the highway, to Imperial Valley from Descanso to Live Oak Springs, but the road was passable.

Early travelers along Topanga Canyon yesterday saw snow on Saddle Peak, altitude 2863 feet, but it did not last long.

The storm Thursday night plunged Placentia in darkness when lightning struck the transmission line of the Southern California Edison Company.

Airplane travel in and out of Los Angeles was crippled somewhat by the storms over the mountain areas. One of the lines east did not send out any planes yesterday and another one had its planes land at Kingman, Ariz. Travel up and down the coast by airplane was curtailed somewhat.

The report Thursday night that a passenger air liner of the Standard Air Lines, en route from Los Angeles to El Paso, had taken refuge from the storm at the Baning airport was found to be erroneous.

A general survey indicated that the rainfall and snow was general over valley and mountain up and down the coast. Yesterday it was clearing to the north but the storm center was not moving out very fast in the south. A new low pressure area, which brings the storm, was developing off Oregon.

LITTLE RUN-OFF

Looking over the reports that came into his office yesterday, Chief Flood Control Engineer Eaton announced that the run-off from the storm was very little, with Ballona Creek taking the storm drain waters from the city, running 3500 second feet.

"The water that ran into the ocean down Ballona Creek, about 2,000,000,000 gallons, is a factor that emphasizes the necessity of arranging percolation channels and areas for excess run-off in our streams," said Eaton. "If it were possible to conserve this water it would be a valuable addition to our supply, and especially welcome to the beach communities, which draw their water from underground basins.

"It has been proposed that the county flood control district acquire land for a channel that will take care of the Ballona Creek discharge. Because of recent storm drain completions, a large run-off in the lower part of the creek is to be expected, and should be prepared for.

"In other parts of the county, much could be done toward saving water, if there were constructed percolation ditches and areas where water could be spread for absorption into underground channels. Water that soaks into the ground can not cause flood damage, and is always valuable in subsequent dry seasons."

SAN FRANCISCO REPORTS LOW MARK OF YEAR

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10. (Exclusive)—While San Francisco shivered in a temperature of 38 deg., coldest of the year to date, additional snow fell in the mountains today, with rain at lower levels where the temperature was warm enough to allow the snow to melt. There will be more of the same, according to the Weather Bureau forecast tonight, with unseasonably low temperatures throughout Northern and Central California.

A new disturbance is charted 150 miles west of San Francisco tonight, which is expected to bring showers to the bay district tomorrow.

Susanville unofficially reported "zero" weather and Sacramento advised of light snow flurries during the early morning hours. Clearing weather was reported from the extreme northern part of the State by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company but it was said snow continued to fall from Colfax south.

WINTER SPORTS PLANNED

Plans are going ahead rapidly for winter sports programs at Truckee and Tahoe, in the Yosemite and at virtually every point where there is enough snow for slides, ski jumps and other forms of cold weather diversion.

Snowplows are in use generally to keep highways open.

Advices were received from Merced that the storm is causing thousands of wild ducks and geese to fly into that section and gun clubs are swinging into action.

Lindsay citrus growers were saved the use of smudge pots by a heavy fog, which protected the groves.

TEMPERATURE READINGS

Temperatures generally are low. Points reporting freezing or subfreezing readings are Del Monte, Eureka, Red Bluff, San Jose, Summit (Sierra,) Oakland Airport, Chico, Colusa, Independence, Modesto, Mt. Hamilton, Orland, Aroville, Paso Robles, Rocklin, Salinas, Santa Rosa and Stockton. Officially the 10-deg. mark at Summit was the coldest reported.

PRESS OF SOUTHLAND MEETS

Editors Hear Prophecies and Compliments, and Dine; Prizes Awarded for Page Make-ups

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Jan. 10.—California newspaper publishers meeting in their forty-second annual convention listened to golden forecasts of the State's future and were intrusted with leadership in the greatest era of opportunity in the history of California, in talks by prominent speakers today.

Praised as the greatest force for good in the State, the editors were told that accomplishments in State unity, State advertising, industrial and trade development in which the press has played such a prominent part will be surpassed in an amazing degree in the immediate future.

Already fourth among the States in exports, possessing an investment of $340,000,000 to care for its tourist trade, developer and first in appreciation of community advertising, California is destined to be the great light of the Pacific, speakers told newspaper men.

Don Thomas of the All-Year Club sketched the tremendous tourist appeal of the State which has been built up throughout the nation and the world. Clinton E. Miller, speaking on behalf of the State Chamber of Commerce, paid a high tribute to the publishers and told them the finger of destiny is pointed here and that they have a great opportunity in appealing to the most intelligent reader class in the nation.

Presentation of the prize cups for the best front page produced by any weekly paper and the best editorial page among the dailies was the feature of the luncheon session. John B. Hungerford of the North Hollywood Press received from Norman Chandler of The Times the loving cup donated by that newspaper for the best front page. W. L. Blair, managing editor of the Pasadena Star News, accepted from Clinton E. Miller, director of the California Chamber of Commerce, the cup awarded by the chamber for the best editorial page.

In the front-page competition the Van Nuys News received second rating and the San Fernando Sun, third. The Santa Rosa Press-Democrat was given second rating in the editorial-page judging, the Long Beach Press-Telegram, third, and the Stockton Record, fourth.

In presentation talks by Mr. Chandler and Mr. Miller the accomplishments of the California press and the opportunities open to the editors were told by the speakers. Chandler in a special talk on foreign trade pointed out the possibilities of development by expansion of overseas business and urged the editors to co-operate with the State Chamber committee in making Foreign Trade Week, February 15 to 22, a success.

Miller told the publishers that the Chamber of Commerce directors consider them the greatest influence for good in California, more potent even than the State schools and churches. The unity which exists in California is the product of its press and its editorial brains, the State Chamber official told the newspaper men.

Speaking on community advertising at the opening general session of the convention, Don Thomas, executive secretary of the All-Year Club of Southern California, related the success of national and newspaper advertising in changing California from a short-season tourist haven to an all-year resort.

Speakers at the annual banquet included Friend Richardson, former Governor, who discussed the excursion to Mexico on which a number of the editors will leave at the close of the convention; K. C. Beaton, paragrapher, who spoke on "I Thank You;" Crisbie Allen, who discussed "Knocking Around," and Gerry Fitzherald, British journalist, who spoke on "Newsing About."

Round-table discussions were conducted this afternoon with the newspaper men studying phases of the publishing industry which appealed to them.

The principal business session will be held tomorrow with the annual election of officers concluding the session. Ford A. Chatiers of Lindsay is scheduled to become president of the association, succeeding Justus F. Craemer of Orange, unless the nominating committee fails to follow custom.

Senator Lyon Will Run for Office Again

State Senator Charles W. Lyon of Los Angeles county yesterday announced that he will be among those seeking election as this county's one representative, under the new legislative apportionment, in the California State Senate. Lyon has served continuously in the upper house of the Legislature since 1919.

Several incumbent State Senators from this county, whose official positions will be abolished at the expiration of their terms, are considering a contest for this county's State Senatorship.

STREET FUNDS SOUGHT

A petition asking for an allocation from city funds of 15 per cent of the total cost of the project was filed with the City Council yesterday by property owners in the assessment district for the improvement of Virgil avenue. The petition was referred to the Public Works Committee.

SEWER PLAN ADVANCES

The City Council yesterday adopted the ordinance of intention for the Vermont-avenue and One Hundred Sixty-fifth-street sewer district.

TRIAL OPENS FOR DRIVER ACCUSED IN MAN'S DEATH

Asserted to have left John Pink on the lawn of his home after fatally injuring him with an automobile, Donald Ross, 39 years of age, went on trial yesterday in Superior Judge Hardy's court on a charge of manslaughter.

The State charges Ross ran down Pink October 20, 1929, at Ninth and Georgia streets, picked him up and drove to the Receiving Hospital and then took the injured man to his home at 519 West Sixty-third street, where, it is asserted, neighbors found Pink dead on the lawn the following morning.

Wilbur C. Collins, who was with Ross the night of the accident, was the first witness called by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Kemp, prosecuting. Collins said Pink appeared to be conscious when they first picked him up and they headed for the hospital, where, the witness said, an orderly told them to take Pink to the third floor. Thinking Pink was intoxicated and only slightly injured, the witness continued, they decided to take him to his home, where they left him.

The trial will be resumed Monday.

ARMED BANDIT LOSES BATTLE

Wife Rescued by Husband in Desperate Struggle

Blow With Hammer Knocks Robber Unconscious

Asserted Room Prowler Gets Similar Treatment

A masked bandit armed with a revolver was captured by A. Olson of 351 West Ninety-third street after a struggle in which Olson knocked the bandit unconscious with a machinist's hammer, disarmed him and held him for police, shortly after midnight yesterday within a few blocks of the Olson residence.

Olson's wife was the bandit's intended victim. She had alighted from a street car on Broadway and was walking by an alley on Ninety-third street when the bandit stepped out and levelled a revolver at her with a command to give him her valuables.

The husband, who had been following his wife from the street car in an effort to waylay persons who had previously annoyed her during the walk from the street car home, ran up quickly and struck at the bandit's weapon with his machinist's hammer. The blow fell on the bandit's hand, fracturing several fingers and causing him to drop the revolver. He struck Olson one blow in the face with the left hand and then both fell to the pavement in a clinch.

As they struggled back to their feet Olson brought the heavy hammer down on the suspect's head and the latter dropped unconscious. While her husband remained on guard with the suspect's gun, Mrs. Olson called police and a few minutes later Officers Taylor and Thomas of the Seventy-seventh-street police division arrived and took the suspect into custody.

He was taken to Georgia-street Receiving Hospital, where he stated his name is Charles W. Holbrook, 23 years of age, of 623 West Ninety-fourth street. He was later transferred to the prison ward at the General Hospital, where he is held on suspicion of robbery.

INTENDED VICTIM TURNS TABLES ON PROWLER

When Alex Estaiza awoke early yesterday morning to find a man crawling through a window into his bedroom at 1400 Lawrence street he picked up a chair and brought it down with a resounding smash on the prowler's head.

The suspected burglar dropped to the floor and lay still. Estaiza switched on the lights and telephoned for the police. When Officers Koehn and Hanson arrived they found Estaiza sitting firmly on the intruder's neck.

After congratulating Estaiza for his prowess the officers took the suspect to the City Jail, where he was booked as Nick A. Mollo, 21 years of age, of 1443 Bonnie Brae street. He is held on suspicion of burglary.

EVANGELIST TO VISIT HAWAII

Mrs. McPherson Plans Pacific Ocean Voyage Prior to One Including Holy Land

A three-weeks trip to Honolulu as a prelude to the Holy Land tour is the plan of Aimee Semple McPherson, as announced last night by her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy. Mrs. McPherson will sail for the islands the 21st inst. and will make a tour of inspection of the Light House missions there. She will then return and make ready for the Palestine voyage. On March 24 the party will leave Los Angeles by special train for New York, whence it will sail March 29.

Reservations have been made aboard the steamer George Washington for 300 persons, W. H. Hall of the Thomas Cook & Son Company, tour agents, said yesterday. The steamship Republic, which had been chartered originally, will not carry the party, the reservation having been canceled by the Los Angeles evangelist yesterday. The George Washington is the ship that carried President Wilson to France.

It also is understood that work will commence soon on the talking picture which portrays Mrs. McPherson's life. A famous scenarist has prepared the story, it is rumored.

Mrs. Kennedy said that invitations have been sent out to those who have signified their intention of taking the Palestine trip, on which Mrs. McPherson plans to be at Jerusalem on Easter Sunday, to gather at the temple the 20th inst. to talk things over.

According to Tour Manager Hall the George Washington will leave New York for Cherbourg, the party disembarking there, visiting Paris and embarking again at Marseilles. The next stop will be made at Cairo and then the Holy Land and Jerusalem on Easter. The return will be made by the way of Jaffa, Beirut, Cyprus, Athens and to Marseilles with optional trips to North Italy, Switzerland and the Passion Play at Oberammergau. The main party will land May 16 at New York.

A benefit will be given Mrs. McPherson at Angelus Temple next Monday evening, according to Mrs. Kennedy, at which time Mrs. McPherson's new oratorio, which she composed herself and which was given for the first time during the Christmas week, will be given. It is entitled, "Worship the King." It has been presented four times. Three choirs, the band and the orchestra take part.

Store Will Give Varied Program

A varied program will be given this morning by Dr. B. G. Kingsley at Bullock's, opening with an excerpt by Bach.

A Richard Strauss song will be given. Then will follow several Russian masterpieces, which are to be given by the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, the "Russian and Ludmilla Overture" by Glinka, father of modern music in Russia; the Borodin "Dance of the Archers," one of the best examples of Russian ballet; the operatic aria gem from Tschaikowsky's grand opera, "Pique Dame" and, by the same composer, his "Fourth Symphony."

Protests Filed on Regina Court Project Denied

The City Council yesterday denied all protests against the improvement of Regina Court at Eighty-seventh street, but referred the project to the Public Works Committee for further consideration. Protests were denied against the sewering of Motor avenue and against the improvement of the Anzac avenue and Ninety-fifth street district. Hearing of protests against the Seventy-sixth street and Denker avenue improvement district was continued until July 7.

Assessments for the improvement of a walk on Whitley Heights between Fairfield avenue and Wedgewood Place were confirmed, as were the assessments for the lighting of Beverly Boulevard between Orlando avenue and La Cienega Boulevard.

Hearing of appeals against the confirmation of assessments for the improvement of Mulholland street from Maclay avenue to Olive View avenue were continued until May 5.

Spanning the continent in less than forty-eight hours, Ethel C. Thompson, advertising woman, arrived in Los Angeles via T.A.T. Airlines to become a member of the May Company's staff.

Miss Thompson has been associated with John Wanamaker & Co., Philadelphia; Best & Co., and Gimbel's, New York; Abraham & Straus, Brooklyn, and Palais Royal, Washington, D. C.

"Flying across the continent was a thrilling experience," said Miss Thompson on arrival. "My first glimpse of California will long be remembered. After the ice and sleet of the Atlantic seaboard Southern California appears as a mirage of sunshine and tropical beauty."

GOVERNOR'S COUNCIL WILL CONVENE HERE

For the second time in the history of the State, directors of the thirteen executive departments of the California State government will meet in Los Angeles on the 28th and 29th insts., for the monthly Governor's Council. Reports on the departments will be submitted. Governor Young will preside. The first Los Angeles meeting last summer was held in the City Council chamber.

Today's Bible Text

For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call.—Acts II:39.

UP AGAIN, DOWN AGAIN

According to Mayor Rolph the chief needs of San Francisco at this time are subways and elevateds. More ups and downs.

PUTTING IT MILDLY

The golf game of John D. Rockefeller is said to be improving with age. He can drive better than 200 yards and in his first round this year he sank a fifteen-foot putt. Anyway, at the age of 91 he is able to putter around—or two.

GIN AND CONSPIRACY

If bootleggers and their customers get together to pass booze or discuss prices it should be possible to make some form of conspiracy out of it. A case of gin should be good for a case of conspiracy—or else it is mighty pale stuff.

THE BIG BUSINESS

In the matter of postal revenues for December this city ranked fifth in the Union—being surpassed only by New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston. It would seem that Santa Claus was on the job here after all. At any rate it took a powerful lot of stamps to carry the stuff that went forth in his name.

WORKS TOO HARD

One of the justices of the Illinois Supreme Court admits that he works regularly at his duties for thirteen hours a day. The unions won't do a thing to this slave. Anyhow, they will be boycotting his decisions. No plasterer would put in these hours—even if he was plastered.

ARABS OBJECT

The wailing wall in Jerusalem is not for promiscuous or vociferous wailing. Arabs in the Holy City have gone into court in a case wherein a trio of women were charged with wailing in an unnecessarily violent manner. If radios can be tamed in the new Jerusalem it is felt that the public wailing may also be more subdued.

THE ROYAL ROMANCE

Nothing like a royal romance to make a people loyal and patriotic. The humblest dwellers in both Belgium and Italy feel a newer and closer allegiance to their sovereigns through the happy circumstance that a prince and princess find their mating. Thrones are likely to be firm while royal weddings are going on. All the world loves a lover and the more princely he is the better the liking.

CALL FOR UNIFORMS

Gen. Summerall, chief of staff, wants dress uniforms for the American Army. When the soldiers are on parade they look drab alongside of the Navy or the marines and it makes them peevish. All the girls love a uniform and they want their army sweethearts to be gorgeous on occasion. A natty uniform is the best recruiting officer that can be imagined.

SHAVES GO UP

According to the Master Barbers' Association it will hereafter cost 35 cents when a customer gets his map scraped. In most cities this is now the price of a shave, so why not here? That is the way they put it. In San Francisco and other towns a hair cut will cost 65 cents. Here the price is still half a dollar. The tonsors figure that Hollywood is still getting the best of it. There are a lot of birds there who let their hair and whiskers grow on the chance of getting into westerns or desert stuff.

THE KING MAKER

The loud speaker of the royalists in France is back on his useless job. Leon Daudet, editor of the leading organ of the king-makers, is back at his desk in Paris. He had been in voluntary exile in Brussels for upward of three years. He is permitted to return unquestioned at this time because it is realized that he can't do anything but shoot off his own bazoo and this has ceased to be a menace. He may call Poincare a pygmy and Briand a rascal, but it doesn't mean anything. There is about as much chance of setting up a king in France as there is of setting up a round of drinks in Senator Borah's parlor.

MAYOR PORTER'S OPPORTUNITY

The vote of the City Council to open up Southern California's finest residential area to heavy industry, to destroy the protection supposed to be given by the zoning ordinances, and to permit Alphonzo Bell to break faith with the hundreds of people to whom he sold home sites, gives Mayor Porter an opportunity to show his independence, courage and good judgment. By his veto of this vicious industrialization scheme, the Mayor can prove that he is not moved by political considerations and has no political debts that he needs to pay by actions adverse to the public interest. He can show that he is not, in fact, dictated to from the air or otherwise, and that he really has the good of the city at heart. If he examines, dispassionately, the merits of this issue, he can hardly come to any other conclusion than that this proposed zoning change is, at its very best, a grievous mistake, likely not only to damage the city's development by undermining the confidence of property owners in the integrity of the zoning plan, but costing millions in taxes because of the depreciation of property.

Already the holder of a large block of property in the general area of the Bell holdings has announced his intention to apply for a permit to drill for oil and to mine gypsum if the Bell permit is granted, and he cannot be denied this permission without gross discrimination, which the courts doubtless would upset quickly. In fact, even if the City Planning Commission and City Council should set their faces resolutely against any further industrial incursions into residence areas and should refuse to consider the Bell permit as a precedent, the basis will have been created for court action to upset the whole zoning system as it applies to this city. The courts have upheld zoning only on the ground that it is a reasonable interference with property rights for the general good of all. The police power is exercised unreasonably, however, when it discriminates, and the courts would be bound to hold that favors extended to Bell must be granted to all others in similar circumstances.

The fight against the Bell scheme is not ended, of course, even if the Mayor signs the ordinance which the City Council has ordered drawn. There will be an opportunity to hold up the ordinance by referendum and an opportunity to attack it in court. In a court of equity, Alphonzo Bell would be likely to get little consideration, since it is impossible for him to enter the court with clean hands. His pledges, written and implied, against industrial development in the Santa Monica Mountains would there rise up to confront him.

In the court of the people, too, the outcome of the issue ought not to be uncertain. The specious plea that Bell is fighting the "cement trust"—absurd because his associates are in the so-called cement trust up to their necks, and because of his already established record for evasions and broken promises—will have little weight in the ears of those who are fighting for their homes and their beaches.

All told, there is yet much hope for beating the Bell cement plant, despite the extraordinary and incomprehensible attitude of the majorities of the City Planning Commission and City Council, and for setting aside this extremely dangerous precedent of putting a "D" industry in an "A" zone.

AN INTERNATIONAL LOSS

How a poor emigrant boy may come to America and by his own exertions win a high place in the country of his adoption is the story Edward W. Bok has left behind him for all who doubt the rewards for work well done offered in this land of opportunity. Mr. Bok came here a penniless lad from his native Holland and has finished his career on earth a recipient of high praise from one President and his family honored with a special message of sympathy from another.

No citizen could have been so recognized by two such national leaders as Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover had his sole accomplishment been the amassing of a personal fortune. Mr. Bok won this distinction for his notable efforts to promote international understanding and to further the cause of world peace. His talent as an executive, as an editor and author was great; but his reputation as a philanthropist was greater.

He sleeps at the foot of the beautiful bird carillon he erected near Mountain Lake in his well-loved State of Florida. It bespeaks the desire for peace on earth and the affection he felt for humanity that marked his every act on earth. Many have made a fortune by seizing the chances for advancement provided in this wide American field of endeavor. Not so many, like Edward W. Bok, have been equally successful in knowing how to spend it when made.

RATTLE AND BANG

Dr. Paul V. Winslow, otologist and nerve specialist, charges noise with the great majority of domestic difficulties.

So to horn your way through traffic is not only unlawful; it produces divorce. The motorman clanging his way along the street is disturbing alimony. The riveter may be building skyscrapers; but he is demolishing homes. The rattle and bang of traffic are the chief feeders of the divorce mill.

If true, this is interesting. If newlyweds could hide away in cells from the din, the marriage ties would not shrivel. The desert would seem to be the best cure for household scraps. Nevada would be the last place to go for a panacea. The quietude of the great open spaces should be a complete antidote for mesalliances. Reno should become the seat of a sanatorium for lacerated feelings rather than the haven of Kilkenny cats.

There is not much of an alibi for noise; it makes a normal man want to bite at times, though unmarried. It often curdles the feelings to the extent that the single sometimes seek matrimonial alliances to neutralize the clangor of the city. Loud speakers of neighbors have been known to drive well-mated couples to violence.

But that noise is responsible for most of the divisory elements in married life may be seriously questioned.

LEE SIDE O' LA
BY Lee Shippey

THERE are many humane societies in Los Angeles county and doubtless all are good. But there is one in San Gabriel which is different and which many a stray dog or half-starved cat or abandoned goat or horse must think is heaven. There they are taken in ambulances, given food good enough for human beings, placed in pens in which each has a little yard in which to get sun and air, behind which is a little steam-heated room with a warm, soft bed in it, wholesome meals and a bone to gnaw on every night!

There also are valets in attendance who give them their daily baths. And when it is necessary to put one out of its misery it is not herded into a pen along with a number of other condemned, to be overcome by monoxide gas pumped by some ancient flivver—which sometimes gets out of repair and prolongs the ordeal greatly. Instead, a friendly and sympathetic woman takes them, one at a time, pets them to make their last minute a happy one and gives them instantaneous death with a strychnine needle.

Inspired by Movies

Six years ago Mrs. Fannie Thompson Kessler, a wealthy Michigan woman who spends her winters in Pasadena, became excited over stories told her by people who asserted that often cruelties were practiced to make animals perform before the camera. Mrs. Kessler raised so much commotion that an investigation was arranged. The investigators couldn't find any evidence of cruelty, but she became so interested in the work that she wouldn't quit. She brought about a merger of the Los Angeles branch of the Animal Defense League and the Alhambra - San Gabriel Humane Society into a new society known as the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society. But it receives and answers calls from all over Los Angeles county and sometimes goes outside the county.

Twenty-four Hour Service

Mrs. Kessler is said to have spent some $60,000 in her efforts to make life happier for homeless dogs and cats of this county. The merger was effected about one and one-half years ago and since then an animal shelter with capacity for 300 animals has been built at 927 South Grand avenue, San Gabriel. Two well-equipped ambulances, one given by Mrs. Kessler and one by Carl Johnson, are always on duty, day and night. So far as we know, this is the only animal shelter which is utterly noncommercial which answers calls either day or night. Miss Blanche G. Boardman, superintendent of the shelter, and Mrs. Winifred B. Eckart, a woman long prominent in social and club work in this county, give their whole time to this humane work and if a little dog gets smashed up in an automobile accident at 1 a.m. it never has to suffer till next morning if they can help it. The ambulance-house doors are made so they will fly open at a touch and the ambulance swings out on the highway as swiftly as a fire engine.

No Animals Sold

This organization is absolutely noncommercial, never selling dogs or cats or other animals, but placing them in homes without charge—after investigating the homes! That is, they won't allow any animal to go out until they have made sure it will be properly housed and well treated. Most of the expense is borne by Mrs. Kessler, though a small group of other humane people make up the society and co-operate with her heartily. Miss Boardman and Mrs. Eckart are State officers and have the right to make arrests or take up abused animals anywhere. Not long ago they were notified that an injured monkey was being forced to perform in a pike show at one of the beach towns and immediately went for it. On another occasion they even took up a snake which had been abandoned by a sailor at a time when he had other snakes to deal with. Many people who are forced to move and do not want to abandon animals call up the society. A beautiful young police dog, formerly the pet of a county officer, was in one of the kennels while we were there. The officer had felt sure the society would find a good home for it.

Hard to Explain

There were many other dogs and cats so handsome and evidently of such amiable disposition that it was hard to understand how anyone could abandon them. It seems a pretty low trick to abandon a dumb brute which has been faithful to you, when you need only step to a telephone and call up this society. Yet quite a lot of people do it.

NO CHANGE MADE

The intercollegiate committee on rules refuses to amend football play to provide more action for the spectators. They lay down the bald statement that the purpose of the game is to provide wholesome sport for the thousands of young men who play it rather than supply thrills for the millions who are merely looking on. The box office will continue to take care of itself. There will be no change in the game and you won't get any back from the gate either.

THE SKY GLIDER

In Michigan an aviator in a glider managed to loop the loop four times after cutting loose from a pilot plane at the height of 1500 feet. The glider is going to add to the sporting column in the annals of aviation, but it is no child's play at that.

AS TO MR. AESOP
By James J. Montague

In the yarn of the hare and the tortoise
The hare, as perhaps you recall,
Didn't feel any need of unlinking his speed,
But slumbered beneath a stone wall.
He lay there deliciously dreaming
Till the contest was handily won
And the judges avowed to the clamorous crowd
That the contest was over and done.

But the story, please note, was a fable,
And I always have harbored a doubt
Regarding this race—if it ever took place
That this wasn't the way it came out.
More likely the crafty old rabbit
Woke up with a stretch and a gape
To shake off his sleep, gave a long loping leap
And was far, far ahead at the tape.

Maybe Aesop was kidding the plodders,
As teachers have frequently done,
Into nursing the hope that they really could cope
With the fellows who know how to run.
But in any such contest, I'll wager
My last and my long-cherished dime
That the hare will romp in with a sardonic grin
And the tortoise will lose every time.

A plodder myself from childhood
I think it is wicked and wrong
For these moralist chaps, though they mean well perhaps,
To endeavor to kid me along.
For though plodding is better than loafing
And often is helpful, indeed,
We plodders have found while we pottered around
That it don't stand a chance with real speed.

WHAT OTHERS THINK ABOUT IT

TRIFLES AND LAW
[New York Evening Post]

"De minimis non curat lex." So runs an old proverb. "The law does not concern itself with trifles." But what is a trifle?

Josef Knittig told Ambrose Slaven—this was in Kansas—that he was unpatriotic. This remark was followed by the exchange of some unprintable epithets during which exchange Slaven struck Knittig on the head. The battle ended at about that point with no serious casualties, whereupon Knittig brought suit against his antagonist to recover damages for injuries.

One of the questions submitted to the jury, as reported in a summary by the West Publishing Company, was this: Did Knittig suffer any physical hurt or humiliation or mental distress resulting from being struck by defendant? To this question the jury's answer was Yes. A second question read: Was plaintiff's head bruised or wounded by being struck by defendant? To this question the jury answered No. A third question was: What damages were sustained by plaintiff from the encounter? To this crucial question the jury replied that he had sustained no damage to his person, no loss of time and no permanent injury, but that he had suffered hurt in his feelings and was entitled to damages in the sum of 25 cents.

Knittig appealed from what he regarded as a grossly inadequate award, but the Supreme Court of Kansas upheld the verdict.

If the proverb about the law's indifference to trifles is correct, a 25-cent injury to one's feelings is not a trifle, at least in Kansas. It is pleasant to see the law so sympathetic.

PERILS OF THE AGE
[St. Louis Post-Dispatch]

Taking a nap in the rumble seat of his auto, Rosario Arcedino of Westfield, N. J., awoke to find himself trapped below decks in the car after the flap had fallen and automatically locked. Hacking a hole through the floor board, he was able to survive through the night until a policeman, attracted by the muffled noises from the innards of the machine, was roused to action. Another sleeping man, reclining peacefully in a Boston park, was attacked by a ferocious power lawn mower which had slipped its moorings and started on an unchaperoned cruise across the grass. The sleeper aroused to find himself fast in its clutches and escaped only by leaving his coat tails in its hungry maw and then leaping a hedge. Then there was James Simpkins, blithely shaving in his bathroom at Albany, N. Y. Held fast between his teeth was a sample tube of shaving cream, from which he was applying lather to his face. Obeying an impulse to sing, he opened his mouth, gave an involuntary gulp, and the tube disappeared down his windpipe. They had to operate on Mr. Simpkins to save his life.

These lamentable accidents could never have happened in the safe old days of the horse and buggy, the push-it-yourself lawn mower, and the mug, brush and cake of soap. Man sets his inventive genius to work, then has to take out more life insurance against the results. But perfection would pall without these rare hazards to give it zest. And who wants to go back to the plodding '90's.

WHAT A LOSS!

The Peiping Gazette, we are reminded, has been published for over fourteen hundred years without a break. And without a comic strip.

THE UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Under the Direction of Dean Rockwell Hunt

COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS

BY DEAN KARL T. WAUGH

A university has been not inappropriately defined as a number of professional schools and colleges more or less closely united with a college of liberal arts, which forms their core. This definition, while not applicable to all universities, particularly not to the English universities, which are composed of numerous liberal arts colleges that may duplicate one another, yet exist harmoniously in one locality under limitations established by their several grants and endowments, yet it is a definition which is quite consistently true of American universities.

As in the case of nearly all universities, the University of Southern California was first established as a College of Liberal Arts, and for many years the college and the university were synonymous. Therefore, the history of the College of Liberal Arts from its conception in about the year 1870, and its formal opening October 5, 1880, up to the year 1893, is practically identical with the history of the university and has, therefore, been treated in a former article of this series.

In 1892 the College of Music was established, taking the place of the department of music, hitherto a part of the College of Liberal Arts. This was the first—except the College of Medicine, organized in 1885, whose history, however, has not been continuous—of the colleges established separately from the College of Liberal Arts.

One of the most interesting features of this history of the university was the project for a vast expansion of educational opportunity to be offered to all the communities of the Southwest. The plan known as "The University System" (to which previous reference has been made) after being put into effect had an existence of ten years, but was abandoned eventually for financial reasons following the "breaking of the boom," when financial depression was at its worst in 1893.

In the plan for this system we find a clear statement of the place and purpose of the College of Liberal Arts in the university. It is to be the central institution around which all the others are to cluster. It is to be equipped with the very best facilities for providing the most thorough and comprehensive instruction in all of the branches of liberal learning. The additional schools are to prepare students for any and all lines of professional and technical work.

The government of the institution was vested largely in the faculty. They superintended the studies and the conduct of those in attendance. Examinations were given at the end of each term and parents or guardians were sent reports of the standings of each student. At the end of the year there were final examinations covering the year's work. The first faculty group of the college after opening is listed as follows: M. M. Bovard, A.M., president; F. D. Bovard, James C. Bathgate, M.A., ancient languages; Ida B. Lindley, A.M., English and preceptress; H. T. Cox, Ph.D., chemistry and geology; G. F. Bovard, English grammar, rhetoric.

In June of 1885 there was organized an Alumni Association of the College of Liberal Arts. This organization, which started with eight members, has now increased to an enrollment of over 12,000 who call Southern California alma mater.

These were the days of the financial boom and the new institution found itself enjoying a fair show of prosperity. Gifts of land in lots and in acres swelled the assets of the university. The endowment fund and property buildings of the College of Liberal Arts amounted to $300,000, while the total valuation of the interests of the university system for a time approximated $3,500,000.

The first endowed chair, to be called the Tansey Chair of Christian Ethics, came as a result of the gift of 100 acres of land by Mrs. Sarah E. Tansey, whose husband, Rev. John R. Tansey, had been most active in planning for a university as early as 1871. In 1886 Rev. Edward Thompson, Ph.D., was elected to be professor of belles-lettres, and Vice-President John Dickinson, A.M., was added to the faculty as curator of the museum and head of the department of geology and mineralogy. Dr. Thompson retired after a year on account of ill health in his family and was succeeded by Rev. W. S. Matthew, A.M., who was appointed dean of the College of Liberal Arts, the first to hold that title. He was an able administrator and under his direction many progressive steps were taken, among them being the introducing of elective studies during the last two years, the work of the first two years remaining prescribed as heretofore. Prof. George A. Coe, A.M., was added to the faculty in the chair of English literature and history. Dr. Matthew holding the chair of mental philosophy and political science. The registration in the College of Liberal Arts was 293, an increase of 100 over the previous year. The academy separated from the college and was conducted as a distinct institution.

Among the names added to the faculty list in those days were several of distinction. In addition to those already mentioned were H. B. Perkins from Harvard and Paris, modern languages; Paul Arnold, mathematics, and Rev. George Cochran, D.D., a thorough scholar and for years a missionary in Japan, philosophy and political economy.

In the fall of 1890 President M. M. Bovard, who was broken in health as a result of the strain put upon him in meeting the financial responsibilities of the institution, was given a leave of absence from official duties, and his responsibilities devolved upon Dean Matthew, who had become vice-president. There was a deficit of $11,000. The board of directors could not be responsible for continuance of the school. Dean Matthew courageously stepped into the breach, offering personally to be financially responsible for the maintenance of the institution, assuming entire charge of the management and educational work for a period of five years. President Bovard's health did not improve, and he died in December, 1891. The university feels a pride in its first president, a man who gave to it eleven years of consecrated service, building foundations with wisdom and care.

Dr. Matthew, by his labor and sacrifice having tided the institution over a crucial time, consented to be relieved of his heavy responsibility as soon as the board was willing to undertake the maintenance of the school.

Dr. R. M. Widney had become president of the university in January, 1892, and he undertook the financial responsibility, particularly the freeing of the College of Liberal Arts from its debt of $18,000. He procured from original donors, release from conditions forbidding encumbrance of property, thus permitting a degree of liquidation. A change in control of the college was also effected. It was reincorporated under its own board of regents, as had been the case with the other schools of the university system, instead of being the only school under the general university board of directors. Accordingly, the campus at West Los Angeles and all property thereon were formally conveyed to the newly created board of regents of the College of Liberal Arts, who thence forward had full charge of the educational work. The following year was one of prosperity marked by an increase of attendance in all departments. A friend of the university, Mr. Frederick Rindge, by a gift of $5000 made it possible to meet all expenses and have a balance for the next year.

Dean Matthew resigned early in 1894. With the coming of Rev. Milton E. Phillips, Ph.M., who as dean had charge of the College of Liberal Arts, a number of important changes were instituted. The chief emphasis in instruction has been upon the classics, but now the spirit of scientific investigation came to the fore and the science departments were strengthened. Dean Phillips held the chair of mathematics, Laird J. Stabler, M.S., joined the faculty, assuming direction of physics and chemistry; Orville M. Phillips, Ph.M., took charge of the new department of biology, and Albert W. Bannister, A.M., the department of economic science and commerce. Laboratories for work in the sciences were newly equipped with apparatus. An enlarged art department was headed by the noted Fortune de Conte, A.M. The amount of preparatory work requisite for entrance to the College of Liberal Arts was increased from three to four years.

Following the resignation of President Widney and the election of Rev. George W. White, A.M., to the presidency in 1898, came the merging of the two corporations hitherto known as the University of Southern California and the College of Liberal Arts of the University of Southern California. New deeds were executed by both boards conveying all properties to a new corporation of the name University of Southern California.

The year 1896 marked the organizing of a new and important department in the College of Liberal Arts, that of pedagogy. As professor, Dr. James Harmon Hoose was secured, considered one of the foremost educators in New York State, organizer of the State Normal School at Cortland, N. Y.

For the promotion of scholarship, there was established in 1897 the Lottie Lane prize, gift of Mrs. Charlotte Thompson, a gold medal, awarded each year to the student having maintained the highest average throughout four years in the college.

Dean Phillips resigned in 1899 and for over a year President White served as head of the College of Liberal Arts. The four years during which Dean Phillips had charge of the college had seen noteworthy changes in the educational system of the institution, marked by a more scientific and progressive spirit.

After the resignation of President White in 1899 and while the administrative duties of the university were performed by Dr. George F. Bovard, the president of the board of trustees, Rev. George Cochran, D.D., who had been for the past six years dean of the Maclay College of Theology, became dean of the College of Liberal Arts. There were then nine members on the faculty and a student enrollment of 175.

Miniature on Cigarette Cases

Miniature paintings on cigarette cases are a lovely novelty which Europe has adopted from Australia. The cases are of ivory, with the miniature of oneself or friend inset. Bess Norris, an Australian artist adopted the idea from the eighteenth century miniature painters who decorated snuff and patch boxes in this way.

STATE GAS SUIT AWAITS RULING

Supreme Court's Decision Not Yet Received

Action Taken to Curb Waste at Santa Fe Springs

Defendants Blocked Hearing by Obtaining Writ

Whether the hearing of the injunction suit brought by the State to stop the waste of natural gas in the Santa Fe Springs field, scheduled for yesterday and continued until February 3, next, is to be resumed, depends upon a ruling of the Supreme Court on a writ of prohibition, which stopped the trial of the action in October before Superior Judge Hazlett. Up to the present the high court, which has the decision under submission, has not handed down a ruling.

The writ was obtained by some of the defendants in the suit, when Judge Hazlett had denied a motion requesting that lessors and mortgagees and others interested with the oil operators in the field be made party defendants to the suit.

The operators contend that any decision the court might make in the injunction proceedings affects lessors as well as themselves.

The State is endeavoring to prevent the waste of natural gas in the oil field by establishing a gas-oil ratio to permit only a specified amount of gas to escape with the production of each barrel of oil pumped from the wells.

Miss Gaynor and Peck Deny Reports of Rift

A business trip taken to San Francisco by Lydell Peck was the cause of widespread reports in Hollywood that he and Janet Gaynor, film actress, had come to the parting of the ways. On his return yesterday Peck, as well as Miss Gaynor, vigorously denied they had separated.

Peck left for San Francisco several days ago and Miss Gaynor went to stay with her mother at her apartment on Highland avenue.

At the Fox studio, she said: "It is utterly absurd. Mr. Peck and I certainly are not separated. On the contrary we are very, very happy. I was unable to meet him at the train because of my work, and I presume the reports started because I went to stay with my mother while he was absent from the city."

"The reports are absolutely without foundation," Peck asserted. "We are happier than ever and we still are maintaining our home in Beverly Hills."

Peck and his bride only recently returned from their honeymoon to Honolulu. He gave up his law business in the north to come to Hollywood to write for Paramount Pictures.

Balloon Award Winner Picked

Roger Robb, a youth of El Modena, won the cash prize offered by the Hollywood Boulevard Association for the recovery of the toy balloon that traveled the greatest distance from the film capital after being released during the Hollywood holiday festivities. The balloon came down in the yard of the Robb home in Orange county.

Col. Harry M. Baine, president of the association, will place a check for $50 in the mail today as Robb's reward. Only about a half-dozen of the 500 balloons released in the contest were recovered within the three weeks' time limit, as prevailing winds carried the majority of them out over the Pacific.

MAGAZINE ACCEPTS STORY BY ACTRESS

Lois Moran

Lois Moran, screen actress, threatens to add fame to her name merely because of a pastime. To while away the hours between pictures, during her vacation or on location, Miss Moran became interested in writing.

Yesterday it became known her first story has been accepted by College Humor. She titled it "Kisses." It is a narrative of her impressions of the men with whom she has made love on the screen.

Miss Moran has sent two other manuscripts to another magazine.

Boy Runs Away After Mother Reprimands Him

A wrist watch purchased on the installment plan for his high school "sweetie" brought a maternal reprimand that caused a 15-year-old boy to flee his home and fail to return, his distracted mother explained yesterday in asking police to launch a search for her son.

EDGAR POWELL

The lad who let his heart rule his head and who today, the mother fears, is wandering hatless and penniless about the streets of Los Angeles, is Edgar Powell, also known to his chums as Edgar Scott, son of Mrs. Veta Powell of 175 South Berkeley avenue, Pasadena. He disappeared Wednesday afternoon.

The missing boy is five feet four inches in height, weighs 130 pounds, has light brown hair and a mastoid scar behind his right ear. He is hatless, but dressed in blue overalls, a blue polo shirt, a plaid woolen lumberjack and low-cut tan shoes.

Japanese Peer Visits Studios

Baron Y. Togo, a peer of Japan and managing director of the Nippon Wireless Company, yesterday visited Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios as the guest of Louis B. Mayer. After expressing admiration for the Hollywood development of talking pictures, and of the co-operation by telephone and radio companies, he predicted that Japan will make progress in talkies within a few years.

Baron and Baroness Togo are en route home from an international industrial conference at Berlin. The Baron is vice-president of the Tokio Rotary Club. He was escorted through the studios by Douglas Shearer, chief recording engineer, and Anita Page, and was accompanied by Daina Jones, president of the Los Angeles Rotary Club.

STAR TO PLAY O'NEILL DRAMA

J. Harold Murray and Fifi Dorsay Costarred by Fox; Clif Edwards to Have Role in "Good News;" Walter Pidgeon Plays Lead at Warners

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

It is more than likely that Lillian Gish will star in Eugene O'Neill's "A Strange Interlude," according to word received yesterday.

LILLIAN GISH

FIFI DORSAY

Miss Gish, now in New York, is to leave soon for Paris to confer with the author, who is making his home abroad at present, concerning the matter of adapting the play to the screen.

"A Strange Interlude," and the role of Nina Leeds will give Miss Gish an admirable opportunity for the display for her acting talents.

The picture will of course be produced by United Artists. So far no director is assigned; but there is a possibility, we hear, that once more Miss Gish and Ronald Colman will be teamed, since, though Colman is now a star in his own right, the role he would have in "A Strange Interlude" would afford him splendid acting chances. As you remember, Colman first came into prominence playing opposite Miss Gish in her greatest success since leaving D. W. Griffith, namely, "The White Sister."

There is also a strong possibility that Henry King, who directed "The White Sister," also will direct "A Strange Interlude."

As will be remembered, this play, besides being a strong psychological drama concerning certain effects of the World War, also introduced in new fashion the use of asides, conveying the real thoughts of characters, while it also introduced the novelty of a play running part of the afternoon and all evening.

Cliff Edwards in "Good News"

It looks as though Cliff Edwards is to be a fixture with M.-G.-M. We understand that Edwards's contract is shortly to be renewed.

In the meantime, the comedian, former vaudeville and musical comedy headliner, has been assigned the role of the trainer in "Good News," a fine part and one which Edwards will appear in to good advantage.

Edwards made his first hit in his feature specialties in M.-G.-M.'s Revue.

KORDA'S FIRST FILM WILL BE MUSICAL

It has been decided just what Alexander Korda will do first for Fox, under his new contract.

He has been assigned to direct a musical film costarring J. Harold Murray and Fifi Dorsay. So far the production is not titled, or are the authors announced.

It was quite inevitable that Miss Dorsay would become a star, following her brilliant work in a number of Fox films including "They Had to See Paris," with Will Rogers. So we aren't at all surprised to hear of her assignment to this important production.

Walter Pidgeon With Warners

Warner Brothers, enterprising and pioneering souls, who first brought talking pictures into being, seem likewise to be the first producers brave enough to dare to make their pictures in color. The result has been the popularity of color pictures.

Now we learn that it is planned to make "Viennese Nights" entirely in colors, and there is a chance that some of the scenes actually will be photographed in Venice.

There are two leading male roles in the picture, and Walter Pidgeon was assigned to one of them yesterday. Alexander Gray has the other, Vivienne Segal has the leading feminine part.

"Viennese Nights" is the work of Sigmund Romberg and Oscar Hammerstein II.

Anthony Bushell With R.-K.-O.

Anthony Bushell has been signed by William Le Baron to play an important role with Richard Dix in Dix's next R.-K.-O. starring vehicle, "I Love You," adapted from a Le Baron play.

ANTHONY BUSHELL

The actor was formerly well known to the stage, playing opposite the late Jeanne Eagles in "Her Cardboard Lover." Since coming into pictures he has distinguished himself by playing various roles, including the one with George Arliss in Warner Brothers' "Disraeli." He has just completed a leading part in Tiffany's "Journey's End."

CAESAR A RULER AT BELASCO

Wilfrid Walter as Antony Shines in Presentation of Shakespeare Tragedy

BY PHILIP K. SCHEUER

Last night the Stratford Players gathered to make a Roman holiday . . . a shambles. Thus was the pageantry of "Julius Caesar" unfolded: The plotting, the assassination of an imperator rex, the oration of Marcus Antonius, and the final undoing of the noblest Roman of them all. It is a tapestry passing well known; the mind's eye takes it in as something remembered through the years, and mellowed thereby; it is good to see again. The special achievement at the Belasco Theater was the speech of Antony, as Wilfrid Walter conceived it: "Friends, Romans, countrymen," he began. You should have heard him.

Shakespeare's all-encompassing eye, which usually wandered afield in pursuit of subplot and sub-subplot, was comparatively restrained in "Julius Caesar." While the practice of linking these devious threads has made for confusion to many of the uninitiated, it occurs to me that its lack here resulted in too detailed an account of the events leading up to Caesar's death (in the third act.) at least for the modern audience, so that the intensity which enthralls one in other tragedies is hard put to it to survive here. At any ate, the play really began with the assassination, last evening.

Then followed the magnificent oration with its uncanny prescience of mob psychology and mob violence. And be it said for the mob that it looked alive; there was real fervor in it and real fervor in the clarion tones of Mr. Walter, and the applause which came with the curtain had real fervor, too.

George Hayes, if not quite the Brutus of the imagination, brought such a wealth of authority and understanding to the role as might be the envy of any man. His scene in the tent, wherein he reaches the heart of Cassius, was one of the brilliant episodes of the evening. And Eric Maxon was a properly menacing Cassius.

Kenneth Wickstead was Caesar; the portrait seemed less felicitous than this player's Polonius in "Hamlet," for one, although able enough. Roy Byford scored again—this time as Casca, one of the conspirators.

Though woman's place in "Julius Caesar" is slight, Joyce Bland contributed a beautifully tender moment in her pleа to Brutus. She, of course, was Portia. Miriam Adams was charming as Lucius, the boy-servant to Brutus.

All the members of the company were called upon for this tragedy, some of them on two or three occasions—tasks that seemed to disturb them not at all. This afternoon, with the same equanimity, they will lay aside their Roman trappings ("Julius Caesar" will not be repeated this season,) and move to the merry city of Illyria for "Twelfth Night," and at evening to the castles and heaths of Scotland for "Macbeth."

TANSMAN HEARD IN HIS OWN WORKS

Modernist Carries on Polish Traditions; Maintains Romanticism

BY ISABEL MORSE JONES

Alexander Tansman, composer-pianist, played at the Women's Athletic Club yesterday afternoon before an audience of several hundred. The program consisted of a sonata in three movements, six short mazurkas, two impromptus, berceuse, and the andante and scherzo from a symphony recently played in New York by the Philharmonic Symphony under Mengelberg.

Mr. Tansman is a Parisian-Pole, having been born in Lodz, Poland, and later settled in Paris. During the season of 1927-1928 he made a tour of the United States and was presented here by Pro-Musica. His compositions are written in the modern harmonic idioms but are aurally beautiful as the delicacy of his lyric gift prohibits the savage onslaughts of the piano indulged in quite generally by the extremists.

His striving to achieve a synthesis between Polish sensibility, as embodied in that country's musical traditions, and the contemporary movement has succeeded. His pieces have the melodic clarity that is like Grieg and the romantic charm of Chopin. His works stimulate the imagination and have the modern merits of brevity and overtones. He is an excellent pianist, and as a missionary to a world suffering from the brutalities of a new and stark musical faith he is a godsend.

In the program sponsored by Mrs. Nora Futerbaugh yesterday afternoon, the andante of the symphony made a profound impression. The scherzo had brilliancy without hardness and the little mazurkas had delightful emotional qualities. Tansman will play in San Diego before returning to New York.

Robert McWade Essays Lead in Playhouse Farce

Robert McWade, noted character comedian, comes to the Hollywood Playhouse starting tomorrow, as guest star with the Henry Duffy Players in the farce-comedy, "It Pays to Advertise." This play, which was written in collaboration by Roi Cooper Megrue and Walter Hackett, will give the popular star another of his grouch roles.

"It Pays to Advertise" is the story of Cyrus Martin, who, finding his son disinclined to work, enters into a conspiracy and business agreement with his private secretary to rouse the youth's ambition.

In the supporting cast will be Irving Mitchell, Byron Hawkins and Patsy Ruth Miller. Among others are Marie Meyers, Robert Keith, Muriel Rothermel, Myra Hubert, James Durkin, Barlowe Borland and John Mackenzie.

Star Enacts Original Stage Role

Marilyn Miller

Musical comedy celebrity, heads the brilliant cast of "Sally," First National's film production of the stage success, which will have a midnight premiere tonight at Warner Brothers' Hollywood Theater.

SEASTROM REVEALS ABILITY AS ACTOR

"Stroke of Midnight" Deals in Fatality on Screen at Filmarte

BY ELENA BOLAND

When Victor Seastrom turned exclusively to directing, the screen lost a very fine actor. The evidences of his talents along this line may be seen in "The Stroke of Midnight," which will toll nightly at the Filmarte this coming week.

Before Seastrom came to America from Sweden some five or six years ago, he directed as well as acted the leading role in Ahlin Nobel prize-winning tale by Dr. Selma Lagerlof. The picture belongs to a technique of the past. Comparison with even foreign productions of today would perhaps leave it without the credit it deserves. For, as a product of its day, it is far ahead of the times.

It is well done; it is well made. But what it once had to teach has already been learned. Seastrom as an actor and director has endowed it with that distinction which is peculiarly his own. The story itself, which no doubt as literature would have more value, chooses the fatality and morbidity which seems next to the soul of the Scandanavian. It is a sermon by illustration, a conflict between the influences of good and evil. It is also lengthy, heavy and, were it not for the quality of the performances, sometimes laughable; but it is powerful and admirable for the ease of its construction.

Seastrom deals always with the ebb of life. He finds his expression among the lowest strata of human society, in which there is never a trace of joy. The man whose part he takes symbolises all that is mocking and unbelieving. He beats his wife, tortures his children and in the end scoffs at death.

The uniqueness of the tale lies in the story told of the gray driver, who every New Year's Eve at the stroke of midnight trundles his cart over the world picking up rich and poor who have had the misfortune to die just before the witching hour. He is the driver of Death. On one of his annual pilgrimages he picks up David (Seastrom,) who has supposedly died while jeering at the legend and at human kindness. He goes with Death to the girl who has tried to reform him. She is on her deathbed. He is at last touched. Then he visits his own home to find his wife just about to poison the family to save them from grief. He is deeply touched. He starts to pray. Therein lies the moral. As soon as he has finished his journey, he returns to life, becomes a model husband and, after a good wash, the family sits down to a happy New Year's dinner.

The allegorical and unearthly atmosphere surrounding the wanderings of Death are particularly excellent. Astrid Holm is featured opposite Seastrom.

No mean attraction is "During the Round-up," a D. W. Griffith epic of the Biograph days, which pictures Lillian Gish as a flirtatious minx who has ways with the strong men of the prairie land.

WILLIAM BAKEWELL HAS LEADING ROLE

Indicative of the regard which is held for William Bakewell by the Warner organization is the announcement that this young juvenile is to essay the leading male role opposite Marian Nixon in "Miss Kitty Bellaire."

Bakewell, who is seen in the current attraction at Warner Brothers' Downtown Theater, won first honors as a leading man opposite Alice White in "Hot Stuff." His portrayals as a featured member in numerous Warner productions previously gained him this elevation. Bakewell is now appearing as a featured player in Lewis Milestone's production for Universal, "All Quiet on the Western Front."

FAWCETT IN FILM

George Fawcett, who accumulates different nationalities at a fast rate in his screen work, portrayed an Australian in "Hot for Paris." The actor plays an old sea dog in this picture.

WAR DRAMA SCHEDULED AT BELASCO

"Journey's End" Includes Tragedy and Farce; Noted Players in Cast

"Journey's End," noteworthy drama by R. C. Sherriff, will begin a limited engagement on the 19th inst., at the Belasco Theater.

"Journey's End" is a play about men in war. It shows the reactions in mind and body of a small group of English officers who are waiting to be overwhelmed by the German drive of 1918. They are in a dugout on the front line before St. Quentin, and throughout the course of the play are watching for the inevitable. In the reactions of these men, each a totally different type, is found an emotional range that varies from tragedy to farce.

This Sherriff play is the same that has taken London, Paris, Berlin, New York and Chicago by storm. In the entire history of the modern theater, it is doubtful whether any play has so completely captured the public of the various countries, it is said.

Midnight Shows Arranged for Loew's State

Beginning tonight, downtown pleasure seekers will find a bright spot every Saturday night at Loew's State, which is inaugurating a new policy of Saturday midnight matinees.

Roscoe Arbuckle is to preside as master of fun for this first performance, and Curtis Mosby's entire Apex Night Club Revue will be another added attraction.

These special attractions are in addition to the regular screen and stage program. William Haines in "Navy Blues," his first talking picture, is the screen offering, while Panchon and Marco are presenting their latest idea, "Manila Bound."

'Trespasser' to Play at Palace

Gloria Swanson's first talker, "The Trespasser," has been booked for a week's engagement at the Fox Palace Theater, and will replace "So This is College" on Thursday.

In "The Trespasser" Miss Swanson's singing voice is heard on the screen for the first time, in addition to her delivery of dialogue. The exotic star offers two songs, one a ballad style melody, "Love," the other a standard selection, "Serenade."

In addition to writing the story and one of its songs, Edmund Goulding directed "The Trespasser." The supporting cast includes Robert Ames, Henry B. Walthall and Kay Hammond.

Versatility of Actress Noted

Lila Lee, who is seen in "Show of Shows," at Warenr Brothers Downtown Theater, is one of the most versatile of the younger actresses. Not only does this versatility show in her screen work, but in athletics as well, it is said. Miss Lee excells in several sports.

The actress is an expert swimmer and diver; she rides horseback, plays golf and is rated as quite a fencer. Miss Lee's fencing experience and interest came about through a part assigned her in a picture some years ago. She took a series of lessons in order to be groomed for the part. Enjoying the sport, she induced a number of her friends to take lessons and has kept the interest stimulated by having a number of exhibition bouts staged.

Whispers in the Wings

BY MURIEL BABCOCK

EDWARD EVERETT HORTON is going to produce some more plays in Los Angeles, and right soon, too.

Although the final curtain will ring down at the Majestic tonight on his production of "Among the Married," he should have a new play in full swing at another theater in about a month or six weeks.

This, from Edward Everett last evening, comes pretty much as a pleasant surprise to those who have watched his work at first in the Vine-street and later the Majestic Theater this past year and a half.

"First, of course," he commented dryly, "I have to get a theater where the rent is such that it will permit me to do the sort of things I want to do, in the way of plays, casts, costuming and sets. Meantime, I'm going to take a vacation, a short one. Not that I'm all tired out, but I feel that a little rest will give me fresh zest for work."

He may go to New York within a week or so to do some play shopping, and see such producers and managers as Brock Pemberton, the younger Brady and others. It was the younger Brady who wrote in pleased fashion about the production which Horton made of "The Queen's Husband." There has been considerable talk, too, in the East of the job Horton has done recently of the Vincent Youmans comedy, "Among the Married."

Madge Bellamy to Stage

According to reports yesterday, Madge Bellamy is going out on the Publix circuit in a singing and dancing act, and later may be seen in a Pacific Coast play production.

New Play Tried Out

A brand-new play will be performed by the Beverly Hills Community Players Monday and Tuesday evenings. It is "Concerning Emily," a three-act comedy by John Wray and Richard Willis. (Wray was one of the authors of "Alibi.")

Georgie Fifield will have the title role, and Maj. Robert Lansdowne will play opposite. Performances will be, as in the past, at the El Rodeo school auditorium.

"Irene" In Personal Hit

The tale of how Dale Winter and Henry Duffy met and were wed might be told, inasmuch as they are both in town playing "The Cat and the Canary" at the President. It seems that Duffy, managing a stock company in Montreal, decided to produce the musical comedy "Irene" and through a theatrical agency hired Miss Winter for the name role.

She made a distinct personal hit not only with the local audiences, but with Mr. Duffy, the stock company manager, and stayed on at the close of the play as leading lady, first, for the players' troupe and later for Mr. Duffy in the capacity of Mrs. Duffy.

The Sixth "New Moon"

When "The New Moon" with Perry Askam and Josephine Houston arrives at the Majestic Theater the 20th inst. (the date has been changed again!) it will be the sixth company in action. The operetta, with its Sigmund Romberg music and Oscar Hammerstein book, is at this writing, being presented in Philadelphia, Chicago, Glasgow, Liverpool and Paris.

A seventh production is in preparation in Australia which will be directed and staged by Hammerstein in person, who leaves Los Angeles as soon as he finishes work on an operatic piece which he and Romberg are now writing for the Warner Brothers.

"The New Moon" ran to 536 performances in New York, starting in September, 1928, and closing just last month.

Actress Plans Birthday Party at Fox Circle

Bebe Daniels will have a birthday party at the Carthay Circle Theater Monday night. Miss Daniels will have as her guests the officers and hundreds of members of the Texas State Society as well as John Boles, leading man in "Rio Rita."

The actress and Boles were both born in Texas. Boles has just returned to Los Angeles after spending the holidays with the home folks in Greenville.

Lyston Black, president of the Texas State Society, is having a large birthday cake made for the party at the theater, which will be cut in the forecourt and parceled out to those attending.

Chinese Lists Last Late Show for 'Condemned'

Tonight's midnight frolic at Grauman's Chinese Theater will be the last show of its kind given in conjunction with Samuel Goldwyn's production, "Condemned."

A brilliant array of talent on the stage will include Flobelle and Charlie, comedy dancing team; Jack and Johnnie, singing duo; Muriel Stryker, well-known dancer; the Harris Trio, Ed and Morton Beck, who will offer one of their humorous skits, and Cropley and Violet.

The performance will precede the regular showing of "Condemned," starring Ronald Colman, with Ann Harding. M.-G.-M.'s production of "The Rogue Song," starring the singing star, Lawrence Tibbett, will have its world premiere on Friday evening.

COMEDY AT WESTLAKE

"So This Is College," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy-drama, is the feature attraction at the Westlake Theater. The film has a bitter football rivalry as its plot, with a novel love story woven into the campus background. Elliot Nugent, Robert Montgomery, Sally Starr and Cliff Edwards play the leading roles.

Health and Diet ADVICE

by DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

THE TREATMENT FOR VARICOSE VEINS AND ULCERS

Varicose veins occur more often after middle life and more often to women than to men. The veins of the lower leg are most often affected, becoming enlarged, numb, or painful, and of a purplish-blue in color, so that it is easy to see them wending their tortuous way just beneath the skin. In the beginning, there is a sense of weight without pain, due to the weight of the blood which the valves in the veins are not holding back properly.

People who stand at their work are most often victims of this disease. It is interesting that man is about the only animal who suffers from this trouble, probably because since he stands upright, there is a great pressure of blood upon the veins of the legs.

Varicose veins, unless carefully treated, tend to become worse as the vein becomes widened and its valves stretched, allowing the blood to throw extra weight upon the next valve below. Ulcers may also form if the disease exists for a long time.

The usual causes of varicose veins are prolapsed abdominal organs, pressure of feces, or tight garments such as garters or belts. Many patients suffering from this disorder are advised to have the veins surgically removed or rendered fibrous by the injection treatment, or the patient may be advised to wear a rubber stocking. I believe that a more satisfactory cure depends upon a general health-building regime to improve the blood so that the veins will have a proper nourishment for development strong walls. It is also necessary to correct any prolapsus of a tumor of the abdominal organs which may be pressing on the veins. Local treatments should also be given if one wishes to reduce the enlarged veins to a normal size. Certain kinds of electrical apparatus which can only be used by a physician are extremely valuable for this. You can benefit yourself, however, by taking certain exercises for improving the circulation. A good exercise is taken while lying on the back on a slanting board with the feet elevated, as in this position the abdominal organs are pulled away from the lower pelvis and this relieves the congestion in the lower extremities. Gentle massage while the legs are elevated is also beneficial. The strokes should be made from the extremities toward the heart. After the veins have been treated in this manner, you can benefit yourself by the application of a lump of ice to the enlarged veins. This should be done several times a day. The ice may be held against the vein with a towel so that your hand will not become too cold, but the smooth part of the ice should be placed directly against the swollen vein while the leg is in the air so the blood has an opportunity to drain out of the vein.

After three or four months of this treatment, the vein will usually become strengthened and contracted by this ice treatment. During the cold weather a substitute for the ice can be had by sitting in the bathtub and elevating the leg and allowing the cold water to run over the part where the enlarged vems are located. The ice treatment, however, produces the best results.

When varicose ulcers have developed, there is at first only a discharge of serum, but in advanced cases blood and pus are also exuded. The best treatment for varicose ulcers can be administered by a doctor who uses the actinic light. Often one or two applications of this will cause a healing of the ulcer.

SUGAR IS FREQUENTLY NEGLECTED ELEMENT IN BABY'S FORMULA

Complaints about the indigestibility or failure of a milk formula usually results in the discovery that the formula isn't "all there." One of the commonest mistakes made by mothers who have no knowledge of milk formulas, is to leave out the sugar element entirely or else put it in merely as a "flavor."

Sugar is put into milk formulas because cows' milk lacks the amount of sugar normally present in breast milk, and breast milk is, after all, the pattern for the food with which we are trying to nourish baby.

Under those circumstances a formula minus sugar or minus sufficient sugar usually results in baby's being dissatisfied with his bottle formula (even though he is getting all the milk he is supposed to have at his age) or else in making him extremely constipated.

Even if the baby doesn't cry after his bottle nor act like a cranky and hungry young gentleman, his formula causes no gain in weight. If he is constipated the mother notices that the movements are very hard and difficult to pass, sometimes clay-colored. In every case within my experience, I have found that the mother, even if she is using my feeding leaflet, seems unaware of the lack in the formula and is just certain that "my baby can't take cows' milk." Why mothers so frequently ignore this element is one of the constant surprises of my continuously surprising existence. Especially so, in the face of accurate reasons for its use.

ADDITION OF SUGAR BALANCES FORMULA

When we add water to cows' milk to make it easier for baby to digest, we also dilute the sugar there is in it. In order to bring that sugar content back to a proportion more nearly resembling mother's milk we have to add additional sugar to the formula. Otherwise the formula is out of balance. Nor should sugar be overfed, for mothers using six to eight tablespoonfuls in a day's formula usually have as much or more trouble as mothers using too little sugar or none at all.

There are all kinds of sugars suggested for baby's formula, doctors having their favorites. Cane and corn sugar are cheap and easy to obtain and relatively as satisfactory as the more expensive malt preparations and milk sugar. Baby remains his own doctor in this particular, and whichever sugar agrees with him is the sugar to use.

The usual amount in a twenty-four hour formula is one ounce for a ten-pound baby, one and one-half for a baby weighing fifteen pounds. One ounce is about three level tablespoonfuls; one and one-half ounces, four and one-half. After this latter figure is reached, the amount remains stationary up to 10 months and then we begin to take out the sugar gradually. Our aim is to reach the maximum formula of one quart of whole milk when baby is 1 year old. When baby is of this age and weighs, we hope, around twenty pounds, he needs neither water nor sugar in his milk.

THIRTY-SEVEN READY FOR HEALTH CONTEST

Thirty-seven youngsters yesterday qualified for the finals of the baby show and children's health contest to be held the 18th and 19th inst. in the Los Angeles College of Chiropractic. Examiners are enthusiastic concerning the health standards found in the preliminaries. Entries will be taken all next week. Clinics for mothers and babies will be held simultaneously.

WHEN THE SANDMAN COMES

A BEDTIME STORY by Thornton W. Burgess

FARMER BROWN'S BOY GETS ANOTHER SURPRISE

Where're you think you know it all
You're set to give your pride a fall.
—Farmer Brown's Boy

Chatterer the Red Squirrel never did know just what had happened to his bridge from the clothespost to the cornerib. But he could guess. Somebody in Farmer Brown's house had taken down that clothesline. He kept hoping that it would be put up again. Some time during every day he went over to see if that clothesline had been put back. He found the line stretched from one clothespost to another and from one clothespost over to a corner of the house, but never again was it stretched over to the cornerib.

Meanwhile Farmer Brown's Boy had ceased to think anything about Chatterer. He had put an end to the stealing of corn from the cornerib and that was enough. Every morning he went to the cornerib to get corn to feed the hens. He didn't even look around to see if there were any signs that any one else was visiting the cornerib. He was sure that no one else could be. He was sure that no mice could get in there, no rats could get in there and no squirrels could get in there.

It was some two weeks after he had removed Chatterer's bridge that Farmer Brown's Boy noticed a bare corncob in the cornerib one morning. He gave it only a passing thought. "It is one of the cobs that Chatterer left," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "I must have overlooked it." He picked it up and took it away to put with the other corncobs from which he had shelled the corn for the hens. Three mornings later he discovered another bare corncob. Again he thought it was one of those Chatterer had stripped of corn at the time he was using the clothesline for a bridge. But when a few mornings later Farmer Brown's Boy found still another cob, he began to do some thinking. He examined this one carefully. He saw at once that the corn had been removed from it very recently. It was a fresh corncob. Farmer Brown's Boy gave vent to a low whistle of surprise. Then he began to look around carefully. He found an ear of corn from which part of the corn had been removed. He suspected that it had been done either that morning or the day before, or possibly in the night.

"So there is some one else in this cornerib!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. Then as it popped into his head that Mother Brown might have put up that clothesline from the clothespost to the cornerib, he went to the door and looked out. The line was not there. He was sure that it hadn't been there since he took it down. Some one had found another way of getting into that cornerib. Who it could be this time he didn't have any idea. He began to wonder if perhaps after all a mouse had not been brought in with the corn in the fall. He had known of such things in the past. "It seems," said Farmer Brown's Boy to himself, "that this must be the case. Probably a mouse got in here then somehow and has been living here ever since."

Once more he got out the mousetraps and set them. The result was just what it had been before. He never found a mouse in any of those traps. But he did find bare corncobs and he knew that some one was feasting on his corn.

Los Angeles Swears Off on Bathing

Hereafter Los Angeles will not have its face washed unless it needs it. There will be no sloshing around in water just for the fun of it.

This concerns the conservation of water, it developed at the meeting of the Board of Commissioners of Water and Power yesterday and has to do with cleaning streets and highways.

It was announced that an exchange of courtesies between the Board of Water and Power and the City Engineer's office had resulted in reaching an agreement to stop the scrubbing of streets unless said streets are really dirty and need it.

When it is raining the street sprinklers will not be sent out on the job to help fill the gutters. An inspector, it was agreed, will look things over before calling for the water wagons. Flushing of culverts and unnecessary scrubbing of walks also will be discouraged, officials told the commissioners, in order to avoid unnecessary depletion of the city's water resources.

Child's Crying Wrecks Home

Mrs. Juanita Wood couldn't keep her 15-months-old child by a former marriage from crying and, besides, the infant was named "Junior," so Floyd N. Wood left home, it appeared from Mrs. Wood's divorce, on file yesterday.

Two months of married life were all that Wood could stand, his wife asserted. This is the letter he left when he departed:

"I'm sorry for this, and I told you I would do something if you didn't make Junior quit bawling. Good-by and God bless you forever. Floyd."

CHURCH TO HAVE BIRTHDAY

Dr. Walker Will Preach at First Presbyterian; Other Religious Services Announced

Celebrating the fifty-sixth anniversary of the founding of First Presbyterian Church, a special musical and speaking program will be given at the church tomorrow evening when many "old timers" are expected to be present to review the fruitful past and to wish Dr. Hugh K. Have You Been to the First?

It is an old story. The great Master was sitting at his canvas, putting in a wonderful sunset. One who was looking over his shoulder said, "I never saw such sunsets."

"No—?" replied the artist; "don't you wish you did?"

It was keen and cutting. The trouble was the critic had no sunsets in his soul; he couldn't see with his eyes what he didn't have in his soul.

The Great Gospel is a matter of appreciation. But we can grow an appreciation. The church ministers to that. Come—worship with us; we may help each other into the larger life.

COPPER VICTORY WON BY HARBOR

Commerce Commission Acts in Row Over Rates

Railroad Plea for Separate Schedule Denied

Lower Charge on Arizona Products Urged

The Harbor Department gained an important step yesterday in its fight for equitable copper matte rates from Arizona production centers to tidewater at Los Angeles Harbor. The Interstate Commerce Commission denied the petition of the Southern Pacific Company and other railroads to separate copper rates from the Los Angeles Harbor discriminatory rates complaint and to consolidate these copper rates with the national investigation on rates for all nonferrous metals now being studied by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Clyde M. Leach, Harbor Department attorney, who received the telegram yesterday from Ulysses Butler, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, advising action against the railroads' petition, said it presages victory for the port. It is the latest development on the complaint filed a year ago by the San Pedro and Wilmington Chambers of Commerce, charging discriminatory rates against the local port for many commodities shipped from interior points.

RATE OF $6 URGED

With the exception of the complaint against copper rates, however, the entire complaint was recommended to be dismissed last November by J. Edgar Smith, examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission. "Mr. Smith said he found no discrimination except on copper rates, which he termed "unjust, unreasonable and indefensibly high."

He recommended a rate of $6 per ton for all copper matte shipped from Arizona points to Los Angeles Harbor and $8.50 for that shipped from El Paso. At present, a $6 copper rate is in effect from Clarkdale, Ariz., and two subsidiary points, but rates of from $21.20 to $30.20 per ton to Los Angeles prevail from all other Arizona production areas. From El Paso to Los Angeles Harbor a rate of $31.20 per ton now is on the tariff.

The campaign to reduce copper rates was instituted by the Harbor Department two years ago, said Mr. Leach. F. A. Jones, local commerce counsel, had been retained and several conferences with copper producers had been held when the port chambers of commerce retained L. H. Stewart to plead for removal of asserted discriminatory rates against the port, such as transport of beans, grain and canned goods and copper to this port from interior points. The Harbor Department then consolidated its fight with that of the San Pedro and Wilmington chambers of commerce, in so far as the copper bullion rates were concerned.

HARBOR INCREASE SEEN

Shipping interests declare that if the blanket rate of $6 is approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission movement of copper matte from Arizona and Texas to Los Angeles Harbor should increase from its present 20,000 tons annually to 100,000 tons per year. Under the present discriminatory system it is said, copper can be carried to North Atlantic points by rail from Arizona for $14.60 per ton and from Gulf ports to the East Coast for $12.80 per ton.

Mr. Leach said that since the nonferrous metals rates investigation is expected to consume several years before completion, consolidation of the copper rates question to that docket will give the railroads valuable additional time.

PIONEER DIES

Phoenix (Ariz.) Republican, Jan. 10.

The last chapter in the life history of another pioneer Arizona builder was written yesterday morning with the death of William L. Pinney, for many years a prominent Phoenix merchant and civic leader.

His death, which occurred at his home, came as the result of an attack of heart trouble. Mrs. Pinney and his son, Albert C. Pinney, who is associated with him in business here, were with him at the end.

Mr. Pinney had been a resident of Arizona since September, 1883. He was a native of the State of Illinois, having been born in Joliet March 8, 1868.

BUT THE RABBITS?

Kansas City Times, Jan. 10.

As we get older, we have less and less regard for snow, but for the kids it remains one of the biggest thrills of the year to see a good snowfall. With them it ranks with the Fourth of July and Christmas. It's popular with the little girls when they slide in it, but it's not so nice for them after they grow up and have it tracked in all over the house. It's nice for the little boys to coast on, but it's no good when it has to be shoveled off the walks, and helps make it colder with heavier fuel bills to pay. The only kick in it for the big folks is to watch the little folks, if we except the rabbit hunters.

O, THAT'S DIFFERENT

Chicago Tribune, Jan. 9.

Mrs. Herbert S. Simpson, wife of the alderman of the Sixth Ward in Evanston, learned last night that circumstances alter automobile accidents in Evanston. While she was slowing down for a stop sign at South Boulevard on Sheridan Road, her new sedan crashed into the rear end of a car which stopped suddenly in front of her. Indignant, Mrs. Simpson alighted from her car just as two equally indignant men leaped out of the car ahead of her. Her indignation cooled when she recognized Sergts. Ben Hanke and Otto Brey of the Evanston Police Department, and the policemen became apologetic when they recognized her.

WEATHER MAN IN BAD

Kansas City Star, Jan. 10.

P. Connor, the Kansas City weather man, has been serving the Missouri and Kansas sector for over forty years. Forty years is a long, long time—time enough in which to learn a lot of things about the likes and dislikes of his patrons, but Mr. Connor has not, as yet, completed his education. Six degrees above zero weather is not what a friend would give the people of Southwestern Missouri, and us folks down here have always had a friendly feeling for the Kansas City weather miner and supposed such liking was reciprocated. How about it, Mr. Connor?

ANT POWDER DIET

Washington (D. C.) Star, Jan. 8.

If juvenile Johnny gets a pain in the region of the stomach because he reached up on a pantry shelf and ate from a package of insecticide which he thought was sugar or some other edible, it is the fault of the housewife, according to the Department of Agriculture, which yesterday warned against keeping insecticides where children can get at them.

A FELLOW SCRIBE, TOO!

Albuquerque Journal, Jan. 10.

The highway department has added another publicity man to its overworked staff. If the good work keeps up the State will soon have more literary lights on its pay roll than highway workers. Taxpayers will soon begin to wonder whether the highway department's primary purpose is for building up a political organization under the guise of publicity work or the building of highways.

CAPT. GRANT'S RITES TODAY

Final Honors Will be Paid Former Rancher and Author Who Won Renown in Australia

Funeral services for Capt. Alexander Charles Grant of Long Beach, who died at the Seaside Hospital Wednesday, will be conducted today at 2 p.m. at the chapel of J. J. Mottell, Long Beach. Interment will be in Inglewood Cemetery, Los Angeles.

Capt. Grant, prior to coming to California in 1902, for many years had been prominent in the commercial life of Australia, where he also won notable literary success. Born in Scotland, at Island Bank, Inverness, August 12, 1843, of an old and distinguished Scottish family, he received his early education at the Edinburgh High School. Then followed study at Montgrennan House, near Irvine, and later a course at the Koenigliche Paedogogium at Halle, Saxony.

Capt. Alexander Charles Grant

NOTABLE SUCCESS

In 1860 Capt. Grant went to Australia, where his patrimony had been invested by a guardian, and until 1877 was engaged in sheep and cattle raising. After two years spent in traveling he returned again to Australia in 1879 and became associated with Morehead, Ltd., of Brisbane, Queensland, of which he had become managing director at the time of his retirement. He was recognized as an authority on land and pastoral matters and is credited with the inauguration of the wool sales which have meant so much to that country.

At one time Capt. Grant commanded a kilted Highland regiment known as the Scottish Rifles (Queensland.) from which he retired after declining repeated offers of promotion. His writings include "Bush Life in Queensland" and "Early Life in Queensland," the latter having been purchased by the Mitchell Library of New South Wales because of its valuable data on the history and development of Australia.

GOLDEN WEDDING

In 1879 Capt. Grant married Miss Sallie Elizabeth North at Brisbane. She is the daughter of Rev. Roger North, distinguished scholar and medalist of Trinity College, Dublin, where she was born. During the twenty-five years of residence in Brisbane eleven of their twelve children were born, the youngest daughter having been born after their removal to California. On September 28, 1929 Capt. and Mrs. Grant celebrated their golden wedding.

Since 1921 Capt. and Mrs. Grant had made their home at 5700 Bay Shore Walk, Long Beach. Capt. Grant leaves his widow, Mrs. Alexander C. Grant of Long Beach; three sons, L. G. Grant and F. Grant of Los Angeles, and A. H. Grant of Douglas, Ariz.; and seven daughters, Mrs. Herbert D. Ivey of San Marino, Mrs. Harry A. Scott and Mrs. Oscar Unmack of Los Angeles, Mrs. Meade W. Powell of Bisbee, Ariz., Miss Ruth Grant and Mrs. Sallie Lagerstrom of Long Beach, and Mrs. Charles A. Mitke of London, Eng., and fifteen grandchildren.

OLD CAMPUS OPTION WILL BE ACTED ON

Los Angeles School Board Gives Notice it Will Buy Part of U.C.L.A. Grounds

Exercising its option, the Los Angeles School Board has notified the University of California it will purchase the first of the five blocks into which the old Vermont-avenue campus of the University of California at Los Angeles was divided. The parcel to be purchased is along Monroe street, at the south end of the campus. The price is $535,000.

When the University of California at Los Angeles was moved to its new site in Westwood Hills permission was obtained by the regents to sell the old site. Unable to purchase the property outright, the Los Angeles School Board leased the property for five years with an option to purchase approximately one-fifth of the property each year. Rental is paid at the rate of 5 per cent annually on the unpaid balance.

On the land to be purchased at the present time are the Fine Arts and Home Economics buildings, the Library and the Library Annex. Next year it is planned the second parcel will be purchased, with more buildings. At the end of five years it is expected the deal will have been completed and the entire property will have passed from the hands of the university for the total price of $2,500,000.

The Los Angeles school district is obtaining the property for a junior college which already has been operating for half a year, with an enrollment of about 1000 students.

ACTOR PLEADS GUILTY IN DRUNKENNESS CASE

Kit Guard, motion-picture actor, pleaded guilty to a drunk charge in Municipal Court yesterday and paid a $20 fine. Guard was arrested on the 5th inst., after police answered a call to the Christie Hotel, 6724 Hollywood Boulevard, that the actor was resisting efforts of employees to quiet him. In pleading guilty yesterday, Guard declared he is starting an engagement in a Hollywood theater and wanted to clear up the criminal charge against him.

CANARY ARISTOCRACY TO GO ON SHOW TODAY

Following two days and evenings of trills, rolls and warbles before Peter Greenhall, official judge, during which some 200 artists of the roller canary social elect have been striving for honors, the sixth annual roller canary exhibition and singing contest of the United Roller Breeders of Los Angeles will open its doors to the public at 2 p.m. today in Parlors E and F on the mezzanine floor in the Alexandria. It will continue until 10 p.m. tomorrow.

Entries have come from all over the State and among their numbers are many of the aristocrats of birdland, with a few whose owners have brought them directly from England and Japan. Judged in teams of four, they are rated on a 100-point scale, which covers all strains. Judging follows the British standard of first, second and third awards and a rating of "very highly commended," "highly commended" and "commended." All birds scoring forty points or more are awarded a diploma.

According to Mr. Greenall, who came here from Vancouver to judge the contest, when they first started here six years ago, thirty-eight points was considered a high score. This year the scoring has reached as high as forty-eight points, showing, he said, that the fancier is bringing about a steady improvement.

The total roller song, Greenall said, consists of fourteen different changes, but the basic features are the hollow roll, bass roll and glucke roll, the other eleven being variations of those. Depth of tone is the most desirable quality in any of the songs.

The Times perpetual cup for a team of four young birds was awarded this year to Mrs. Thurza Johnson, president of the organization. Another coveted prize is the May Robson Cup for the best bird in the show, which will not be awarded until the judging is completed.

ALLEN FIELD IN BID FOR HONOR

Harbor Board Held Ready to Meet Requirements

Choice as Foreign Airplane Entry Port Pends

Federal Inspection Agencies Promoting Move

BY WALDO DRAKE

The Harbor Department is prepared to make all improvements necessary to make Allen Field a Class A-1-A airport if plans now under way to have it designated as Los Angeles' port of entry for all aircraft arriving from foreign points are successful. That announcement was made yesterday by Port Manager Burt Edwards, who said his department already has in readiness plans to increase Allen Field facilities to meet all traffic contingencies.

Mr. Edwards's announcement follows efforts by Federal inspection agencies to have the Los Angeles Harbor airport designated as official port of entry, due to centralization at the port of all facilities for inspection of seagoing vessels arriving from foreign ports. This plan developed after the Treasury Department this week designated the Western Air Express Airport at Alhambra, as temporary port of entry for aircraft arriving in the Los Angeles area from Mexico, effective today.

As a result, quarantine officers of the United States Public Health Service, stationed at the harbor, will be forced to drive thirty-five miles to the Alhambra field, inspect arriving aircraft and then return to regular duties at the harbor. Similar duties must be performed by immigration, agricultural quarantine and customs officials.

Maj. H. A. Spencer, in charge of the United States Public Health Service offices at the port, said that the airport work will remove one inspector from his regular ship inspection work, whereas if Allen Field is designated as an airport of entry the Federal inspection staffs at Los Angeles Harbor could handle all arriving aircraft without disruption of present working schedules. In addition, seaplanes could be handled only at Allen Field, said Maj. Spencer.

BILGE CLUB PLANS FOR ANNUAL DINNER

The port's passing of the $1,000,000,000 mark in annual commerce will be the chief motive of celebration at the second annual dinner of the Bilge Club, to be held on the night of February 21 at the port. Attendance will be limited to 230 members and guests, all leaders in the shipping industry either locally or at other Pacific Coast ports.

Preparations were put in full swing yesterday noon at the initial meeting of the entertainment committee, which includes: Charles I. Houghton, charman, marine insurance broker; Burt Edwards, general manager of the port; Richard Kelly, admiralty attorney; James Craig, shipbuilder, and O. B. Kibele, shipbuilder. A general committee of twenty representative members of the Bilge Club is also being selected by Mr. Houghton to complete plans for the dinner.

The affair, established last year as the official yearly get-together of Los Angeles' shipping fraternity, will this season have as its guests of honor several shipping leaders from each of the other Pacific ports, including San Francisco, San Diego, Portland, Tacoma and Seattle.

Panama-Pacific's electric liner Virginia will bring in 500 passengers from New York via Havana and the Canal, this morning; while 250 travelers will depart the port at noon aboard the Lasco liner City of Honolulu for Hawaii.

Prominent among the Virginia's passengers are David A. Hamburger, local capitalist; Brig.-Gen. Walter F. Rhinow, adjutant-general of Minnesota, and Isaac F. Chapman, San Francisco attorney.

H. R. Kelly, attorney for the Wilmington Transportation Company, will leave for Washington today seeking the right to appeal to a Federal court from the ruling of the Federal Radio Commission, permanently closing the company's sending station KNI. Petition to appeal was not filed within the stipulated twenty days, but Kelly is said to have advice from the Radio Commission that its findings were held ten days before mailing to the company. Station KNI has been used to facilitate dispatch of company tugs escorting ships in or out of the harbor.

Shortage of weather data on the lane between here and Panama, making likely forecasts impossible, will be corrected if arrangements with ship lines being sought by Capt. W. J. Petersen, head of the Coast Marine Service Bureaus, are effected. Elsewhere on the Pacific and Atlantic reports from ships to shore afford comprehensive forecasts, deemed invaluable to other ships entering the area. Petersen seeks co-operation of ships to and from the canal in reporting to California weather stations.

Loss of a fifty-ton deckload of sardines in the overnight storm was reported by the purse seiner Sea Wolf, in early yesterday from Santa Cruz Island with ninety tons for Southern California Fish Corporation.

Nippon Yusen Kaisha's new motor liner Asama Maru took out 200 passengers and 2000 tons of Southland cargo yesterday on her return voyage to Japan via San Francisco. She is on her second voyage since commissioning.

The tanker Sunbeam did not sink in Delaware River as reported yesterday, according to her local agents. Advices say she merely dented a few plates when her bottom scraped a sunken dredge, and did not lose any cargo.

ORANGES LARGEST IN HISTORY

Lions' Club Honors Midwinter Show

And Here's Giant of 'Em All

THE National Orange Show to be held in San Bernardino next month was honored by the Lions' Club at its meeting at the Biltmore yesterday with a program which featured various angles of the great midwinter citrus classic.

Each January a meeting of the Lions' Club is devoted to the orange show under direction of E. M. Gore, past president of the Los Angeles club and Los Angeles representative of the orange show. More than a dozen stars of stage and screen were present to add to the program in addition to an orchestra.

The principal speaker was Arthur J. Brown, San Bernardino publisher and a past president of the show. Other guests were R. H. Mack, general manager of the show; Gov. J. B. Olll, past president of the orange exposition, who also spoke; Ben S. Holmes, past president; Frank Solt, member of the board of directors, and Louis Wolff, vice-president.

The largest oranges in history have been developed this season due to the smallness of the crop and continued sunshine. During the meeting Vice-President Wolff presented to Clem S. Glass, president of the Lions' Club, a huge orange emblematic of the season's output. Ray L. Riley, international president of the Lions' clubs and candidate for Governor of the State, was present and addressed the members briefly.

AFFAIRS OF WORLD TOLD AT BANQUET

Noted Speakers Heard on League of Nations and China by City Club

Several hundred persons attended a banquet and heard several lectures in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the League of Nations at the City Club last night. Frederick W. Roman, Ph. D., who recently returned from a study of conditions in Europe, and Chester Rowell, recently returned from the Orient, were the principals on the program.

Dr. Roman spoke of the sentiment for and against the League of Nations in the various countries he visited. He detailed many achievements accomplished by the League in settling disputes between the smaller nations of Europe.

Mr. Rowell, who has traveled extensively in China, and is familiar with the various forms of governments in the separate provinces, asserted that "the Chinese people will have to overcome the influences of 4000 years of bad government before they can become a solidified nation."

"There has been so much dishonesty in Chinese government that it will take many decades of careful guidance to bring order out of the present chaos," he asserted. "The Chinese merchants and business men are inherently honest but the majority of the governments China has had have been dishonest. The intelligent Chinese look to America for guidance."

The banquet was given under the joint auspices of the Southern California branch of the League of Nations' Association and the Council on International Relations.

WOMAN DENIED DAMAGES

A jury in Superior Judge Archbald's court yesterday voted no damages for Miss Jeanne Bitnky, injured in an automobile accident following which she sued Frank A. Stone, the driver of the car, for $10,000. The accident occurred at Eighth and Flower streets, February 14, 1929. Miss Bitney's arm was broken. A recently enacted statute prevents guests in wrecked automobiles suing the owner of the car.

COLLEGE RUSH SUBSIDES

This year, the colleges report, the annual increase in their enrollment is only 2 per cent. This is the smallest increase since the end of the war. It is taken as an indication that the big rush is subsiding. There will still be plenty of boys and girls heading for college when they leave the high school, but there may be no more such movements en masse. The colleges breathe a sigh of relief. They have not been able to assimilate all this new material. In some ways, particulary in preparation and mental attitude, it does not seem to have been so good as prewar material. The new recruits have gone to college because their parents wanted them to, and could afford it better than formerly, or because it was the popular thing to do, or because they expected to have a good time, or because they had no other plans and college was an easy answer to the question what to do. In most institutions the teaching forces and equipment have been inadequate. Many colleges have been swamped. State and city colleges have had to lower their standards to admit the hordes. Many private colleges have had to raise theirs to keep the hordes out. Now gradually all can readjust themselves better to the new situation. The change is probably as good for the young people as for the colleges. Many boys and girls, little fitted to get much out of the academic life, would be better off if they took vocational training or went into business or skilled mechanical occupations.—[Exchange.

GARBAGE DEPOT ASSURED

The City Council yesterday appropriated $46,240 for the purchase of land for what was described as a garbage depot. The plot specified in the report, which came from the Finance Committee, is near the easterly extension of Washington street near the Los Angeles River between Butte and Minerva streets.

QUIET WEDDING HAD BY MUTES

Bride Acts as Interpreter in Lip-reading Ceremony Performed by Judge

With the bride, a lip reader, acting as interpreter, David C. McClary, 27 years of age, of 416 East Sixteenth street, and Jany Lee Bradley, 18, of 318 West Seventeenth street, both deaf mutes, were married yesterday by Municipal Judge Russill.

Oliver Crockett and his wife, Mrs. Florence Crockett, also deaf mutes, acted as witnesses.

Liquor Racket Loses Appeal

Mack House, negro pugilist, is out of the bootlegging business and back in the fight game, he assured Municipal Judge Curtis yesterday in pleading guilty to possession of four gallons of moonshine at 1422 East Washington street. He was fined $300.

"I'm going back to prize fighting, judge," he told the court. "There ain't nothin' in this bootleggin' racket." He admitted working for a Central-avenue bootlegger when arrested, according to Deputy City Prosecutor Kaufman.

Spite Marriage Ends in Divorce

Henry James deserted his wife, Blanche, leaving a note which read:

"I married you to spite your boy friend. I realize this is a mean trick, but I cannot love you. I may see you in a year or two—or five.

"Your ex-husband,

"HENRY."

The note was introduced as part of the evidence offered by the wife yesterday before Superior Judge Burnell when granted a divorce. Mrs. James was represented by Attorney Nat Rosenstein.

CLASSES OPEN TODAY

Three Saturday-morning college classes will open this morning at University College, downtown school of the University of Southern California, in the Transportation Building, Seventh and Los Angeles streets. At 8 o'clock a class in educational and vocational guidance will meet, and at 10:30 o'clock classes in social aspects of education and penmanship will have their initial sessions.

NEW MAGAZINE OUT

The Los Angeles Municipal Engineers' Association, Inc., the membership of which comprises the technical employees of the engineering department of the city of Los Angeles, has just published the first issue of a magazine called The Municipal Engineer, edited, managed and owned by the technical employees.

PAVING PROJECT APPROVED

A petition for the paving and improving of La Brea avenue from Wilshire Boulevard to Olympic Boulevard (formerly Country Club Drive) was approved by the City Council yesterday. The paved roadway will be seventy feet wide, with sidewalks fourteen and one-half feet wide. The action was taken on a majority petition from property owners.

WILL BECOMES COURT EXHIBIT

State Scores in Trial Over Marital Shooting

Document Declared Found in Hornsby's Pocket

Stepson Wounded in Fight Takes Witness Stand

Moss W. Hornsby, reputed wealthy real estate operator, went to the apartment of his estranged wife with a pistol in one pocket and his last will and testament in another, according to exhibits introduced yesterday in Superior Judge Fricke's court, where Hornsby is on trial on three counts of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder.

The State charges that Hornsby went to the home of his wife, Denise, October 20, 1929, to attempt a reconciliation, and, failing in this, ran amuck with a gun, wounding his stepson, Jean, and Henry Dickson, a neighbor, who responded to Mrs. Hornsby's cries for aid.

Hornsby's last will and testament were introduced by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Menzies through the testimony of Detective Lieutenant Ryan, who said he found the document in Hornsby's clothes shortly after the asserted shooting. In the document, Hornsby cut off his wife and stepson with bequests of $1 each, leaving the balance of his estate to other relatives.

STATEMENT TO PRESS

Other envelopes taken from Hornsby's clothes, according to the witness, included a statement addressed to newspapers in which Hornsby asserted he met his wife while in France during the World War. The statement dwelt at length on Hornsby's reasons for their asserted marital difficulties.

Through these documents and others the State hopes to prove that Hornsby went to his wife's apartment at 5523 Lexington avenue with the intention of killing her, his stepson and possibly himself.

Henry Dickson and Jean Hornsby, the stepson of the defendant, told their versions yesterday of the asserted shooting, as did Mrs. Nora Dickson, mother of Henry Dickson.

YOUTH TESTIFIES

Young Hornsby said his stepfather opened fire on him, wounding him in the abdomen. The noise of the shot and Mrs. Hornsby's cries for help attracted the Dicksons from a neighboring apartment, and Dickson testified Hornsby shot him in the leg. Mrs. Dickson said Hornsby fired at her also, the bullet just missing her and lodging in a near-by door.

The State also called Mrs. Hornsby as a witness, but Defense Attorney Parsons objected to her testifying on the ground she is the wife of the defendant and cannot, therefore, give evidence against him. The objection was sustained, but it was reported the prosecution may try later to get her version of the shooting escapade into the records.

George M. Schwartz, also a resident of the apartment-house where Mrs. Hornsby resided, testified he responded to Mrs. Hornsby's cries and saw the defendant with a pistol in one hand, apparently trying to choke his stepson.

The trial will be resumed Monday, when it is expected the State will bring its case to a conclusion.

A portrait by the Rev. Matthew William Peters, the only clergyman member of the Royal Artists of Britain, was recently sold in London for $9450.

NEW RADIO AID FOR AVIATORS

Federal Bureau Develops Fog Landing Signal

High Frequency Beam Acts As Guide in Gliding

Roller Canaries Will Give KHJ "Announcement"

BY JOHN S. DAGGETT

Radio signals have been developed by the United States Bureau of Standards whereby an aviator can be led in a direct line from a point three miles distant to a landing field, even though the latter may be shrouded in fog. This may prove a solution to the problem of locating a field and making a safe landing when visibility is obscured.

Constructed for experimental purposes, a high frequency landing beam as developed by the bureau has proved successful in a number of test flights. The beam marks out a gliding path in such a way that a pilot may effect a safe landing even though he cannot see the ground.

FROM 2000 FEET

The path of the beam begins approximately three miles from the transmitter, where it is encountered at a height of 2000 feet. Following its direction the pilot finds himself at a height of 500 feet at a distance of two miles from the field and 240 feet at a distance of one mile. As he approaches the field he rapidly loses altitude and is but five feet from the ground at a distance of 500 feet from the transmitter, gliding at such an angle as to make a good "three point" landing.

In experimental flights it was found that no difficulty was encountered in following the downward path of the guiding beam and that good landings could be made even though it was impossible for the pilot to see the field beneath him until he was almost on the ground.

After two years of silence little roller canaries will chirp an announcement, during the 12:30 noon news period over KHJ from The Times today, of the exhibition and singing contest of the United Roller Breeders of Los Angeles. The exhibit opens at the Alexandria at 2 p.m. today with admission free to the public.

These little feathered friends who were featured for five years over KHJ have been missed by many listeners-in, judging from correspondence.

TTS SENDS DETECTIVE FOR TAYLOR-CASE CLEW

A search also will be made for Henry Peavey, former personal servant to Taylor, motion-picture director, who asserts that he has important information concerning Taylor's death.

Dist.-Atty. Fitts, however, stated that he will take no definite action in the Taylor case until King has finished his inquiry. Detective King avers that neither Hefner nor Peavey has any information that was not placed before the investigators during the original investigation in 1922.

Hefner is expected to report to Ed Whyte, State parole officer at San Francisco, today, to give his side of the story.
